Move To Cut Out Red Tape

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The White House moved Saturday to cut red tape for thousands of travelers, announcing a new one-step inspection system to be tried out at New York's John F. Kennedy International Airport.

It aims to cut in half the time required for processing travelers through U.S. customs, public health, immigration and agriculture inspections.

Under the new system to start by June 15, the White House said, a single officer will do the inspection job for all four federal agencies, with the help of monitoring system and computerized information.

If it works out at the big New York port of entry, the White House said the system will be put into effect at other international airports in the United States.

The second experimental site probably will be at San Antonio, Tex. The current Hemisfair exposition there and the October Olympics at Mexico City are expected to increase the flow of international travelers through San Antonio.

The test at Kennedy is aimed at removing many of the irritations growing out of inspection delays of international air travelers, both returning Americans and visiting foreigners. At JFK airport last summer peak loads of 16,000 international passenger arrivals daily overtaxed inspection facilities.

The one-stop inspection system for incoming travelers was recommended by a presidential industry-government travel commission that has been trying to find ways to increase foreign travel in the United States.

These other items of presidential business were announced by his press office:

—Signing of three bills, including a measure assuring federal indemnity benefits for state and local policemen killed or injured while enforcing federal law. Johnson called it "an act of simple justice" for the nation's 350,000 policemen.

—Granting of an average $9-a-month cost-of-living increase in benefits to more than 850,000 retired federal employes, effective May 1. The average monthly benefit check goes from $238 to $247 under the law's provision for an automatic cost-of-living increase based on a rise of more than 3 per cent in the Consumer Price Index.

Planes Batter Buildup Of Troops And Weapons

SAIGON (AP) — Air Force Stratofortresses from Guam and Thailand battered a buildup of North Vietnamese troops and weapons in the A Shau Valley and southeast of Hue again Saturday, possibly softening up the enemy for a new allied push.

The U.S. Command said the eight-engine B52s flew four missions over the valley and a fifth against an enemy grouping point near Hue, the old imperial capital seized by the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong during the Tet offensive, but recovered by allied forces.

The attacks followed a 1968 record of 160 missions flown Friday by Air Force, Navy and Marine fighter-bombers attacking enemy supply lines and storage areas in North Vietnam's southern panhandle below the 19th paralle. The day before, American warplanes flew 145 missions in the area.

The attacks were within the geographic limits set by President Johnson in his efforts to start peace talks with Hanoi.

Allied strategists report the A Shau Valley and Hue are still danger points in South Vietnam's northern frontier area despite a lessening of enemy pressure there.

The North Vietnamese have been building up in the valley since they overran the U.S. green Beret camp there in March, 1966. The allies say the buildup represents a threat to Hue, 30 miles to the east. North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops occupied Hue's Citadel in January and it took the allies a month to drive them out.

B52s have flown 30 missions over the valley since Wednesday, leading to speculation in Saigon that the attacks may be preliminary to a major allied ground assault into the stronghold.

A Shau Valley is about 40 miles south of Khe Sanh, near the border of Laos. Some U.S. officials have said some of the North Vietnamese who held the Marines under siege at Khe Sanh for 77 days this year may have moved down into the valley for a possible push on Hue.

The U.S. Command reported action north of A Shau below the demilitarized zone on the main highway to Khe Sanh from the east. North Vietnamese troops ambushed a 12-vehicle allied convoy en route to the combat base.

Last Concert of Season

Versatile Soprano Is Featured by Symphony

Dorothy Coulter will be the featured artist with the Sedalia Symphony when the orchestra presents its final concert of the season Monday night, April 29, at 8 p.m. in the Smith-Cotton High School auditorium, under the direction of Abe Rosenthal.

Miss Coulter is one of the most versatile performers in the theater today. With an equally large repetoire of both musical comedy and grand opera roles, the beautiful soprano is perfectly at home in either medium, as well as the concert stage.

She is especially remembered locally for her appearance last summer as Margot in Kansas City Starlight Theater's production of The Desert Song. Other operetta credits include appearances with virtually every major summer theater and cover such diverse roles as Eliza (My Fair Lady), Fiona (Brigadoon), Nina (Song of Norway), Magnolia (Show Boat), and Marsimah (Kismet).

Miss Coulter first came to the attention of the opera world in appearances as Mimi and Gilda on the NBC TB color telecasts of La Boheme and Rigoletto, going on to sing at the Metropolitan Opera where she was widely acclaimed in her debut as Musetta.

Ban Meetings Of More Than Five

AHMEDABAD, India (AP) — The Gujarat state government Saturday banned meetings of more than five persons in the small area of the Rann of Kutch granted to Pakistan in an international ruling in February.

An international tribunal in Geneva gave 90 per cent of the disputed wasteland to India and the rest to Pakistan.

The ban follows a threat by several thousand people to enter the area where the Indian army is dismantling its installations preparatory to evacuation.

Credit Crackdown May Affect Homes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The housing industry and the potential home buyer apparently stand to suffer the most in the newest anti-inflationary credit crackdown by the Federal Reserve Board.

An industry source said Saturday the newest brake on credit conceivably could lead in time to another recession in housing and push already high interest rates on home mortgages even higher.

"It's very, very discouraging," he said but added the board appeared to have little choice in view of the refusal of Congress to approve higher taxes.

Thursday's action by the Federal Reserve raising its discount rate from 5 to 5.5 per cent is more than a tightening of the credit reins. It's also a signal to Congress that the board wants action to increase taxes and cut spending.

"If there had been fiscal restraint," one government source said of higher taxes and spending cuts, "perhaps this wouldn't have happened."

The White House said the move underscores the need for the surcharge while the Reserve Board chairman, William McChesney Martin Jr., said the nation is now in its worst financial crisis since 1931.

The question of higher taxes will be the major issue before House leaders when they return to work on Monday after an Easter recess.

One government analyst noted that the Federal Reserve has said time and time again that it would prefer higher taxes and spending cuts to tighter money as a tool against inflation "but it felt it could not go any longer without some additional check."

Response to the Board's move was almost immediate as major banks raised their prime interest rates from 6 to 6.5 per cent. This is the charge made by the banks on loans to their most credit-worthy customers, usually large corporations.

McCarthy Pledges Overhaul

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy said Saturday there appears to be "deep disagreement" within the Johnson administration on the American course in Vietnam, and pledged to intensify his campaign demand for a policy overhaul.

The Minnesota senator warned his supporters there is danger the Vietnam issue could "become clouded and confused" for lack of a Democratic presidential campaigner defending the administration position on the war.

And he questioned whether Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey will take that role when he actively enters the race for the White House.

"I don't think the vice president, when he does come in, will take a very strong stand in defense of the administration policy," McCarthy said. "Hopefully, I think he meant to come in after some kind of settlement was underway."

McCarthy addressed about 50 supporters, some of them seeking seats on the Pennsylvania delegation to the Democratic National Convention, at a campaign breakfast.

He said the 130-vote Pennsylvania delegation selected in a primary next Tuesday could be an influential force at the convention, even though it will go to Chicago uncommitted. He said he hopes to see 21 to 30 political allies elected to the delegation.

Parade Will March On Loyalty Day

KANSAS CITY (AP)— A parade of bands, floats, ex-servicemen and representatives of civic and fraternal organizations in western Missouri and eastern Kansas plans to march from Veterans of Foreign Wars Headquarters to Libery Memorial mall April 28 in a Loyalty Day program.

The VFW says Loyalty Day was originated as a countermeasure to Communist May Day celebrations.

The parade expects at least 137 units of nearly 900 marchers.

Place Suspected Killer On "Most Wanted" List

WASHINGTON (AP) — What may be the nation's most intensive manhunt gained fresh pressure Saturday when the FBI placed on its "most wanted" list a fugitive convict accused of murder in the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

James Earl Ray, a 40-year-old habitual criminal, is being hunted by police from border to border and beyond for the April 4 sniper slaying in Memphis, Tenn., of the Negro civil rights leader from Atlanta.

The FBI always has limited its list of most wanted criminals to 10 names but Saturday it lengthened this roll of dishonor to 11 by adding Ray, a white loner known also by the name of Eric Starvo Galt and by six other aliases.

In addition to a state first-degree murder warrant issued in Memphis, Ray is wanted on federal charges of conspiracy to deny Dr. King his civil rights and of flight to escape confinement. The latter traces to his April 1967 escape from Missouri prison at Jefferson City where he was starting his eighth year on a 20-year sentence for armed robbery.

In announcing the unprecedented step of adding an 11th name to the "10 most wanted" list, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover announced it was done "to insure the widest possible dissemination of Ray's photograph and description to help effect his earliest possible location."

As usual, the FBI is appealing to the public for help in spotting its man and—as usual—gives implied warning against any effort by a plain citizen to apprehend the criminal unaided.

The official language puts it this way:

"Ray should be considered armed and extremely dangerous. Anyone with information concerning this fugitive is requested to immediately contact the nearest office of the FBI, the telephone number of which may be found on the first page of local telephone directories."

Reportedly a native of Illinois, Ray is described as about 5 feet, 10 inches tall, weighing from 163 to 174 pounds. He has blue eyes and brown hair usually worn short. Forehead and right palm bear small scars. His nose is narrow and straight, teeth even. And he has a noticeably protruding left ear, the lobe of which he reportedly tugs at when nervous.

Wide Travel Pledges By Kennedy

NORFOLK, Neb. (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy pledged Saturday to travel widely and often among the American people if he is elected president.

Kennedy drew heavy crowds in Republican stretches of Nebraska as he campaigned in advance of the state's May 14 primary.

And he told Nebraskans "no leadership can separate itself in thought or in fact from the people of a Democracy. If I am chosen as your next president, I pledge to you and my fellow citizens to go out among you; to meet with you; to open the channel of communication between a president and a citizenry which we so desperately need in the critical years ahead."

The New York Democrat, winding up a grueling week of stumping in the western part of the country, was warmly received by several thousand Nebraskans at Scottsbluff, and again in front of the old Union Pacific Railroad station in Norfolk.

He planned to look in on a Norfolk cattle auction and visit a cheese factory in Hartington.

At Scottsbluff and again in Norfolk, Kennedy introduced his new picture of future President Kennedy as a far-traveling leader responding to the will of the people.

"I intend not only to make government more responsive to the people, but to reach out beyond the appratus of government, talking directly with the people themselves and giving them the opportunity to talk with me."

Many Join Search For Dog Which Bit Child

The search for the black and white mongrel dog which bit five-year-old Martha Scherer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Scherer, 1005 West Third, Thursday at Third and Qunicy, continued late Saturday after efforts by the poundmaster to capture the dog were thwarted Friday afternoon.

According to Police Chief William Miller, the dog was seen at 1407 South Warren Friday afternoon by the poundmaster. The owner of the land, identified as H. C. Thompson, told the poundmaster that if any city employee came on his land he would sue.

While Thompson and the poundmaster argued, the dog escaped, prompting a city wide search for the animal.

Chief Miller reported Saturday afternoon that the local citizens band club was looking for the dog, along with numerous other concerned citizens.

Miller reported that the department had received several calls from persons who saw the dog, but each call has so far proven fruitless.

The search for the dog continued in the South Warren area near the Thompson residence and in the area of Liberty Park, where the dog was seen.

According to Chief Miller, the little girl will have 11 days before painful rabies shots must be administered if the dog is not captured.

Anyone with information pertaining to the dog is asked to call the Sedalia Police at TA 6-8100.

The dog was described as a black and white mongrel of average size which appeared to have had puppies recently.

Canada Gets New Prime Minister

OTTAWA (AP) — Pierre Elliott Trudeau, a casual, 48-year-old French-Canadian bachelor, was sworn in Saturday as the nation's 15th prime minister. He named a caretaker cabinet and hinted he would stake his new job in an election, probably in June.

The son of a Montreal millionaire, Trudeau was picked by the Liberal party two weeks ago to replace Lester B. Pearson, 70, who is retiring. After the Saturday ceremony, Pearson said he would go home, "put my feet up and watch the hockey game."

Trudeau's oath-taking—conducted in French by Gov. Gen. Roland Michener—was pushed up from Monday on less than 24 hours notice in a move Trudeau said would permit him to call an election as soon as June 17.

He would do so to capitalize on his own expanding popularity and rid himself of the minority government that made the legislative process a constant struggle for Pearson.

"There will be an election," Trudeau said. But he added that June 17, the date most frequently mentioned, had "no special appeal" and that another day in the month is possible. Technically, Trudeau is not required to risk his job until 1970.

In making cabinet appointments, Trudeau acknowledged that they had a temporary look. He kept his old post as justice minister, but said Donald S. MacDonald, one of six ministers without portfolio, would handle the job.

The most important changes involved two of Trudeau's rivals for the prime ministery. Mitchell Sharp, 56, the former finance minister, took Paul Martin's job as foreign minister, while Martin, 64, was named minister without portfolio. E.J. Benson, 44, moved into the finance post.

There were several Quebec men in the new cabinet. Trudeau is against French-Canadian separatism and his popularity in his own province is in many cases not as great as in the rest of the nation.

Resignation Of KC Police Chief Sought

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The removal of C. M. Kelley as chief of police in Kansas City was called for Saturday by the president of the Council for United Action. The Rev. A. L. Johnson also told a news conference that recent disturbances in Kansas City were in a large part caused by what he called "irresponsible behavior of the police department."

The Rev. Mr. Johnson was critical of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes for having praised the police for their conduct during the disturbances. He said a C.U.A. delegation is planning to go to Jefferson City by bus to demand Kelley's dismissal. The police department is under a board appointed by the governor.

If conditions perpetuating inequality between the races did not exist, he said, there would be no trouble.

No matter how many Negroes you kill," he said, "you're not going to stop them. The white society must know—the more you kill, the harder we're going to fight. And the Negroes aren't going to leave. We aren't going to Africa. We're going to stay here. This is our country."

Mushroom Haul

Jewell D. Foster, 2321 South Grand, is shown above with the 31 "beef steak" mushrooms he found Saturday. The unusual thing about the group of mushrooms which Foster found is that all were found under the same tree. Foster said that usually only three or four are found under one tree. Along with the "beef steak" or red mushrooms which he found, Foster also collected a number of morel mushrooms, the more common variety. When asked where the mushrooms were found, Foster quipped, "in the woods." (Democrat-Capital Photo)

Airliner With 129 Crashes

WINDHOEK, South-West Africa (AP) — A South African Airways Boeing 707 jetliner with 129 aboard crashed and burned in rugged terrain after take off Saturday night. First reports said six survived.

Reports from the scene said the plane broke into four sections on crashing, with wreckage spread over a five-mile area and two of the sections on fire.

A South African Press Association correspondent who flew over the area said he saw bodies strewn over the ground.

"As I left the scene, I saw one passenger and an American named Thomas Taylor," he said. "He was merely shocked."

The crash appeared among the costliest in lives in aviation history. The most costly single-plane disaster in lives was on Feb. 4, 1966, when a Japanese Boeing 727 jetliner crashed into Tokyo Bay, killing all 133 aboard. One hundred thirty persons were killed when an Air Frace jetliner went down near Paris in June, 1962.

Seventy-one passengers in Saturday's crash were reported from Johannesburg, South Africa, and 46 had boarded the plane at Windhoek, capital of South-West Africa, minutes before the crash.

An official report of 129 on board scaled down previous estimates that 136 were on the plane that had left Johannesburg for London by way of Windhoek, Luanda in Angola, Las Palmas in the Canary Islands and Frankfurt.

First news of the crash came in a report from the divisional commissioner of police for South-West Africa, Brig. T. Crous.

The plane was said to have fallen to earth six miles east of the J.G. Strijdom airport, Windhoek's main airstrip, just after take off at 9 p.m.

The commander of the aircraft, Capt. E. Smith, was reported dead in his cockpit. One of the officers was alive and was carried away in a stretcher.

Shells And Pits Are Valuable

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Don't throw away your walnut shells and apricot pits, says the Agri-Business Council of Oregon.

The shells and pits, ground to the consistency of sand and poured into the intakes of jet engines, remove carbon from the compressor blades. This improves performance and makes the engines run longer, the council says.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I met an attractive woman three months ago. (She was waiting for a bus.) We have been going regularly, once a week, and I enjoy her company. Yvonne is divorced and has two children which the judge awarded to her husband. She is not allowed to see them, which I find very hard to understand. According to her, the judge gave her a rotten deal.

Some small things about Yvonne bother me and I'd like your views. She refuses to give me her phone number; says she lives in a boarding house where the people are very nosy. She won't let me pick her up at home, and I have never been allowed to see her to the door. Her self-imposed "curfew" is 10 p.m. (She says she had TB years ago and must have a lot of rest.)

I have never met any of her friends or relatives and she will not tell me where she works — says it is "confidential" for the government. What do you make of this? — ALFIE

Dear Alfie: A lady who can't be picked up or taken home, refuses to tell you where she works, won't give you her phone number and has to be in by 10 p.m. is hiding something — like maybe a husband. My advice is to knock off this spooky arrangement.

I hope you make a better selection next time, Alfie, and your chances will be vastly improved if you don't go in for bus stop pickups.

Dear Ann Landers: Please print this for all the stupid girls in the world who are seeing men who are separated but not divorced. Maybe if I had seen a letter like it three years ago I wouldn't be so full of nerve medicine that I can barely write this letter.

In 1965 I fell hard for a man who said I was his dream girl. He and his wife were not getting along and a divorce was in the works. I let him move in with the understanding that we would be married as soon as his divorce came through. A few months later when his divorce was final he said he wasn't ready to "give up his freedom yet."

Three years have passed and he still isn't ready. He is out four nights a week and I pace the floor smoking and crying. I am 26 years old and broke — I pay most of the bills. My reputation is ruined and my health is shot. I know now he will never marry me but I still love him in spite of everything. If you care to add something to my letter that might help others, please do so. It's too late to help me. — DESTROYED AT 26.

Dear D: I have nothing to add. You've said it all.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have been married for nearly 32 years. We never had any children but we have several nieces and nephews.

The nieces are crazy about Ralph and they come over often. Three of these girls are teen-agers. They hop on Uncle Ralph's lap, dance with him and sit close to him on the bench when he plays ragtime jazz on the piano. He loves every minute of it.

One of the nieces announced yesterday, "I'm going to marry a man just like Uncle Ralph." I think such talk is indecent. I told Ralph to cut out the nonsense and that I am sick of seeing him act like a fool. What do have to say on the subject? DON'T NEED TROUBLE

Dear Don't: I see nothing indecent about young girls being friendly and affectionate with their uncle — expecially in a group. If this is an example of the way your mind works, you'd better stay away from your nephews.

What is French kissing? Is it wrong? Who should set the necking limits — the boy or the girl? Can a shotgun wedding succeed? Read Ann Landers' vooklet, "Teen-age Sex — Ten Ways To Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Volunteer for Poor People's March

WASHINGTON (AP) — Organizers of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s Poor People's Campaign in Washington say they've been flooded by offers of support since the April 4 assassination of King.

"It brought an increase in the number of volunteers, particularly from the black community. Fifty per cent, I'd say," reported Anthony Henry, chief Washington organizer.

"Also a larger number of organizations are willing to release staff people full time to work with us."

Henry's storefront office, in the middle of an area that saw heavy destruction during rioting in Washington that followed the assassination, was much busier and more crowded than it had been a month ago.

Committee chairmen who four weeks ago were in desperate need of volunteers were loaning people to other committees.

"I have a volunteer who's on strike at the telephone company," one young man announced. "Can anybody use him?" He was sent immediately to deliver literature.

There is only one week left before the campaign is to begin its scheduled starting date of April 29 set back only one week from Dr. King's April 22 timetable.

Poor people are not scheduled to begin marching to the capital in large numbers until May 2, when a symbolic group will leave from Memphis, Tenn., where King was slain.

But the planned pre-march confrontation between 100 Negro community leaders and leaders of Congress and government agencies—possibly including sit-ins in government offices—will go on as scheduled, led by the Rev. Ralph Abernathy, who succeeded King as president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

Henry, a tall, heavy, cheerful man, was interviewed in his small third-floor office where the telephone seldom stopped ringing.

It was answered by 21-year-old Penny Brown, one of 32 students from the University of California at Berkeley who arrived Tuesday to help throughout the summer.

The Berkeley students, who are receiving 15 college credits from the university for their work, had arranged to come before the assassination. But some Negroes dropped out, Miss Brown said, "for fear that the nonviolent movement was over."

"I had felt a little that way," she added. But now that she is on the scene, "I'm a little more optimistic."

"Each marshal shall keep all weapons and alcoholic beverages off the campsite at all times," the instructions read in part. "Marshals should patrol quarters 24 hours a day" and "Marshals shall work closely with police officials."

Dorothy Coulter has gained an enviable reputation as one of America's most gifted and beautiful singing actresses. From an auspicious television debut as Mimi on the NBC TV Opera she has gone on to explore all the various facets of the opera and concert world here and abroad.

Audiences at the Metropolitan, Vienna Staatsoper, San Francisco and New York City Opera companies, as well as at many summer festivals, have heard her in a variety of roles ranging from the classical works of Verdi and Mozart to the modern idiom of Menotti and Moore. The roles with which she is most closely identified are Firodiligi, Norina, Mimi, Gilda and Violetta. She has two world premieres to her credit, the title role in Gian Carlo Menotti's "Maria Golovin" and the tragic heroine Milly Theale in Douglas Moore's "Wings of The Dove."

Recently Opera News has cited her Norina as "all moments of bravura and charm". Alfred Frankenstein (San Francisco Chronicle) spoke of the "huge, florid tremendously difficult role of Fiordiligi magnificently sung by Dorothy Coulter".

Sounds Grave Economic Warning

WASHINGTON (AP) — A warning that the country is "in the midst of the worst financial crisis we have had since 1931" was issued by Chairman William McChesney Martin Jr. of the Federal Reserve Board Friday.

Martin told the American Society of Newspaper Editors that unless huge deficits and inflation are curbed in the next several years, the dollar could be borne down "in a worldwide devaluation of currencies."

In an hour-long address, Martin called upon his audience of 550 editors to marshal public support for a tax increase and expenditure cuts. He said the nation is plagued by "an intolerable balance of payments deficit, side by side with an intolerable domestic deficit."

"Both have to be corrected, and both have to be corrected over the next several years, or the United States is going to face either an uncontrollable recession or an uncontrollable inflation," Martin said.

He spoke one day after the Federal Reserve Board took strong money-tightening action by raising its discount rate from 5 per cent to 5½ per cent, the highest interest rate on loans to commercial banks since 1929 when the discount hit 6 per cent.

The action is expected to push up interest rates and make credit scarcer throughout the economy. It was taken on the same day that Chairman Arthur M. Okun of the President's Council of Economic Advisers said the country is suffering the consequences of a new and dangerous "over-all boom."

Martin's speech to the editors was interpreted as an attempt to increase pressure on Congress for the 10 per cent income tax surcharge requested by President Johnson.

There was some belief, however, that the board's money-tightening action of Thursday might encourage some lawmakers to delay tax action longer. In an apparent effort to forestall such delay, Martin held out hope that if taxes are raised, the credit squeeze may be lessened and a repetition of the 1966 "credit crunch" avoided.

Martin divided blame between the administration's guns-and-butter policy and the "recalcitrance of Congress" in refusing to approve a tax increase and spending reductions.

"I think it is the duty of the Federal Reserve to point out the disastrous effects of the perpetual deficit, both in our balance of payments and in our domestic economy," Martin said.

In what may have been the first public admission by a high government official that a devaluation of the dollar is conceivable, Martin said: "Unless we reverse our current trend, it will inevitably lead to worldwide devaluation of currencies."

Afterward he told reporters he was including the dollar in that statement but added that he was "not making a prediction—we still have it within our power to prevent this."

He emphasized in his speech that his diagnosis of "the worst financial crisis we have had since 1931" did not mean a business crisis, but a financial crisis.

The difference between 1931 and today, he said, is that the country was in a depression then and is in an inflation now.

"We have worked ourselves slowly into a situation of growing, perpetual deficit," Martin said.

At a closing banquet the editors installed a new president—Vincent S. Jones, of the Gannett Newspapers, Rochester, N.Y.

Jones succeeds Michael J. Ogden of the Providence Journal-bulletin.

Retires From Meadow Gold After Nearly 25 Years

Mrs. Dolly Middleton, 505 West Sixth, has retired from Meadow Gold Co., where on Sept. 3, this year she would have completed 25 consecutive years with the company. But Mrs. Middleton had been there many years before that, starting when she was but 15 years old the summer before she entered her Junior year in high school with the original company, the Weber Ice Cream Co.

This was a small one located at the back of what then was the Coontz Confectionary, 413 South Engineer. She continued to work there while as bookkeeper at the Eisenstein Store on South Ohio.

She was married to the late, Kenneth Middleton, and stayed home as a housewife to rear their son. In the early 40's she was employed at the Welfare Office for three years.

She had been away for ten years from the ice cream business, which while she was still there moved to Sixth where the plant is now located. The Weber Company was purchased by the Cooperative Creamery, moving to Sixth and Ohio and then sold to Beatrice Foods. When J. H. Bagby, manager, contacted her and asked her to come back to the ice cream business, she did, and she worked for him until his retirement and then for Ned L. Postels, the present manager.

On the evening of Tuesday, April 16, her co-workers in the business office of Meadow Gold, numbering 25, were guests, with her, of the company at a dinner at the Old Missouri Homestead. The dinner was preceded by a cocktail party given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Postels, 2605 Plaza. Here she was presented with an orchid and a 25-year pin with a diamond in it.

At the dinner a sizable purse was given to her to which all of the employees of the company contributed.

Special guests included her son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Middleton, Kansas who had been invited by Postels, Joe Bozain, sales manager and Francis Routt, office manager. Larry Wanserski, who had been the office manager for a number of years before Routt, was unable to attend.

Mrs. Middleton recalls that when she went to work the second time for the company there were only two girls in the office. Now there are nine.

PEOPLE HAD BOILS IN BIBLICAL TIMES

They are often mentioned in the Bible. A boil's redness, swelling, local "hotness," and great tenderness as a fluid-filled core develops, gives a picture of a typical infection. Boils are usually caused by a staphlococci variety of bacteria which remains confined to the area of their entry.

It is called a boil when on the skin's surface, an abscess when it involves deep tissues. A carbuncle is a cluster of boils and a felon is a special type of boil affecting the thick tissues of the pad of a fingertip. Never squeeze a boil or a pimple. This spreads the infection. Diabetics, or patients with vascular disease, hardening of arteries or Buerger's disease require immediate medical attention.

Wages Are Up, So Are Prices, Index Shows

By AILEEN SNODDY
NEA Consumer Affairs Specialist

NEW YORK—(NEA)—One businessman, when asked what the Consumer Price Index meant to him, replied, "It is a rarified and unintelligible thing. The only thing I know about it is that it keeps going up."

This frank gentleman was right about one thing. The CPI touches the daily life of every wage earner. It is based on the price each pays, for example, for a cocktail table, a sponge, a loaf of white bread, a quart of milk, garbage and trash collection, cleaning, plants and even greeting cards in 56 urban communities. Since the statistics come from such close-to-home undodgeables, the CPI shouldn't be a mystery.

For example, French hairdresser Michele and her husband, a Queens truck driver, may have a few more cents in a few months, thanks to the CPI and a salary adjustment based upon the rise in prices and how much it costs to live.

Since the CPI went into full steam through the Bureau of Labor Statistics, it has been used extensively in collective bargaining to readjust wages to living costs. If Michele decided on a divorce, the CPI might be used by attorneys to determine her alimony and to write in increases in five or 10 years based on price changes. When her husband retires his pension will be tied to the CPI as it is used to project what it will cost to live in the United States in 25 years.

If Michele decides to review her fire/theft insurance she may find she is underinsured. Some of her agent's information pointing this out comes from the changes in prices and quality of furniture and appliances she has. This information has been fed since 1913 by Bureau of Labor Statistics comparison shoppers into CPI equations.

Allan Gould, BLS regional economist, explains why Michele and her husband worry about what's happening to their dollars and why more people are aware of the Consumer Price Index than before.

"Until the last two years," Gould says, "take-home pay was greater than price increases. Then the worker began to lose. Prices moved upward faster than take-home pay and this shift is a major reason for many labor confrontations."

He points out that much of the unrest of policemen, firemen, teachers and city workers who had secure employment and stable salaries comes from the pinch as prices went up so rapidly they are now at a disadvantage.

Economists admit the CPI is not designed for Michele and her husband to sit down with after supper and work out a budget. However, when they see a monthly index and convert what the percentages mean in terms of dollars it is some guide. Meanwhile, the BLS does this for them.

The current CPI is based on price averages of 1957-59—as 100. Even for those not mathematically oriented an index of 110 means there is a 10 per cent increase in prices since the base period. An index of 90 means a 10 per cent decrease.

Realizing the need to explain the CPI further and help Michele and her husband convert per cent to dollars the CPI cooked up a Sunday dinner for four. On paper, it prepared a roast beef dinner and a chicken dinner. Using food prices from the latest CPI the economists learned that the price of each rose five cents between November and December, 1967, or $5.14 and $3.67, respectively.

Over the last three years the price of roast beef with fruit cocktail, salad, bread, butter, ice cream, cookies and coffee rose 36 cents and the chicken dinner only 10 cents. Using the average hourly wage of factory production workers in the New York area, the BLS reported the worker had to work one hour and 44 minutes for his roast beef and one hour and 14 minutes for his chicken or five and four minutes less than he did the December before. Behind this was an hourly wage increase of 15 cents over the year.

Returning to Michele and her husband, at their age they face more medical bills and retirement.

Companies involved in pension arrangements, especially within the next year, are gearing pension plans to changing prices and the resulting dollar value. A readjustment of a pension to be paid or a projection of what it will cost to live in 1980, for example is pulled from current statistics.

A real concern of insurance firms, Dr. Philip Reinertsen, Aetna Life & Casualty economist, says, is the rise in medical costs and auto liability insurance related to medical claims. For those who have not visited a doctor or brought prescription medicine recently medical care costs have risen faster than any other kind of personal expense. This is from 60.7 in the Consumer Price Index of 1946 to 127.7 in 1966.

A major problem of medical/health insurers is trying to figure out "how to measure the product of medical services. We aren't measuring pounds of rice. There are complicated personal services in hospitals that cost money. These can't be automated like auto production. Economists feel the quality of service is changing and this may change hospital expenses but you can't put a dollar sign on this. We now use the CPI to try to see what will happen in the future to these expenses," Dr. Reinertsen says.

The CPI also is used by insurance firms to remind people that they probably are underinsured because they haven't taken a recent inventory of their home goods. Using the CPI, he explains, homeowners will find that replacement prices have gone up and that they have upgraded the quality of new purchases. What they have costs more to replace than before. In appraising, insurance firms may use the CPI to view the continuing change in the typical contents of a home.

Banks also use the CPI to help their customers, according to Bob Lewis of the First National City Bank.

He points out that banks may use it in dealing with estates and trust accounts. For example, when a will is drawn use of such statistics helps "be sure a beneficiary will receive an adequate amount in the future and provides for possible review every five or 10 years."

Although banks may not directly get involved in leases or wage agreements they may offer advice to special customers on recognizing the rise in price index when setting salaries.

As he explains, "Individuals live in the expectation that prices will rise. It is now built into the purchasing behavior of the consumer. Generally the CPI reflects the supply of money in the economy and men's wages."

Don't Overdo Booze While On a Journey

LONDON (AP) — Drinkers were advised by medical circles Friday that a trip by land, sea or air is no time to go on the wagon.

The British Medical Journal, in a leading article, said lots of travelers in this mobile day and age develop a sense of insecurity and unreality which can produce harmful effects.

Those who drink, the article said, should stay with their normal level of alcohol.

On the other hand, nondrinkers should never kid themselves that they'll get rid of their unease on a journey by soaking it in booze. That's equally, or perhaps even more, harmful.

Those travelers who go alone for several days on bus, train or airplane often have irregular meals, disturbed sleep or unbalanced liquid intake.

"There is (sometimes) an explosive development of psychosis, with hallucinations and delusions," the Journal commented.

Confusion, tremor or fever can result.

"The risks of travel can be reduced by careful planning of journeys, which takes account of time zone changes and insures adequate rest periods," the publication continued.

Approve Reforms

BUCHAREST (AP) — Romania is playing it cool officially but its Communist leadership obviously welcomes and approves the ferment and reform in Red-ruled Czechoslovakia.

Mavericks appreciate company. Romania broke into the maverick category long before Czechoslovakia, with a foreign policy that startled orthodox Communists.

The party chief, Nicolae Ceausescu, was not even invited to a meeting in East Germany several weeks ago when Czechoslovakia's new Communist boss, Alexander Dubcek, was asked to explain what was going on in his country. Only party leaders from Russia, East Germany, Hungary and Poland were there.

There have been no student demonstrations in Romania, no protest marches, no demands for liberalization.

If everything is not coming up roses for Romanians yet, they seem assured that progress is being made.

This is a buttoned-up Communist society with one of the highest industrial growth rates in the world, a burgeoning world trade and a more or less independent foreign policy. Romania's Communist leaders plan to keep it that way.

There has been no official comment here on the efforts of the new Czech leadership to lift the heavy hand of Communist orthodoxy from Czech life. The controlled press did, pointedly, print the Czech version of events there rather than the critical blasts from East Germany and Hungary.

A Communist official said privately: "We look with sympathy at these events in Czechoslovakia. They are part of a historical process, the passing from one society to another."

He added that the reforms proposed and taking place in Czechoslovakia were "a demonstration of the compatibility between socialism and democracy."

The same process, he said, has been in progress in Romania in a less spectacular way for some years.

Ceausescu, party leader and president of the State Council, said in a recent speech that the Romanian central committee in 1965 "embarked on the road of liquidating the conservative tendencies and the rigidity and stiffness in the economic, social and political life."

At the same time, Ceausescu warned that if Romanian intellectuals were permitted to express themselves freely on the arts, literature and social life of Romania, they must still express "our ideological stand, our philosophy, our political and esthetic principles."

The Romanian press is controlled and almost completely in the hands of the government. A limited number of newspapers from Western countries are brought in, largely for the brisk tourist business here.

The Romanian attitude toward Czechoslovakia conforms to the views its leaders have often expressed concerning life in the Communist world. Paul Niculescu-Mizil, Romania's delegate to the recent consultative meeting of Communist parties at Budapest, stated them there and eventually walked out of the meeting to uphold them.

Communist solidarity, he said, "can only be built on the foundation of the principles of the parties' independence and sovereignty, of equality and noninterference in the internal affairs of other parties, of the observance of the right of each and every party to decide by itself on its policy and activity."

Romania has been asserting that line both in its foreign and trade policies.

Barnard To Employ New Idea

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Christiaan Barnard says he plans another heart transplant attempt in about six weeks, this one using permanently implanted silver studs as physiological signposts.

Barnard, leader of a South African team that performed the operation on the world's only living heart transplant patient Dr. Philip Blaiberg—revealed plans for his third heart transplant operation at a Friday news conference in Washington.

He said surgeons will sew several silver clips around the edges of the heart after taking it from a newly dead person and implanting it in the chest of a gravely ill patient yet to be selected.

The idea will be to have the small silver clips serve as signposts to allow Barnard and his colleagues to quickly spot by x-ray any enlargement of the heart, however slight, following the transplant surgery.

At the same time Barnard reported that Blaiberg, who has now gone 109 days since his surgery, "is improving every day."

"We doctors feel very happy about him," Barnard said. "He has improved beyond our expectations."

Barnard earlier told a standing-room-only audience of about 1,500 at the George Washington University School of Medicine that there is suggestive evidence from the first two operations performed by his team that a certain enlargement of the heart may accompany the always feared "rejection reaction."

That reaction is the body's natural tendency to reject tissue that is foreign to it. Doctors seek to combat it by administering drugs and radiation.

Barnard said that up to now, early detection, by x-ray of the rejection reaction is difficult because the heart is surrounded by a tough fibrous protective envelope and other tissues that tend to becloud the outline of the organ.

He said the silver clips will be used as readily observable markers, so that any change of their position in x-ray pictures taken at intervals would provide a quick tip-off of any enlargement.

Honors for Doctors

Three Sedalia doctors were honored Thursday night by the Pettis County Medical Society Auxiliary for practicing in Sedalia for more than 40 years. They are, left to right: Dr. J. W. Boger, 47 years this June, Dr. A. R. Maddox and Dr. Charles H. Brady, both of whom have practiced for 41 years. anthropologist and authoress whose views, often controversial, are largely sought on social and moral questions.

In the arts, Helen Hayes is considered the First Lady of the theater, and Georgia O'Keeefe, still painting at 80, is a much-respected name in her field.

Pearl Buck, who wrote numerous books and won a Nobel Prize for literature, now is chiefly concerned with helping part-American children who are living in Asian countries.

The reigning queen of American politics, Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, the regal Republican from Maine, is a force to be reckoned with on Capitol Hill.

In Washington, Perle Mesta still holds the unofficial title of the "hostess with the mostest," and Alice Roosevelt Longworth, daughter of President Theodore Roosevelt and widow of a former Speaker of the House of Representatives, Nicholas Longworth, has lived history and is making it.

These, truly, are women of our times.

Women now earn 20 per cent of the wage and salary income, comprise one-third of the total work force and head 10 per cent of American families. As consumers, they set the trends. They buy stock: 51 per cent of U.S. stockholders are women, as are 55 per cent of mutual fund purchasers. Consequently, they command a massive respect in the market place.

Aided immeasurably by a spate of labor-saving household devices, women are looking for something more to do and many go to work—as volunteers, or full-fledged member of the labor force. Recent studies show that 40 per cent of families with an income between $7,000 and $10,000 enjoy that level of relative prosperity because the wife is working.

And, with professional education and new fields opening to them, and with family planning socially acceptable, women now can successfully combine career and marriage.

For these and other reasons, more and more women are making prominent names for themselves in more and more fields of endeavor—politics, the arts, literature and education, in particular.

Telescope Provides Man With Knowledge of Space

MOUNT PALOMAR, Calif. (AP) — It sits on its perch on mile-high Palomar Mountain, the world's largest telescope, peering from its 135-foot dome into worlds billions of trillions of miles away.

In those far reaches are things no eye saw before. Vast clusters of suns pinwheel through the void, exploding and collapsing, ever racing outward at unbelievable speeds.

The telescope sees far because the "lens" of its eye is 200 inches across—1,600 times the size of the lens in a human eye.

It is not really a lens, but a mirror. It would be impossible to build a faultless lens that size, so it was given a reflector that serves the same purpose: bending and focusing light. Shaped like a shallow dish, it collects the falling light from distant stars and stores their images on film.

When men fashioned it two decades ago it was a marvel of science. It could see in four dimensions. Other telescopes before had done this, but not in such magnitude. As it looks out through the three conventional dimensions farther and farther, it becomes apparent that it is seeing backward in time, almost to its beginning. It takes so long for light from distant worlds to reach it—billions of years—that it is seeing things that no longer exist.

Now starting on its 21st year, its sight has been sharpened electronically so that it may see even farther into space and further back into time.

Somewhere in this cosmic outback may lie the secret of one of the deepest mysteries to tantalize the minds of men, a mystery they didn't know was there until they unshuttered the eye of the Mount Palomar telescope.

This great enigma is the quasar. Quasars are quasi-stellar, or star-like, objects on the rim of the universe that date back close to the beginning of time. They are the brightest, most distant, fastest-traveling things yet found in all creation.

The Palomar telescope found the first quasar, and nearly 100 since. It has discovered many other strange things.

Astronomers now know that the universe is at least eight times larger than they thought.

Twenty years ago, men figured the distance of a star or a star cluster by its brightness. With the telescope's sharper eye, it discovered clouds of dust and glass intervening; the stars actually were much brighter and thus more distant.

Astronomers already had observed that the universe appeared to be expanding, but they miscalculated the speed. They thought stars were receding so fast — by reason of a theory which says objects must shrink as they approach the speed of light—that they would cease to exist somewhere out about 1.5 billion light years.

"Light year" expresses the distance a 186,000-mile-a-second photon of light would cover in a year; about six trillion miles.

The telescope showed that the speed of receding stars is only about one-eighth of earlier calculations, and that the most distant stars are thus eight times farther away. This pushes the edge of the universe out quite a distance.

Actually, however, most astronomers don't believe the universe has an edge. They think space curves, that if the telescope could see far enough it would see the back of its own dome.

It also found that the number of quasars increases with distance. The farther away they are, the more of them it can see in a cubic volume of space.

Until a few years ago astronomers generally were convinced they had a yardstick for measuring distances in the universe.

They were sure the universe was expanding and that the velocity of the expansion increased with distance. They based this belief on observations that the faster an object goes, the redder its light becomes. By measuring the degree of shift to the red, they calculated speed and distance in relation to other receding objects.

Using the red shift as a yardstick, astronomers figured the rate of expansion as about 160,000 miles per hour for each 3,260,000 miles distance from the earth, and that the radius of the universe was about 60 billion trillion miles, or 10 billion light years.

It was a cozy cosmos, with few unanswerable questions.

Then the huge telescope discovered quasars.

Quasar red shifts are so great that no one yet has come up with a generally acceptable concept of a process that would give quasars enough energy to go as fast as the red shifts indicate they are going.

The red-shift yardstick may work for the "near part of the universe, out to about four billion light years, but apparently it doesn't apply to more distant quasars.

This raises some serious questions. If quasars aren't traveling as fast as they seem, maybe they aren't as far away as they appear, and maybe the universe isn't as big or as old as presumed.

As originally designed, the Palomar telescope was a huge camera. Now it is something like a television set, equipped with a device something like a TV tube. Focused starlight, instead of striking a photographic plate, is directed into the tube. Here light is converted into electrons in a reverse of the process that in home television sets converts electrons into light. The electrons then are amplified, turning a dim image into a bright one. Thus it can see dimmer, more distant stars.

The findings the telescope has made are spurring an unprecedented new interest in the stars. Eight giant telescopes have been built or projected in recent years.

One of them, a 236-inch reflector nearing completion in the northern Caucasus in the Soviet Union, will preempt Palomar's title as the world's largest telescope.

Hospitalization

Americans pay on an average of $57 per year for hospital bills,, but about 145 million persons in the United States are now covered by some form of hospitalization insurance plan.

Weaves at Loom

Miss Alice Mae Alexander, home management specialist, Extension Division, University of Missouri, Columbia, right, demonstrates weaving on her small loom at the joint meeting of the Extension Clubs of Pettis County Thursday at the Convention Hall. Watching are a group of Extension Homemakers Club members, left to right: Mrs. Olyn Rugen, Flat Creek, Miss Darlene Jones, Prairie Ridge, Mrs. Wilbern Hays, Prairie Ridge, Mrs. Don Clifford, Ringen Neighbors and Mrs. Raymond Wasson, Thursday Club, who is also the County Council president. There were more than 200 members of the extension clubs present and several visitors.

"What Can You Do With Free-Choice Time?" was the topic of Miss Alice Mae Alexander, home management specialist, Extension Division, University of Missouri, at the joint meeting of Pettis County Extension Clubs Friday afternoon at Convention Hall.

Miss Alexander, who was home economist at the Pettis County Extension Center several years ago, said she had one pet theory regardless of age or occupation that everyone has some free choice time, and that does not mean leisure time.

Assume you have a bit of free choice time, she told the group, whether you are 8 or 80. Volunteer community activities help to make a better community. There are also church and school. How much time, she said, depends on you, but don't spread yourself too thin. Learn to say "No."

There is a need for recreation, too, she added.

Do something significant, she advised, and that doesn't mean making headlines. It may mean being a good mother, keeping a nice home, but whatever you do, do the best you can with what you have to work with, and that will be something significant. There is very little that is original, but by doing things your own way you express your own personality, she said.

Miss Alexander said that the different crafts fall into two categories: whimseys, which are novelities that bring pleasure, and herilooms.

She had several knitted items and commented that she was glad knitting had come back, it is very realxing. She talked about the crocheted rug, braided rug and woven rug, displayed needlepoint and many beautiful articles she had woven on a small loom she demonstrated.

"I could buy these things much cheaper," she said, "but it is the feeling of satisfaction we get when we do interesting things and through them we meet more interesting people."

Miss Alexander was introduced by Mrs. Raymond Wasson, president of the Extension Clubs Council.

The different Extension Homemakers Clubs had exhibits of things they had made.

Mrs. Wasson expressed appreciation to Mrs. Scottie Crawford for her display of ceramics, Mrs. Earl Crawford, who demonstrated the making of tote bags from webbing and the women of Epworth Methodist Church for their demonstration of quilting.

Poisonous Snakes Part Of Viet Cong Arsenal

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The Viet Cong used a poisonous snake called the bamboo viper to booby trap their caves against pursuing U.S. soldiers, an Army major said today.

The snakes—three to four feet long—are hung from the cave's ceiling by the tails, which agitates them and makes them more likely to bite, said Maj. James A. Vik, a pharmacologist at the Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington.

The Southeast Asian theater of operation has seven poisonous snakes in all and they constitute a strong pyschological factor for American troops, Vik said in a speech for the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology.

The worst, and one of the most venemous in the world, is the blue krait in Vietnam. This small, bluish-black snake is barely four feet long and injects only a small amount of venon. But it is so potent that it can kill a monkey in 10 to 12 minutes.

He estimated that there were some 50 snake bites among U.S. troops in South Vietnam each year but that the figures were not necessarily accurate.

Of the 50, perhaps five were fatal, he said. Vik who has not been to Vietnam, said that the Army may send experts to study the snake situation.

The trouble with the standard antivenoms, useful against U.S. snakes, is that they are not effective enough against the Asian snakes. Working with the venoms of the Asian snakes, the Army hopes to have antivenom against all of them within a year.

Besides the krait and the bamboo viper, the troops encounter the Indian cobra, the king cobra, the fer de lance and the habu. The two cobras rate just behind the krait in deadliness, their bites almost always fatal, their manners aggressive and their size the largest, running to 12 feet long. The troops do not usually encounter the sea snake which inhabits the beach areas of Vietnam.

For the snake-bitten soldier, the bite of any of the six land snakes means usually that he will be unable to walk within a half hour. The bites are extremely painful and the venom quickly depresses the heart rate and blood pressure.

Victims are taken to an aid station by helicopter. The bite is cut open, suction used to draw out the poison and a tournaquet applied loosely to restrict the spread. Then antvenom is given if it is available and sometimes steroid hormones, useful in fighting inflammation, are administered Vik said.

Suit Over Contract

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A $150,000 breach of contract suit filed by actor Peter Lawford says Paramount Pictures and Embassy Pictures Corp. kept him waiting two years to make a film—and then never made it.

Lawford's attorney, Edward M. Medvene, filed the suit Friday. It says the actor made an oral contract with the studios in March 1966 to star in a film, "Something Beginning With M," but the movie never was started.

Big State Fair Shrine Event

Discuss Shrine Day

An "All Missouri Shrine Day" for the Missouri State Fair was discussed in the State Fair offices Friday. This was the initial meeting in a series to make plans for a massive Shrine event at the State Fair on Aug. 23. All four Missouri temples will participate. Shown, left to right, are John Blair, member of the Shrine's State Fair committee, Bud Wells, parade marshal for the event, Dr. F. T. H'Doubler, president of the committee, Dick Farris, committee treasurer, Dick Winn, the group's general chairman, and W. C. Askew, secretary of the fair. Absent from the meeting was Lester Kuhs, who flew to Sedalia from St. Louis but could not land because of bad weather. Blair and H'Doubler represent Springfield, Wells is from St. Joseph, Winn and Farris from Kansas City. Missouri has over 25,000 Shriners.

What is anticipated to be a record-shattering attendance day at the Missouri State Fair will be on Friday, Aug. 23, which has been designated as All-Missouri State Shrine Ceremonial Day. The four Temples of the state will bring their candidates for the Shrine to Sedalia to be created in the Warren E. Hearnes Calss, and at the same time Governor Hearnes will be made an honorary member of the other three Temples in the state.

Officials for what will be the first All-State Ceremonial to be held in Missouri met with Wilbert C. Askew, secretary of the fair, Friday to disucss arrangements. The Temples are Moolah (St. Louis), Ararat (Kansas City), Abou Ben Adhem (Springfield) and Moila (St. Joseph). John Balir, member of the State Fair Committee and Dr. F.T.H'Doubler, president of the committee, represented Springfield; Dick Farris, committee treasurer and Dick Winn, the group's general chairman, are from Kansas City, Bud Wells, parade marshal for the event, is from St. Joseph, while the St. Louis representative is Lester Kuhs, who flew to Sedalia but missed the meeting when he was unable to land due to bad weather.

While the idea of an all-state ceremonial is not new, it is new to Missouri. It is designed to promote interest and a "spirit of brotherly affection" among the Nobles of the Shrine Temples of Missouri. The four Potentates of the temples of Missouri have announced that all novices that join one of the temples will be created a nobel in the Warren E. Hearnes Class and at the same time became honorary members of the other temples of Missouri.

Each temple is bringing to the fair all their equipment, their bands, their drill teams, patrol, animals, etc. Already over 8,000 advance tickets have been requested by the Shrine and this figure is expected to increase as the fair draws closer.

One of the highlights of the day will be a "Shrineossal Race," featuring the four Potentates of the Temples with ostriches as their mounts. The winner will receive $2,000 from the fair, which in turn will go to the Shriner's Hospital for Crippled Children.

At 9 a.m., the Shrine will gather and arrange for the activities. The "Showcase of the Shrine" parade will be at 1 p.m., with uniformed units from the four Temples on parade, to be followed at 1:30 with the "Shrineossal Happening" — a free grandstand show for the public featuring the Shrine Showcase in a "Shrineossal Shrine-Orama." The feature race will be staged on the track in front of the grandstand at 2:30 p.m.

The Cold Sand Ceremonial — largest class of Novices ever gathered under one "tent" — concludes the day of activities as the Novices emerge as Nobles.

Secretary Askew said, "I believe this will be the biggest Friday the fair has ever had in attendance — in Shriners and members of the families alone, not failing to mention the thousands of others who will come to see their activities — all but the initiation. Commissioner Dexter Davis, a member of the Shrine, Moila Temple, is most pleased the Missouri Temples have accepted the invitation to come to the fair, and assures the people of Missouri it will be one of the most interesting spectacles ever to be seen at the fair."

Says City Has Bright Prospects

Sedalia's growth potential in business, industry and population has very favorable aspects, according to William H. Hall, director of Sedalia's Industrial Development Department, speaking before the Kiwanis Club at its meeting in Bothwell Hotel Thursday noon.

One of the necessary ingredients to maintain and accelerate this recognized trend, the speaker remarked, is for citizens to become voluntarily involved in cooperation with such organizations as the Chamber of Commerce and civic groups. "Just belonging isn't enough," he emphasized. "To do yourself or your community any good you must have a desire to lend a productive hand to the forward movement."

The speaker was presented by Tom Foster, program chairman.

President William Dugan presented Major Howard Froberg of the Salvation Army as Kiwanian of the Week at the head table.

Invocation was by Robert Horton. Singing was led by William Ward with Mrs. Lillian Maynard accompanist. Birthday greetings were extended to Virgil Winge.

Next week a skit on "Jack and Jill" will be presented by the following Sedalians: Mrs. Robert Seelan, Mrs. Chester Wright, Mrs. Jack Herndon and Mrs. J. C. Griffin.

Youths Assigned To the Job Corps

The Division of Employment Security here has announced the assignment of Thomas L. Meyer, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marcus F. Meyer, 109 East 19th to the Job Corps. He left April 17 for the Mingo Job Corps Center, Puxico, Mo., where he will train in the construction field.

Terry J. Roberts, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Roberts, 300 East 27th, left April 17 for the Trapper Creek Job Corps Center, Montana, where he will train in conservation work.

Nixon Won't 'Undercut' Johnson's Peace Effort

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon told cheering editors Friday that in his GOP presidential nomination campaign he is not going to undercut President Johnson's efforts to get peace negotiations under way.

Calling for a pause in criticism of the President's policies, Nixon said: "I intend as long as there is any hope for successful conclusion of these negotiations to have a moratorium on criticism."

Nixon said it is nonsense to call Johnson a hawk. He said all potential candidates for the presidency want peace, adding:

"At this time the one man who has the responsibility for it and who can do something about it is Lyndon Johnson. As far as I am concerned, I am not going to do anything to undercut him until he has a chance to bring it about."

The former vice president, who kept an audience of the nation's leading newspaper executives and their wives alternately laughing and applauding, jabbed sharply at Sens. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., and Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., for continuing their criticisms of Johnson's actions as they campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Questioned by a panel of four editors, Nixon predicted the Democrats may wind up with a ticket of Kennedy for president and Hubert H. Humphrey for vice president.

Nixon said he hopes 1968 is "not the year of the big draft" that would bring Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller into the race.

Rockefeller proposed to the editors Thursday a 10-year, $150-billion program of spending to eliminate urban poverty. Nixon said that isn't the way to approach the problem.

"I could stand here today and say that instead of spending $150 billion I'll spend $200 billion," he said. "After all, that's no sweat for me. It's not my money, it's yours we're going to be spending."

He said he thinks nothing could be more harmful for the urban Negro than to have inflationary spending that would diminish the value of welfare payments, raise grocery and clothing bills and all of the costs of the necessities of life.

"What is needed now in this field more than any other is not doing the over-promising that has created much of the frustration that has led to some of this rioting," he said, "but to be candid and honest as to what we can do and then do it."

Greene Ties World Record In 100 Meter

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Charlie Greene sped 100 meters in 10 seconds flat, equalling the world record, and Jim Ryun set a meet record of 3:42.8 in the 1,500 meters as America's Olympic hopefuls moved into high gear at the 43rd Kansas Relays Saturday.

Greene, a former Nebraska athlete, had a favoring wind of only 0.5 miles an hour, well under the 4.47 allowable for world record recognition.

His chief rival, Jim Hines, former Texas Southern star, was disqualified for two false starts. The 10-flat world mark is shared by six men including Hines and two others have 10 flats pending for world recognition.

Hines and Greene share the world 100-yard dash record of 9.1 seconds with two other men. Mel Gray of Fort Scott, Kan., Junior college was second in 10.1, breaking the national juco record.

Ryun, the world mile record holder from Kansas, was making his outdoor season debut after a pulled hamstring in his left leg put him on the sidelines March 26.

His time was roughly equivalent to 3:59 mile and was 4.1 seconds under the meet mark. Ryun's world 1,500 record is 3:33.1 and his world mile mark is 3:51.1.

Tim Danielson of San Diego State was the leader at the half in 2:04. Ryun then moved in front and posted a 3:04.7 three-quarters mile time. Jim Crawford of Harding College of Arkansas challenged him with 300 yards to go but Ryun turned on the speed and ran the last 220 in 26.3.

"I didn't strain and in a way it was an easy type race," Greene said. "I don't feel I'm there yet, but let this be a warning to my adversaries — I'm on the way.

"I have my eye on a gold medal at the Olympic Games, either in the 100 meters or on a relay team" Greene said. "Of course, I'd take two if I could get them."

Kansas State won the university sprint medley in 3:21.3 and the distance medley in 9:53.8. Dave Stevens of Kansas won the high hurdles in excellent time of 13.9 into a six-mile-an-hour wind.

Sport Scraps

By D. Kelly Scruton

Soon Sedalians will be asked to vote on a junior high school — a very, very important and necessary addition to Sedalia's school system. The proper arrangements for this step in the right direction should be analyzed carefully, and every move should be given sincere thought. We should not just jump into a program before it is checked and rechecked.

In the past several days I have talked with several persons and I find the present proposal is not looked upon with as much favor as I first thought. One of my friends stated that "the school board should take another look and be practical."

I used his suggestion to query others. I found they would be in unanimous support of a more practical approach, one which would be most beneficial to the school children of Sedalia and at the same time in an overall picture would cost possibly less than the present approach.

"Why not build a new high school, one closer to the present stadium on Limit and Liberty Park Blvd., which would serve the three upper classes, the Sophomore, Junior and Senior. Take the present building which is more centrally located in the city and poses less trouble for children of the junior high school age to get to. In the junior high school, relieve the elementary schools of the seventh grade and move it to the junior high school along with the eighth and ninth (freshman class).

"This would make it possible to build a more modern institution for the high school, give more room for the junior high school grades and at the same time relieve all the elementary schools of one grade, thus making it possible to use those rooms for the kindergartens which will soon become necessary in the public school system. No additional construction would have to be made at these elementary schools.

"To give Sedalia a first class junior high school it will be necessary in addition to construct in conjunction a new auditorium, cafeteria and class rooms. Instead of going this route, it was suggested Sedalia go first class and construction the high school near the present stadium and make it of more use to the school. He pointed out, also, that senior high school students can reach school more easily than a lot of youngsters of the junior group, Many of these students drive their own cars and the transportation problems will not be as much trouble as it would be for the younger students," he said.

Looking at it from the standpoint of athletics, the junior high students would gain a great advantage in going to the old high school location, while these in the three upper grades would be much closer to where the present gridiron facilities is located. It seems to me his plan is a logical one, whether the board agrees or not.

It was interesting to learn this past week that Greg Weld of Kansas City, a big car race driver, has been chosen by Andy Granatelli to be the driver of one of his six turbine cars entered in this year's qualifying for the Indianapolis 500-mile race on Memorial Day. Greg is no stranger around here either.

Many racing fans, followers of the modified events, recall his competing at the old Thunderbowl Speedway, southwest of Sedalia, numerous times. Then later he hit for the bigger time and raced at the Missouri State Fair in big car modified car, and late model stock car events. He also has spun the oval at the Sportsman's Speedway at Marshall.

About three years ago he took his chances and went to Indianapolis. Last year, in the turbine, he crashed and failed to qualify. "I'm still classed as a rookie, and will be until I qualify. I will be leaving for Indianapolis on the 27th to visit with other drivers. The track opens for practice on the first of May, and I want to get in as much practice on the track as possible for the qualifying time rolls around"

Weld in discussing his possibilities, remarked that Parnelli Jones drove one of the Granatelli turbine cars last year, and he expected to get some fine pointers from him.

Al Sweeney; president of the National Speedways, which promotes the races at the Missouri State Fair, has said of Greg, "Weld is one of the coming drivers, and his friends and fellow Missourians out here will be seeing one of the stiff contenders of the '500' in the not too distant future. He has the 'guts' and the knack of a race driver with a determination to win."

No Action Taken By Committee

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — The executive board of the International Olympic Committee discussed for five hours Saturday the South African situation but took no action on that country's status for the Summer Games in Mexico City.

"The whole question was reviewed up to date in the context of the world situation," said Col. John Westerhoff, secretary-general of the IOC.

"No decisions were taken. Only information was conveyed. The organizing committee of Mexico reported on developments and how uncertainty affected their final arrangements."

The board scheduled another meeting for Sunday.

The Mexican delegate to the meeting, Gen. Flores de Clark, was understood to have prepared a resolution invalidating South Africa's re-entry into the Games, but there was no indication whether he had presented it.

In Mexico City, meanwhile, a newspaper predicted the resolution would be accepted by a 5-3 vote of the nine-member board with one abstention.

South Africa was banned from Olympic competition in 1963 because of its policy of racial segregation, but a mail vote of the 71-member IOC in February allowed the country back into the Games.

The vote never was announced, but it has been reported unofficially that 36 members voted for readmission with 33 against. There was one abstention and one spoiled ballot.

The Mexican resolution, however, contends that the postal vote was invalid because it needed a two-thirds majority.

"That means the IOC can say that it is not possible to make the vote effective—that the vote is not in accord with the rules," Gen. Clark said before the meeting.

This reasoning obviously would give the IOC the smoothest way out of a turbulent situation and insure against the collapse of the Games.

More than 40 countries, including Russia, have threatened to boycott the Games if South Africa is allowed to complete.

Lunn Was Human After All

WILMINGTON, N. C. (AP)— Bobby Lunn proved he was human after all Saturday during the third round of the $35,000 Azalea Open Golf Tournament when he toured the 6,575-yard Cape Fear Country Club course in even par 71.

The 22-year-old pro cooled considerably from his record-setting round of 63 Thursday and second round 66, but his 13-under-par 200 total is the lowest 54-hole score carded on the PGA tour this year, a new record for the Azalea Open and good enough to maintain a two-stroke lead going into Sunday's final round.

At 11-under are Steve Reid of St. Louis, Mo., who rolled in five birdies on his way to a 66 Saturday and Dick Rhyan of Sylvania, Ohio, who shook off two bogies on the first three holes to finish the third round with a 69.

Canadian Wilf Homenuik and Bruce Devlin of Australia fired 66s and are tied at fourth place with nine under par.

At eight under are Gary Player, John Lotz, and Claude King.

6—Putting Practice

By FRANK BEARD
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Putting is the one phase of golf where you can't overdo the practice bit, no matter what time of year it is. People laugh at guys who make the living room rug a practice green. But the fact it isn't grass doesn't matter. It's a good exercise.

The important thing is keeping the stroke smooth. You can watch the putter. You can change a few things. You can always keep your touch and get the feel of the hands working together.

When you get on actual greens conditions, start with short putts. Gary Player gave me some of the strangest, most useful advice I ever received. We were at Greensboro one year, and he was standing there hitting 18-inch putts. He had 100 balls and he was popping those 18-inchers in, one after another.

"What are you practicing those for?" I asked. "Obviously, you never miss them."

"That's right," he said," but I'll tell you what. The greatest thing for putting is confidence. And the greatest thing for confidence is watching that ball go in the hole. I'll stand here until my confidence is high. The subconscious is watching that ball go in the hole.

"You see these other blokes here go out and putt those 10- and 12-footers and miss about 75 per cent. How can you build your confidence with missed putts?"

It seemed ludicrous at the time, but the more I thought about it, the more I realized he was right. So start short with your putts and build your confidence early.

MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL

Tigers 4, Chisox 1

CHICAGO (AP) — Dick McAuliffe's 10th inning single drove in the tie breaking runs and the streaking Detroit Tigers won their seventh straight game, beating the Chicago White Sox 4-1 Saturday.

Walter Williams, who had gone into left field at the start of the inning for Chicago, misjudged Ray Oyler's leadoff fly ball and it fell for a double. Then Dick Tracewski attempted to sacrifice but Oyler was out at third.

But Mickey Stanley followed with a double, sending Tracewski to third and McAuliffe's single brought the runs across. Al Kaline singled another run in before the inning ended.

The loss was the seventh straight for the winless White Sox—the only team in baseball still without a victory this season.

Both teams scored in the ninth, the White Sox tying the game when rookie Jon Warden walked pinch hitter Wayne Causey with the bases loaded, forcing in pinch runner Sandy Alomar.

Yankees 4, Twins 2

(AP) — Pitcher Jim Perry's fielding error on an attempted sacrifice bunt by New York's Mel Stottlemyre allowed the eventual winning run to score as the Yankees nipped Minnesota 4-2 Saturday.

The unearned run in a two-run Yankee fifth inning was all Stottlemyre needed to post his second victory in three decisions, although the Twins hit him frequently.

New York broke a 1-1 tie in the fifth when Roy White and Bill Robinson lashed successive singles and White scored as Jake Gibbs hit a dribbler down the first base line and was barely thrown out by John Roseboro.

Gene Michael, who hit his first major league home run for the Yanks in the third inning, then grounded to shortstop Jack Hernandez, who threw to the plate. The Twins had Robinson hung up between third and home, but he got back to third when Cesar Tovar let the throw from Roseboro get away from him.

Stottlemyre then bunted a high bouncer back toward Perry, but the Twins pitcher couldn't hang onto the ball as he tried to grab it with his bare hand. Robinson scored for a 3-1 lead.

Harmon Killebrew's fourth homer in leading off the sixth pulled Minnesota within a run, but Stottlemyre shut the door after that. The Twins scored in the fourth on Bob Allison's single, an error and Ted Uhlaender's single.

The Yankees added an insurance run in the ninth when White doubled and scored when Killebrew dropped a throw at first base.

Phils 7, Astros 1

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies broke out of the scoring slump which had plagued them in their first nine games by defeating the Houston Astros 7-1 Saturday.

Houston, missing four players because of weekend reserve duty, took a quick 1-0 lead when Denis Menke collected his first hit as an Astro, a line drive home run in the first inning.

Houston starter Larry Dierker held the Phillies hitless for 3 1-3 innings, but then they erupted for four runs in the fourth.

Following consecutive singles by Johnny Calison and Rich Allen, Tony Gonzalez tied the game with a looping single to left. Dierker struck out Bill White, but Clay Dalrymple doubled to right, scoring Allen.

Bobby Wine was given an intentional walk loading the bases, but Larry Jackson spoiled the strategy with a two-run single to center.

Philadelphia put the game out of reach with three runs in the sixth off reliever Jim Ray.

Mets 3, Dogers 2

NEW YORK (AP) — Ron Swoboda's three-run homer gave the New York Mets a 3-2 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Saturday.

The loss spoiled a two-hit, 12 strikeout performance by young Bill Singer, who worked seven innings.

Singer and Tom Seaver were locked in a scoreless duel and the Mets were hitless until Bud Harrelson opened the sixth with a single. Al Weis sacrificed and after Cleon Jones struck out, Art Shamsky walked.

Then Swoboda smashed his third home run of the year over the center field wall for all the runs Seaver needed.

The Dodgers scored both their runs in the eighth with two out.

Red Sox 3, Indians 2

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Red Sox posted their fourth straight victory Saturday, defeating the Cleveland Indians 3-2 on Reggie Smith's three-run homer and the five-hit pitching of Jerry Stephenson.

Reds 2, Braves 1

CINCINNATI (AP) — Johnny Bench greeted Stu Miller with a run-scoring single in the eighth inning, sending the Cincinnati Reds to a 2-1 victory over the Atlanta Braves Saturday night.

Giants 1, Pirates 0

PITTSBURGH (AP — Ray Sadecki set down Pittsburgh on four hits and San Francisco blanked the Pirates 1-0 Saturday as Willie Mays tripled and scored the game's only run on Bob Veale's balk.

Sadecki, winning his eighth straight in a streak dating to last season, was never in trouble and allowed only three Pirate runners to reach second base—just once with less than two outs.

Tigers Play Three In Golf Action

The University of Missouri Tiger golf teams participated in a three-way meet with Kansas State and Illinois State Friday. Missouri defeated Kansas and Kansas State lost to Illinois.

In the varsity triangular golf meet, Rich Boyton, Illinois, was medalist with a 4-over-par 74. Steve Loyd of M. U. and Doug Gray of K-State each shot a 75.

The M. U. Freshman team which played K-State won 10-2. Mike DeLozier, of Sedalia, playing with Missouri, was medalist with a 73, Charles Digges a 74, Brad Walters an 80 and Jerry Clark 81 for Missouri.

De Lozier's 73 was the low score of the entire meet.

Goalby Powers To One-Stroke Lead

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — masters champion Bob Goalby, the sentimental favorite, closed with a rash of birdies on the back nine Saturday and forged into a one-stroke lead in the third round of golf's $150,000 Tournament of Champions.

The 37-year-old Goalby, whose victory in the Masters last Sunday was somewhat tarnished when he won by disqualification of Roberto de Vincenzo, fired a five-under-par 66 for a 54-hole score of 206.

The round was the lowest thus far in this 16th annual tournament played at the par 36-35—71 Stardust Country Club.

Goalby had a brilliant 34-32—66 and goes into the final round Sunday leading Don January, who had a 69, by one stroke. In third place at 208 was Dan Sikes, who shot a 70.

It was a sunny and little breezy day for the select field of 25 professionals, and it was a see-saw battle throughout the afternoon.

January, after nine holes, had a string of four straight birdies and led by a shot at the turn. During play, there was a tie between Sikes, January and Goalby. At one time, all three were deadlocked.

Goalby broke the thing open when he holed putts of four feet or less on the last two holes.

"Maybe I am trying to prove something this week," Goalby said, obviously referring to the Masters. "But maybe I don't have to . . ."

Tied at 211 were Randy Glover, who had a 70, and Julius Boros and George Archer, who had 71s.

Gardner Dickinson had a 73 for 212. Even with par for the distance were Tom Weiskopf, 67, and England's Tony Jackoin, 69. Billy Casper with a 70 was alone at 214.

Sikes and January were the coleaders as the round began. January's round was 34-35—69, while Sikes played 35-35—70.

January, striken by a stomach ailment, went two strokes over par 5 on the first hole, but he hit a hot stroke for four straight birdies beginning at the fourth hole.

Celtics Hope To Rival Sox Dream

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics, seeking to rival the 1967 Impossible Dream of the neighboring Red Sox, and the well rested Los Angeles Lakers open the National Basketball Association's championship finals Sunday at the Boston Garden.

The Celtics were rated solid favorites for the opener in the wake of a sports miracle—winning three straight games to overcome a 3-1 deficit against the mighty Philadelphia 76ers.

"We haven't won anything yet," Boston player-Coach Bill Russell reminded his charges after a 30-minute closed practice Saturday. "Beating Philadelphia was a great thing, but we haven't won anything yet. We still need four victories against Los Angeles."

Russell called the unexpected workout only a few hours after the Celtics won the Eastern Division playoffs with a drama-packed 100-96 victory in the seventh and deciding game at Philadelphia.

Most observers figured the Celtics merely wanted to loosen up after the rugged series with Wilt Chamberlain & Co., who had won the regular season Eastern title a second straight year.

The Celtics were reported in top shape, although weary, except for veteran cornerman Tom Sanders, who missed the last two games against Philadelphia because of a back muscle spasms.

The Celtics had only one thing on their minds—regaining the NBA title they surrendered to Philadelphia last season after an unprecedented eight-year reign.

The Lakers, who had a practice scheduled at nearby Melrose High School after their arrival late Saturday, are fit and ready to go after winning the Western Division playoffs by sweeping four games from the San Francisco Warriors.

Spurs Meet A Former Neighbor

The Kansas City Spurs will meet a former neighbor today at Municipal Stadium, the Chicago Mustangs. This will be the first meeting for the two clubs. Last year each played in a separate league.

In fact, it was the leagues' merger which sent the Chicago Spurs to Mid-America looking for a new home. In Kansas City, they found one.

The Spurs last week scored their first goal of the season, earning them a tie with the Houston Stars. The score came off the foot of striker Erick Barber at the 66-minute mark after the Spurs had fallen behind on a Houston marker by Pepe Dill.

The field promises to be heavy following the weekend rains, which could slow Willie Roy, Eric Barber and company, the swifties of Kansas City.

The Chicago Mustangs will be a completely new club, as last year the USA League stocked its franchises with whole foreign squads.

The Spurs todate show a record of one loss and last week's tie, good for three points in the standings. Houston leads the Gulf Division, followed by St. Louis, Kansas City, then Dallas. The Gulf Division plays in the Western Zone of the North American Professional Soccer League.

Kirby, Shane Will Renew a Rivalry

Bobby Shane

Nature Boy Kirby

The bitter rivalry that exists between talented Bobby Shane and Natureboy Kirby will flare anew on Tuesday's professional wrestling program at Convention Hall.

The 222-pound Shane has agreed to a return with the arrogant Indianapolis heavyweight, with the provision that there be no time limit, no disqualification.

After dropping two close decisions to Kirby, Shane managed to get the nod in a jolting "death match" two weeks ago in the same arena.

Ever since that showdown, Kirby has complained that he was short-changed by Referee Dick Moody. He feels Moody did not protect him properly when he was locked in the ropes. When Moody moved to release him, Kirby dropped to the floor and hit his head. His temporary immobility led to his defeat, be contends.

Ever willing to accomodate an opponent, Shane agreed to the return, but it was at his insistence the time limit and disqualification rules be waived.

Scheduled for the first time at Sedalia is a five-man midget battle royal. Participating will be Lord Littlebrook, Cowboy Lang, Little Bruiser, Wee Willie Wilson and Mighty Atom.

Each will post $50 as an entry fee and the winner will get it all. Elimination will occur whenever a contestant is tossed over the top rope onto the arena floor.

A newcomer to the area, Baron Von Heisinger, 6-3 and 255, will tackle Ronnie Etchison in another event.

Other matches on the five-event card pit Littlebrook and Little Bruiser, Wilson and Mighty Atom.

Khoury Girls Softball Tryouts Set

Try-outs for Khoury Girls Softball have been set for Saturday, April 27, at the girl's softball fields in Centennial Park. Early reports indicate an increase in players for this season. All girls will be given every opportunity in these tryouts.

The Debutante and Sophomore Divisions' tryouts will be from 9 a.m. to 12-noon.

Chic and Petite divisions will be from 1 p.m. until 4 p.m.

In case of rain Saturday, the divisions will all report for tryouts at 1 p.m. on Sunday.

Only girls who are scheduled to be moving up in the divisions or new players need to attend the practice sessions. All girls desiring to play Khoury softball should complete their registration cards.

Managers who have not been contacted about their teams and wish to keep the teams from last year should contact Mrs. Janet Shelledy at TA 7-0015. Mrs. Shelledy announced there is a definite need for additional managers this year in all divisions.

A board meeting for the Khoury Girls League is scheduled for Thursday night, April 25th, at the North Highway 65 at 7:30 p.m.

Sub-District Tourney Begins At Liberty

Monday a sub-district baseball tournament begins at Liberty Park as Green Ridge encounters Lincoln High School at 2 p.m., with the winner facing Sedalia Tuesday at 2 p.m.

In the lower bracket of sub-district play, Northwest High School of Hughesville draws a first round bye like Smith-Cotton, and will play the winner of Monday's 3:30 p.m. game between Pilot Grove and New Franklin Tuesday at 3:30.

Finals will be held Thursday, April 25.

Dancer's Image Survives Claim To Win Race

NEW YORK (AP) — With Bobby Ussery using his whip liberally, Dancer's Image overtook Iron Ruler just inside the sixteenth pole and then survived a foul claim to win the $113,500 Wood Memorial at Aqueduct Saturday.

The second straight stakes victory for Peter Fuller's son of Native Dancer marked him as a major contender for the May 4 Kentucky Derby.

Sandino Hernandez, aboard Out Of The Way who finished fourth, claimed Ussery and Dancer's Image interferred with his mount with three-eighths left in the 1⅛-mile Derby test. But the stewards disallowed the claim.

Dancer's Image, who won the Governor's Gold Cup at Bowie in his previous outing, stepped the distance in 1:49 in moving a step closer to the Derby, a race in which his sire suffered his only defeat in 22 races.

October House Farm's Iron Ruler finished second by three-quarters of a length and was seven lengths better than the show horse, Max Gluck's Verbatim, the winner of last Saturday's one-mile Gotham.

Sent off as the favorite by the crowd of 55,716, Dancer's Image paid $6.40, $3.60 and $2.60. Iron Ruler returned $3.40 and $2.40 and Verbatim $2.40.

Sir Beau finished fifth, in the field of 10 3-year-olds.

The victory, fourth in seven starts this year and ninth in 16 career outings, boosted the winner's career bankroll to $236,636.

ATLANTA (AP) — A. J. "Apple Juice" Vaughn, the Atlanta Falcons' 12th-round draft choice and holder of the NCAA single game total offense record, has signed his 1968 contract, the National Football League club announced Saturday.

Colts Will Not Sell Season Tickets

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Colts announced Saturday there will be no public sale of season tickets this year.

The National Football League team said more than 50,000 season ticket holders had renewed their applications. The capacity of Memorial Stadium is about 60,000, and the remaining seats will be sold on a single game basis starting Aug. 15.

In Reality Passes Three To Win Race

BOWIE, Md. (AP) — Heavily favored In Reality, rated just off the pace, passed three rivals in the stretch and won the $111,100 John B. Campbell Handicap at Bowie Saturday in near-record time.

The 4-year-old son of Intentionally, carrying 122 pounds, five more than last week while setting the track record for 1 and 1-16 miles, whipped Barb's Delight by one length in 1:42, two-fifths of a second above his own mark.

Jockey Chuck Baltazar, who took over from regular rider Earlie Fires in the record performance last week, again was aboard as he captured his first $100,000 race.

The victory was worth $72,215 for Mrs. Frances A. Genter and pushed In Reality's lifetime earnings to $689,419.

Overprotective Parent Lives in Secret Fear

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: Because of a bad flu attack two years ago I keep my 10-year-old boy home from school when he seems to be getting a cold. His teacher has been very snippy about his absences. Last week, because I kept him at home for four days because of nasal congestion, she got the school nurse to phone me and say she was competent to judge if he should be in school or not. Did you ever hear of such gall in your life? I don't know what this country's coming to . . .

ANSWER: Why didn't you ask your doctor to give this child a flu shot last October?

Know what we "overprotecuve" parents are? We are none of the bad things child psychologists say we are. All we are are people who are so accustomed to blame for what we didn't do that we don't even know we live in constant terror of it. So that "bad flu" your child contracted two years ago was your fault, wasn't it? Of course it was. And any new cold he contracts will be your fault, too. Sure it will. It will accuse you of being a bad, neglectful mother. It won't tell you how you've been bad. It will just damn you as bad—and you won't even know sentence has been passed upon you.

Which is why you didn't get this child a flu shot.

For we "overprotective" parents have lived with blame so long we wouldn't know what to do without it. Thus, the notion that we can secure ourselves against it just cannot occur to us. We just cannot arrange for that flu shot that would get us off the hook of accusation for any new flu the child contracts.

And if anybody wants to know why I'm so nasty to child psychologists, their measures to us "overprotective" parents is one of my reasons.

Because we were children once ourselves. Children who, via adult frowns, nagging, isolation by disapproval or punishment, were most competently convinced that blame was our destiny. If the little sister we pushed away from our paper-dolls fell down, her fall was our fault, not the consequence of her aggression on our property. If we grew restive when mommy was shopping, it wasn't because mommy's indecision bored us but because we were "selfish" or "impatient." So we grew up (and couldn't help it) with the conviction that just about anything that inconvenienced anybody was evidence of our "badness."

Next year rush this kid to your doctor and get him that flu shot. Get it, not for his welfare, but for your own. You did not give this child the flu two years ago. He got it for himself. And any new cold he gets he gets for himself, too.

Tax Hike Logjam Gets Prod From Two Areas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pressure is building on Congress to break a logjam and enact President Johnson's proposed income tax hike amid some signs it may be moving—although not so fast as the administration would like.

Chairman William McChesney Martin Jr. of the Federal Reserve Board applied new pressure Friday by coupling a plea for immediate action on the tax boost with a warning that "we are in the midst of the worst financial crisis we have had since 1931."

Martin spoke to the American Society of Newspaper Editors as the effects of a one-half per cent raise, to 5½ per cent, in the rediscount rate were spreading over the country in the form of increased interest costs for bank loans.

The stock market, already shaken by the rediscount rate increase, which tends to slow business and private spending, reacted to Martin's speech with a sharp drop.

At his home in Kensett, Ark., Chairman Wilbur D. Mills of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee—where the proposed 10 per cent income tax surcharge has been bottled up for months—refused comment on the rediscount move and the statements of Martin and others.

The interest hike was generally attributed by the Federal Reserve Board to inaction on the tax bill.

Mills did say, however, that he plans to resume discussions with the House Appropriations Committee when he returns to Capitol Hill Monday.

Heads of the taxing and spending committees have been trying to work out a combination of tax increases and limitations on government spending during the year beginning July 1 and in future years as well. Mills again, in an Arkansas speech, insisted on holding the line against increased outlays.

Congressional sources ,said the immediate difficulty is on the spending side, with the Appropriations Committee so far unable to agree on budget cuts as deep as Mills advocates. The administration, which for a time had resisted too severe trimming of the budget, was reported resigned now to going along with almost anything Congress might exact as the price of a tax increase.

The White House said Friday the rediscount boost "underscores the urgency of action on the tax bill."

Mrs. Kenneth Cripe

Miss Sherelene Bidstrup Is Bride of Kenneth Cripe

Seven branch candelabra containing lighted white candles entwined with smilax illumined the Epworth Methodist Church for the wedding of Miss Sherelene Bidstrup, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bidstrup, 104 East 24th Street, and Kenneth Cripe, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Cripe, LaMonte. The Rev. Phillip Bowline officiated at the half past seven ceremony on the evening of Saturday, April 6.

Smilax, tied with white satin bows, garlanded the chancel rail and white satin bows marked the family pews. An arrangement of white gladioli and mums adorned the altar.

Miss Linda Lewis, organist, played numerous wedding selections preceding the ceremony and accompanied Mrs. Russel Rhoads as she sang "O Promise Me," and Mr. Weldel Smith as he sang "I Love Thee." She also accompanied a duet by Mrs. Rhoads and Mr. Smith, "Wedding Prayer."

Presented in marriage and escorted down the aisle by her father, the bride chose an empire A-line gown of veiled silk organza. Styled with a scoop neck and long tapering sleeves, a tracery of Alencon lace, embroidered with bugle beads and pearls, indicated the lifted waist and formed a long applique on the sleeves. A detachable silk train extended from the back waist a court length. The bride's headdress was a miniature cluster of lace petals outlined in pearls which held her triple pouf veil of soft silk illusion. The bridal flowers were a cascade of scented red Happiness roses.

Mrs. Wilma Wasson, Sedalia, sister of the bride was matron of honor. She wore a floor length gown of deep rose linen and carried a colonial bouquet of pink Charm carnations and red Sweetheart roses. Miss Clarinda Whittle and Mrs. Robert Smith, Sedalia, bridesmaids, wore street length dresses made of pink linen and carried colonial bouquets of pink Charm carnations intermingled with Happiness roses.

The flower girl, Christian Wasson, niece of the bride, wore a street length dress of pink linen, styled identical to the bridesmaids. The ring bearer, Kevil Fisher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Delmer Fisher, LaMonte, accompanied the flower girl.

Mr. Gaylon Wiley, LaMonte, acted as best man and Tobey Blakely, LaMonte, Barry Bidstrup, Wayne Bidstrup, brothers of the bride, Sedalia, and Dennis Delph, served as groomsmen. Ushers were Dennis Delph and Wayne Bidstrup.

Following the ceremony the reception was held at the Fellowship Hall of the church with approximately 175 guests in attendance. Punch and traditional wedding cake were served. The receiving line formed before a setting of candelabra and floral floor standards.

The bridal table, covered with a floor length cloth of tiered bridal lace over soft pink satin, enhanced with smilax and tied with pink satin bows, centered a triple tiered cake decorated in pink and white. Topping the cake were a miniature bride and groom. Silver candelabra holding white candles were highlighted on the bride's table. The cake was made and given to the couple by Mrs. Paul Bidstrup, cousin of the bride.

Mrs. Guy Woolery, Miss Shirley Edwards and Mrs. Paul Bidstrup, Sedalia, served cake and punch. Judy Templeton was in charge of the guest book and Leslie and Louise Stockman received the gifts.

The mother of the bride chose a two piece green Italian knit suit with matching accessories and a small green hat. Her corsage was white gardenias surrounded by green accents and green cut velvet ribbon. The mother of the groom selected a two piece suit of vanilla brocade accented with turquoise accessories. She wore a gardenia corsage surrounded with cut velvet ribbon.

For a short trip to the Lake of the Ozarks the bride selected a white linen coat and dress ensemble, with hot pink embroidery trim. Her accessories were also of white and her corsage was red roses, a gift from her mother.

The bride is a 1967 Smith-Cotton graduate and is presently employed at the Stylarama Beauty Salon. The groom is a 1964 LaMonte graduate and is presently employed at Quality Body Shop on Highway 65.

The couple will be at home April 22 at Wilson Trailer Court.

A rehearsal dinner was given April 5 by Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Cripe, parents of the groom. The dinner was held at the Fellowship Hall of Epworth Methodist Church.

A miscellaneous shower was given to the bride-elect by Miss Shirley Edwards and Mrs. Wilma Wasson on Feb. 15.

A personal shower was given by Mrs. J. M. McCubbin on Feb. 26 to honor the bride-to-be.

On March 22 a miscellaneous shower was given by Mrs. W. E. Cripe, LaMonte.

Sherry Echols, David Belsha Read Vows in April Ceremony

Miss Sherry Gail Echols, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Echols, Huntsville, Ala., former Sedalians, and Mr. David Belsha, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse L. Blesha, Huntsville, Ala., formerly of Sedalia, read nuptial vows at 7 o'clock the evening of Friday, April 5 at the Plainview Church of Christ, Huntsville, Ala.

The Rev. Billy Bell officiated at the ceremony.

The bride was escorted and given in marriage by her father. An empire A-line gown of peau de soie was her selection. A lencon lace motis of roses and orange blossoms were appliqued on the bodice with lacy sleeves tapering to the wrist. Scattered motifs were also appliqued on the skirt. A halo band appliqued with orange blossoms and seed pearls held her full length illusion veil. Her flowers were a bouquet of all white carnations entwined with a white orchid.

Miss Kathy Echols, sister of the bride, maid of honor, wore a yellow peau de soie empire A-line floor length dress with a yellow velvet ribbon at the waits. A cluster of roses also in yellow held her veil and she carried a fragrant colonial bouquet of carnations.

Miss Brenda Ellett, Miss Teresa McBride, and Miss Diane Belsha, bridesmaids, wore floor length A-line gowns of peau de soie with soft mint green bodices above deep green skirts. A velvet ribbon accented the empire waists. the attendants' headdresses were hand made rose clusters with matching veils, and they wore pearl necklaces which were gifts from the bride.

The wedding gown, veil, attendants dresses and headpieces were made by the groom's mother.

The Rev. Cecil Swinehart officiated for the daughter of Mrs. Golder L. Howard, California, and the late Mr. Howard, California, and the late Mr. Howard, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elio Origlia, Grenoble, France.

Miss Brenda Jo Howard, sister of the bride, maid of honor, wore a street length sheath of sping green linen with nylon lace overlay banded by a daisy chain. The gown was styled with a high neckline and sleeveless bodice, accented by two small bows in back. Her green nylon net veil was secured by a green velvet bow. She held a nosegay of large fresh white mums entwined with greenery, pink and white net lace and streamers.

James Davidson, Columbia, was best man. Guests were seated by David Lawson and James Lawson, cousins of the bride, California.

The mother of the bride chose a navy jacket dress with navy and white accessories and a white mum corsage.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Fellowship Hall of the church.

Mrs. Kenneth Marshall, California, presided at the guest book and Mrs. Gary Sparks, Kansas City, was at the gift table. Miss Nancy Sue Hagman, Springfield, Ill., cousin of the bride, assisted generally.

The serving table was covered with a lace cloth, centered with a three tier pedestal wedding cake adorned in pink roses and encircled by mums and greenery. An arrangement of pink mums and lilies also decorated the table. Floral decorations were a gift from Mrs. Flo McFadden.

Serving and pouring at the bride's table were Mrs. Raymond Lawson, California, and Mrs. Marvin G. Howard, aunts of the bride.

After a brief wedding trip of undisclosed destination, the couple will reside in Columbia.

The bride attended Culver-Stockton College, Canton, for two years, and spent her junior year abroad at the University of Grenoble, Grenoble, France. She will grate from the University of Missouri in August.

The groom graduated from Ecole A. Vaucanson, Grenoble, in 1964. He has worked as an electrician in France, and presently is employed in Columbia.

Time for Bridal Pot 'n' Pan Quiz

By AILEEN SNODDY
NEA Home Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—A wise bride-to-be avoids boasting of her kitchen talents unless she is prepared to back her pretty words with a casserole, properly done steak or mom's apple pie. It is a danger she sidesteps as graciously as possible. And for good reason.

Having judged several "homemaking" contests for high school and college students it is obvious to me that cooking still defies a large number of pretty young things . . . until the showdown.

This comes quickly. Once the glamorous trappings of a wedding are secure in the memory book, a bride discovers there is more to showing off her china, crystal and silver than arranging it decoratively on a table. Properly prepared food helps as an accompaniment. For this you start from scratch.

Buying cookware and kitchen utensils may sound mundane for the bride-to-be. It can be great fun, even for those less than at home before the range. A good cookbook and basic equipment help build confidence.

When buying your first kitchen equipment, select tools and utensils that will last. Wait until you are more experienced before filling empty drawer spots with gadgets. Buy equipment now to suit your budget, abilities, needs and storage space.

A home economist for a housewares manufacturer (Rubbermaid) devotes a major part of her time planning and outfitting workable kitchens and suggests starting with the work areas—these are around the refrigerator, range and sink. You'll need equipment at each spot and much of it wise shower guests will provide. To start a dream kitchen a bride needs:

REFRIGERATOR center: One rubber plate and bowl scraper, two wooden spoons, three measuring cups (standard dry), two liquid measuring cups (1-cup, 4-cup), kitchen shears, egg beater, one set standard measuring spoons, one food grater, one nest mixing bowls (4 sizes), one rolling pin, two casseroles with covers (1½ quarts, 3 quarts), one funnel, one cutting board, one flour sifter.

RANGE CENTER: One coffee maker, one teakettle, one potato masher, one double-boiler with lid (1½-quart), three sauce pans with lids (1-, 2-, 3-quart sizes), two fry pans (7-8-inch, 9-10 inch), two cookie sheets (15½x12), shallow baking pan, small roasting pan with lid, serving utensils (slotted vegetable spoon, large serving spoon, cake turner, spatula, long-handled two-tined fork, tongs, pancake turner), pie plate (9-inch), muffin pan (6-12 cups).

SINK CENTER: Vegetable brush, gelatin mold, strainer, sharp knives for paring, slicing and carving, bottle opener, can opener, colander, sink strainer, covered garbage pail, pot scraper, sponges, dish towels, dish drainer and drainboard tray, plate scraper, sink stopper or dishpan.

PARTY-BOUND are shrimp cocktails served by young bride who learned early secret of using one item for many purposes. Casual plastic cup, originally for drinks, holds shrimp cocktails for first guests. She also uses the inexpensive items for dips, nuts and such.

Depending upon what her kitchen cabinets offer in storage, a bride will find divided trays for cutlery and utensils, vegetable bins, dinnerware racks, bread boxes or canister sets realistic space-savers.

When buying your pots and pans you will find that aluminum has the best heat conductivity which makes you a better cook since things don't tend to burn and stick. Whatever the material, when selecting your saucepans, skillet and dutch oven, choose those with tight-fitting lids, easy-to-hold handles and knobs firmly attached to the utensil and with level flat bottoms for best contact with the range surface.

Cooking, the young bride soon learns, is more complex than merely mixing ingredients. Like golf, tennis or motoring the right equipment makes the difference between enjoyment and drudgery.

AD RESPONSE

While women find out about a product most often by television, they are more influenced to buy on recommendations of friends or relatives or by receiving a free sample. And they are more likely to buy a new product displayed in a store with a special offer than without.

CRISP COOKING

Newest use for dad's propane torch (which is so safe it is accepted for mailing by the U.S. Post Office) is to brown a meringue, crisp steaks or singe fowl and game.

SENATORS POLLED ON VIETNAM VIEWS

By TOM TIEDE
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—The morale of American combat forces is perhaps the only aspect of the Vietnam war that is not open to argument. Morale is excellent.

That's the unanimous opinion of 25 members of Congress who have visited Southeast Asia and who have responded to a Newspaper Enterprise Association survey of their impressions.

Not one of the lawmakers has any doubt of GI spirit.

Rep. John Erlenborn of Illinois says it is "high." Sen. Mike Maroney of Oklahoma says it is "very high." And a North Carolinian in a burst of enthusiasm outdoes everyone by saying it is "amazingly high."

"I do think the soldiers would rather be home," reflects freshman Rep. James Smith, "but I didn't see any of them moping about it."

The question of U.S. troop morale was one of 18 Vietnam queries and it was the only one that legislators agreed on.

They are split over South Vietnamese morale. Nine believe the South's resolve to be acceptable, nine others believe it not acceptable and seven refuse to comment.

As for enemy morale, nine say it is high, two say it is low and 14 others say they have no idea what it is. A Midwest senator said, "I did not talk with the enemy."

Over-all, one West Coaster concludes, "I would say that, right now, the morale in South Vietnam is probably higher than it is here at home."

The officials polled are, of course, only part of the total congressional contingent to visit the war. The estimate is that nearly 600 legislative trips have been made there in the past three years.

But those surveyed are representative of the total. The poll was conducted at random. Hawks, doves, owls, every cut of feather is represented.

Using their combined itineraries as a guide, the average lawmaker polled visited the war at least once in the last two years. And several of them have been frequent visitors to Southeast Asia over the decade.

In 75 per cent of the cases the legislators flew to Vietnam commercially, often paying for the trips privately. Only five of those questioned traveled entirely by military means.

The officials spent an average of one week in Vietnam, most of them talking with both U.S. and Vietnamese combatants and most of them spending at least part of their journeys in the Vietnam boondocks.

"My purpose was twofold," explains one respondent. "One, to talk with men from my state; two, to get a better idea of what's going on."

In general, most of the 25 feel they got what they were after. Most agree that their questions to U.S. war participants were answered satisfactorily. And most believe they were allowed to move about freely.

Some, however, heavily criticize South Vietnamese officials for, as one of them (a southerner) puts it: "being pretty good with the bull."

Eight visitors say their questions to Viet leaders were answered shallowly and only partially. One congressman complains of being "led around" and three others lament their contact with Vietnamese civilians.

Without doubt, a few legislators surveyed are harshly resentful of the Vietnamese war commitment. A Georgian calls the Viets "inscrutable Asiatics" and pointedly wonders about the merits of that nation's involvement.

Eighteen legislators report they observed instances of Vietnamese corruption, presumably centered around the ever-flourishing Saigon black market. Most of the lawmakers roundly denounce the practice.

Corruption, says one Iowan, "is absolutely rampant."

And an Indiana congressman, calling for increased U.S. watchdogging, says: "We simply aren't doing enough to discourage the black markets, etc."

Likewise, a few wonder aloud about U.S. efforts at pacifying South Viets. Four think the nation is "unfriendly," five doubt Saigon sincerity and one argues that anti-Americanism is growing.

"Mostly," sighs one critic, the Vietnamese just "ignored me."

But if the legislative survey mirrors some deep concern with South Vietnamese people, it does not show the same worry about U.S. personnel.

By and large, the 25 polled support the idea that U.S. representatives, military and civilian, are more or less efficient and hard working.

The only real complaint against U.S. forces is in the area of logistics. Six lawmakers say they saw hints of U.S. equipment shortages. One specific mention: a lack of small GI sidearms.

This compassionate treatment of the individual American in Vietnam does not extend itself to the over-all U.S. effort there. The survey reveals strong doubts about "policy" matters.

Seven legislators report their constituent mail is for the war, seven say their mail is against the war and seven say it is evenly mixed.

As to their own Viet feelings, the lawmakers largely refrain from editorializing. Their only irrevocable conviction is that, at this time anyway, Vietnam is neither a good place to live nor to visit.

Of the 25, only one man says he would like to return.

New Method In Artificial Heart Pumps

BOSTON (AP) — A team of surgeons and engineers said Friday they have developed a way to line heart-assist pumps for animals that lets blood flow without the clotting that bedevils artificial heart research.

Tiny bristles of Dacron applied to the interior of the pumps provide a fuzzy lining that forms a base for a natural coating to grow on, Dr. William F. Bernhard of Children's Hospital in Boston told a meeting of the American Surgical Association.

Blood fragments latch onto the bristles and gradually fuse, he said, forming a coating "that looks for all the world like endothelium," the natural inner coating for the circulatory system.

The flowing blood thus "is looking at its own proteins," he said, instead of battering against a hard surface that breaks up blood cells, causing clots.

He based his report on lined heart-assist pumps that have been implanted in a total of 15 calves from a week to 120 days.

The calves have received anticoagulant drugs at the start, he said, but recent tests in which the drugs were stopped after a natural coating began to form have given "very promising" indications that untreated blood will not clot over long periods.

Bernhard said application to humans would be some time away and the decision would be made by the federal government's National Heart Institute, which is financing the research.

T. R. Johnson of Thermo Electron Engineering Corp., which is doing the technical work, said in an interview the pumps are made of polyurethane, a synthetic plastic, and the bristle lining is inexpensively applied.

Past Buries 'Westerns'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Those TV western stars of yesterday where have they gone?

What's happened to the heroes of the old action-packed, cliche-ridden television oaters gunned down by today's adult Westerns, which are more interested in character development than action?

Defeated without a showdown gunfight by "Gunsmoke", "Wyatt Earp," "Bonanza" and the like, what's happened to the old favorites? Gene Autry. Roy Rogers. Gabby Hayes. Hopalong Cassidy. The Lone Ranger.

Some, at least have gone thisaway:

Multimillionaire Autry, 60, sits at a big desk next to a scowling wooden Indian and makes more millions.

Rogers, 56, and his wife Dale Evans, 55, still break records in personal appearances. Back at Roy's museum in Apple Valley, tourists gawk at thousands of Rogers' treasures, including his stuffed horse Trigger and his first, hock-shop guitar.

Bill Williams, who was TV's Kit Carson, collects $6,000-a-month rentals on business properties he builds.

William Boyd, 72, TV's first great idol, Hopalong Cassidy, lives with his wife in retirement in Southern California.

And Gail Davis, blonde, fortyish and still beautiful, awaits a call from some producer daring enough to forget her image as TV's first Western heroine, Annie Oakley.

In 1959 there were 32 Western series on the air. Many fell by the wayside—to a low of five in 1963-65 and this season's 11.

The old juvenile Westerns loosed multimillion-dollar sales of kid paraphernalia, especially enriching Autry, "Hopalong" Boyd and Fess "Davy Crockett" Parker.

Horse operas, both movie and TV, had their chases, gunfights, saloon brawls, stagecoach robberies and cattle stampedes. The trade papers called them oaters, shoot-'em-ups, giddyappers, mesa melodramas and thatawayers.

There were the comic sidekicks: Smiley Burnette. Fuzzy Knight. Whiskery George "Gabby" Hayes, now 82, widowed several years and bedridden.

And the lines that became famous cliches: "They went thataway." "Head 'em off at the pass!"

"Another was, 'You stay here with six good men and I'll take the buckboard into town,'" says Pat Buttram, who sidekicked with Autry in 150 TV episodes and 60 movies.

Buttram, now in his third season as a country con man on TV's "Green Acres," recalls: "There were two kinds of heavies. The smooth heavy ran the saloon. The dog heavy would tell his henchmen, 'Get rid of him. Make it look like an accident.'"

The Lone Ranger's companion, Tonto, was played by Jay Silverheels, a full-blooded Mohawk, now 50 and living in the San Fernando Valley with his wife.

TV's Lone Ranger—the series had begun on radio in 1933 with other actors—was Clayton Moore.

The onetime circus aerialist and film stuntman is a ruddy 6-feet-1 and 185 pounds, with brilliant blue eyes and iron-gray hair. He won't tell his age—"the Lone Ranger is ageless"—and is never photographed without his narrow black mask because: "I don't like to spoil the image for the kids."

Gene Autry, at 180 pounds, is now 20 pounds paunchier and jowlier than when he acted in movies and TV films.

A onetime railroad telegrapher and guitar- strumming singer, he was encouraged by Will Rogers to go into show business and introduced the singing Western.

After 90 movies and recordings that sold 25 million copies, he has investments in radio and TV stations, hotels, baseball's California Angels, their new stadium, ranches and music publishing.

He last acted 10 years ago. Will he again? "Oh, gosh, I doubt it. I don't think I have the time. You go from one career to another."

William Boyd bought TV rights in the 1940s to 100 horse operas in which he had starred as Hopalong Cassidy. They went on the air in 1948 and made Hoppy nationally famous and very rich.

The series still shows in many countries, Boyd boomed by phone from his home in Palm Desert. He declined an interview visit—"The past has had it."

Like the real Annie Oakley, her TV portrayer, Gail Davis, was a sharpshooter. On personal appearances she could shoot out a lighted candle at 40 feet.

"Annie Oakley" ran in 1953-60 and Gail, previously Autry's leading lady in 15 movies, hasn't done much since.

"A few commercials and an Andy Griffith. I've called producers and directors, but I'm still identified as Annie Oakley. I can't blame them except that I'm supposed to be an actress—and I've cut off Annie's pigtails."

Bill Williams, 52, the Kit Carson of 150 TV episodes in 1950-55, got into movies in 1943 and the same year started building commercial buildings, now 40 in all.

Portly, scraggly-haired Andy Devine, 62, played Guy Madison's clumsy deputy in 118 episodes of "Wild Bill Hickok" in the 1950s.

Career-wise, Devine recently did a Doris Day picture, "The Ballad of Josie," and: "I do a lot of summer theater every year. I've played Captain Andy in 'Showboat' about 400 times in 10 years."

Between assignments, which include TV commercials, he operates his voice-radio gear. On the air he renders his call letters, WB6RER as "WBy Red-Eyed Rooster."

"I've made some wonderful friends out of ham radio," he said. "I got on the handicap net—shut-ins and people in hospitals all over the country—and maybe bring a little happiness into their lives," he said in his well known croaking-violin tones.

The three traditional Christian creeds are the Apostles' Creed, the Nicene Creed and the Athanasian Creed.

Consistent Loser

William Jennings Bryan, the "silver-tongued" orator of U. S. politics, was defeated in almost every office he sought. In one presidential campaign, he traveled over 18,000 miles and made 600 speeches in 27 different states.

Stresses Lives, Not US Goods

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy called Friday for a redirection of American industry "not simply to improve the quality of our goods, but the quality of our lives."

Campaigning for California's rich lode of 174 delegates to the Democratic National Convention, the presidential contender proposed "a new fusion between the genius of private technology and the resources of public authority."

The New York senator's second visit as a candidate in California's June 4 primary was dramatically different from the triumphal, frenzied greeting sections of the state gave him shortly after he became a contender a month ago.

His reception from some 11,000 students on the sunlit campus of Fresno State College in California's agricultural country was friendly and attentive. But it had none of the animated response that marked his earlier visit to the coast.

The Kennedy organization seemed to be making little attempt to whip up the kind of public reaction of which the state is capable. His Los Angeles speech was before the Town Hall, a gathering of business and civic leaders.

Kennedy's support from the business community has always been less than enthusiastic.

Urging a turning of American technological skill toward the urgent social needs of the nation, Kennedy proposed an extension of existing industrial capacities to "those areas where jobs are now nonexistent, and where men long languish on a welfare dole."

He said the nation must employ "challenging, original techniques in the most urgent of our social tasks," such as the use of computers in public schools to help underprivileged children catch up.

He said industry would not be undertaking social reform "as a matter of selflessness or charity." It has prospered, he said, "because of America's commitment to space and defense."

"That same kind of prosperity will inevitably be a part of a national commitment to a quality of life" and may be even more secure because "our effort in space can be subject to political cutback, but in the task of rebuilding America, the only likelihood is greater effort," he said.

Sedalian Honored

William V. Thorp, right, president, Thorp Moving and Storage, Sedalia, is recipient of Bell-Ringer trophy for outstanding sales achievement in 1967 as exclusive agent for Mayflower long-distance moving service. Making the presentation as a highlight of the 36th annual meeting of the Mayflower Warehousemen's Association in Hollywood, Fla., is Leon Hough, vice president, Aero Mayflower Transit Company, Indianapolis-based long-distance household goods mover. The Sedalia firm was honored for increasing long-distance moving sales 20 per cent or more during 1967 and helping Transit Company ring up record sales of $77,112,464.

Vanishing Act Puts Youth in Hospital

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — The neighborhood kids wouldn't believe Luis Roberto Costa, 17, could make things disappear, so he proved it. They brought marbles and he placed them one by one in his mouth, rolling his tongue to show they were gone. They added up to 38 and a trip to a hospital where Luis Roberto awaits eventualities, without complaint except that he's hungry. A little girl wept. Five of the marbles were hers and she wanted them back.

Something of a Change

LONDON (AP) — The city fathers of Exmouth were embarrassed but not desolate when beholders opened a creditability gap over their Come-to-Exmouth travel poster showing a sun-tanned beach beauty lolling supposedly on the English Devon coast. They admitted the photographed blonde was an American model, the scenery Mediterranean-Tunisian, but town clerk Sidney Sheriff shrugged it off with: "It was a bit of a change from our usual poster of red cliffs and nothing else."

VAN NUYS, Calif.—(NEA)—Throughout history, there has been a silver lining to the dark cloud of war—science has generally advanced more rapidly under the impetus of war. The urgent need for victory has spurred on the scientific budgets and great discoveries have resulted.

So far, the Vietnam war has been the exception, according to some civilian scientists. There has been no startling breakthrough.

What is encouraging is that much of the work now being done in military and space research has commercial applications, as well. Sidney Sternberg, general manager of RCA's West Coast Division, which is involved in the development and manufacture of defense electronic products, says one significant item is airborne weather radar. This was first used in military aircraft, but now almost all commercial and private planes carry it. It enables the pilot, while aloft, to be aware of the weather for many miles around him.

Airborne distance measuring equipment is another outgrowth of military research. With this device, a pilot has a continuing read-out of his distance from any target, or airport.

At the moment, airborne computers are strictly a military item. AIDS—Airborne Integrated Data System—permits the crew of a plane to keep an eye on hundreds of the plane's components. The computer has preset norms for each item and any deviation automatically sounds an alarm.

The commercial applications of AIDS reportedly are numerous. Hospitals, for example, could use it to keep track of patients. Preset norms of temperature, blood pressure and so on could be established and the computer would monitor the patient and let the staff know if there are any significant changes.

Another computer, first built to keep track of everything in orbit, so that NASA would know immediately if any new object began flying about the earth, has also switched to civilian duty. It is now called the Electronic Switching System, and RCA builds them for people like airlines, who use it to keep track of flight plan messages.

Sternberg believes the coming computer civilization will require computers with personalities, to avoid a completely impersonal culture. The first step is being taken by RCA's teaching machine. When switched on, it says: "What is your name?" and the pupil types "My name is John."

Then the computer says, "Good morning, John."

Transcendental Trend

NEW DELHI (AP) — The new popularization of "transcendental" philosophy by yoga cultists echoes through the mundane spheres of India. An airline advertises transcendental flights, a transcendental fashion parade was put on and a cloth designer has a transcendental sari motif for the popular Indian's women's garment.

Great Britain Banking on Jenkins

By TOM A. CULLEN
European Staff Correspondent

LONDON — (NEA) — The most important politician in Britain today is undoubtedly Roy Jenkins who, as chancellor of the exchequer, has the unenviable job of persuading the nation to take a 2 per cent cut in its living standards this year.

The mild-looking, 47-year-old Welshman with horn-rimmed glasses knows that the central bankers, the so-called "gnomes of Zurich," will be watching him. So will the economic experts in Washington. So will 23 million British wage earners.

Jenkins has no gimmicks up his sleeve. He offers another round of "blood, sweat, tears and toil."

Wages are to remain frozen, purchase taxes increased, and new taxes imposed on tobacco, liquor, gasoline and motor vehicle licenses. To make the wage freeze easier to swallow for the trade unions, Jenkins has also imposed a surtax on investment income.

Failure of these measures could result in a catastrophic collapse of Britain's trade and in unemployment rising to 2.5 million, Jenkins warns. "If we fail, we all go back to the 1930s," he has told the Trade Union Congress.

ROY JENKINS, Britain's chancellor of the exchequer, is a connoisseur of good food and wine who's designed a belt-tightening program that will slash England's living standards. Strangely enough, the British people seem to be on his side.

After watching him steer his tough budget through Parliament, a majority of Britons seem confident that Jenkins can do the job. He is being hailed as the "Iron Chancellor," compared to Gladstone, and there is even a "Jenkins for Prime Minister" boom under way.

The irony is that three years ago Roy Jenkins was virtually unknown in politics, and what was known about him was generally not liked. In Labor party circles he has generally been considered a hybrid.

Although he is a coal miner's son, Jenkins speaks with a plummy, Oxford accent. Although he professes to have the workers' interests at heart, he is a connoisseur of good food and wine. Such contradictions do not go down well with the Labor party in welfare state Britain.

Jenkins took a first-class honors degree in economics at Oxford University, where his classmates included Denis Healey, the minister of defense, and Edward Heath, leader of the Conservative party. He was elected to Parliament at the age of 28 and quickly distinguished himself for his debating skill.

Today Jenkins is one of the few successes of which Britain's Labor government can boast since it came back to power in 1964. As minister of aviation he showed that he could be ruthless by wielding the ax on costly aircraft projects. As home secretary he pushed through important reforms in the fields of prison administration, divorce, abortion and criminal law. He is considered to be a man of action.

Arguably Jenkins should be the most unpopular politician in Britain, perhaps even accused of taking food out of a baby's mouth and watering the worker's beer. But the nation's mood is such that it is ready to take its medicine, however bitter.

Jenkins seems to have caught the national mood when he declared recently, "I believe the British people are ready to make the necessary sacrifices as long as they are told the facts about the economic situation."

This has been interpreted here as a slap at Prime Minister Wilson, who has been accused of withholding the facts for fear of increasing his own unpopularity.

"We are always being told that heaven is around the corner, but we never get to the corner," George Lowthian, president of the Building Trade Workers Union, complained recently.

"You won't hear anything about heaven from me," Jenkins promises, "but there will be hell to pay if my program fails."

This is the plain talk Britons, at least in their present mood, appreciate.

Hire Mercenaries

LONDON (AP) — A battalion of the famous Gurkha Rifles from Nepal who have served the British as eager mercenary troops for generations is being hired out for defense of Brunei, a North Borneo protectorate-sultanate, the Commonwealth Office announced. The Sultan of Brunei has agreed to take over the Gurkha troop maintenance costs until 1971, paying about $2.4 million a year out of his oil revenues, to keep them in Brunei beyond Britain's withdrawal in a general economic cutback.

Murder Bears Gangland Marks

NEW YORK (AP) — An ex-convict with Cosa Nostra connections was machine gunned in a Brooklyn luncheonette Friday, in a killing that bore all the earmarks of an organized gangland rubout.

The victim, Cologero Lo Cicero, 64, known in the underworld as "Charlie the Sidge," was sipping coffee when a masked man entered the luncheonette, leveled a submachine gun and let got with eight bursts. Then the killer fled.

Police sought to determine if Lo Cicero's slaying marked the opening of a second front in a two-year gang war for control of the Cosa Nostra family of Joseph "Joe Bananas" Bonanno, which already has claimed five lives.

Lo Cicero was said by police to be a lieutenant in the family headed by Joseph Colombo, hitherto not known to be involved in the Bonanno family warfare. However, there has been bad blood in the past between Colombo and Bonanno.

Moreover, the picture was clouded by the possibility of a Lo Cicero blood family feud.

In 1965, Richard Lo Cicero, 20, a grandnephew of Cologero, reported he was waylaid and robbed of $370,862 in securities while acting as a messenger for a Wall Street firm.

The youth testified before a grand jury and was slated to serve as the state's star witness against six persons accused of receiving the stolen securities—including two of his uncles, the sons of Cologero.

On April 5, 1967, Richard Lo Cicero's body was found face down in a Brooklyn driveway, punctured with scores of stab wounds and the stomach ripped open. The trial of his uncles and the others still is pending.

Cologero Lo Cicero's police record included a weapons conviction in 1925, and a homicide charge that was dismissed in the same year. He served eight months for a weapons violation in 1938.

Joe Bonanno headed one of New York's five Cosa Nostra families when he disappeared Oct. 21, 1964, the victim of an alleged gangland kidnaping. Prior to his disappearance, Joseph Colombo reportedly had tipped off the Cosa Nostra hierarchy that Bonanno was plotting to rub out three rival mob leaders.

The kidnaping followed, but Bonanno was said to have fast-talked his captors into abandoning their plan to kill him.

During Bonanno's absence from the scene, Gasperino Di Gregorio reportedly took over his family.

However, Bonanno's son, Salvatore "Bill" Bonanno, retained the allegiance of some members of the mob. His faction was involved in a gunfight with the Di Gregorio clique Jan. 28, 1966. No one was hurt, but what came to be known as the Banana war was on.

On May 17, 1966, Joe Bonanno reappeared and reportedly launched an effort to regain full control of his organization. Di Gregorio, meanwhile, had been sidelined by illness and the leadership of his faction reportediy went to Paul Sciacca, 59, a former Bonanno henchman.

Last November, three Sciacca aides were machine gunned to death in a Queens restaurant. On March 11, Sam Perrone, 38, bodyguard and chauffeur to Bill Bonanno, was shot 10 times and killed.

Another victim of the gang war was Michael Consolo, murdered April 1. He was described as a former Bonanno henchman who had defected to Sciacca.

U.S. World Leadership Linked to Food Production

By ROGER DOUGHTY
NEA Staff Correspondent

TALLAHASSEE, Fla.—(NEA)—Half the world's people may go to bed hungry, but most of us are sure we'll never find out how that other half lives. Doyle Conner isn't so sure.

"Things will probably never get that bad," says Conner, the commissioner of the Department of Agriculture for the State of Florida and a lifelong farmer, "but a shortage of labor and increased competition from abroad threatens to make the United States a deficit food producing country."

That prospect may not sound as frightening as war in Asia, riots in the cities and the attack on the dollar, but Conner wouldn't bet on that either. According to him, "No country with deficit food production has even been able to retain world leadership. A nation that's forced to trade hard goods for food, such as Britain is today, is in the worst kind of trouble. Even if foreign competition resulted in a cheaper product for the consumer, it would be the most expensive saving—the worst bargain—that the American people ever realized."

Conner has the credentials to sound off on his favorite subject. He's a lot more than a pea-picker who wandered into politics for lack of a better row to hoe.

He was something of a boy wonder in 1950 when, as a 20-year-old college sophomore, he won election to the Florida House of Representatives. He gained re-election through 1960 when he became Florida's first elected commissioner of agriculture. He was re-elected without opposition for a two-year term in 1964 and for a four-year term, again without opposition, in 1966. Along the way he was named one of the 10 outstanding young men in the nation by the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce.

When he isn't running an insurance and real estate business, the commissioner is very much a farmer, and he's proud to be one. He's fond of pointing out that agriculture brings far more money into Florida than does tourism.

"We've made more progress in farming during the past years than we have in the exploration of outer space," the University of Florida graduate says, "but we're in our time of greatest crisis, too. The 'ifs' are starting to appear.

"The dollar burden," Conner reasons, "has finally caught up with us. We can no longer afford to export our food and technical knowledge, just giving it away, without importing something in return."

DOYLE CONNER
'. . . our time of greatest crisis . . .'

Conner, a Democrat, like all the other members of the Florida cabinet, with the exception of Gov. Claude Kirk, admits he doesn't have the answers.

"People a lot smarter than I am are sitting around scratching their heads," he says, "but it's no secret that the formula we've been using has been getting us in trouble."

While the "Kennedy round" lowered tariffs on just about everything imaginable and has been widely hailed as the greatest step toward free trade in history, Conner can find little for farmers to be happy about.

"If we're going to be competitive and maintain quality," he says, "we're going to have to take a much more realistic look at our tariff structure. We have the lowest tariffs on food products in the world. We've been importing Australian beef practically duty-free while it's virtually impossible to export breeding stock to Australia in return. In order to do that we have to send the stock to England, where it's placed in quarantine for six months before it can be shipped on to Australia.

"Speaking of Australia," Conner continues, "more than five million acres in that country are presently under the domination of Florida owners who tell me they've found more inducement in farming there than they have at home. They feel that the way things are now, Uncle Sam is giving everybody else a 30-yard lead in the 100-yard dash. With that kind of edge and their own know-how, Australia or Japan could replace us as the Big Daddy of agriculture in just a few years."

Conner's alarm about the labor situation is shared by most farmers. The government's crackdown on imported labor has hurt many growers, who claim they can't find enough domestic workers willing to do the job.

Maybe, Conner speculates, automation will find the answer. "In New York," he says, "I've seen automation make us six times as efficient at unloading trucks at produce markets. Maybe there's a way automation can make our farms six times as efficient as well, but I haven't seen it yet."

Whatever the answer, the commissioner feels we're running out of time. "I liken the situation to driving a car," he says. "The temperature indicator is on 'danger', but it's not too late to pull over and cool things off. If we don't, the old car isn't going to run much farther."

This Week in Business

NEW YORK (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board stepped on the brakes again this past week in another effort to cool the overheating economy.

The board's approval of a 5½ per cent discount rate came soon after the government announced a record dollar increase in the nation's economy during the first three months of the year. Industrial output also hit a new high in March.

The new rate, up from 5 per cent, was effective Friday. It was the second increase in the discount rate by the board in little more than a month.

Banks across the nation, which generally approved the increase as an inflation-fighting measure, moved quickly to boost their interest rates from 6 to 6½ per cent.

The Commerce Department said the gross national product—the value of all goods and services produced in the economy—made a $20 billion first quarter advance to a record annual rate of $827.3 billion. The department said prices during the quarter rose at an annual rate of 4 per cent.

A healthy chunk of the first quarter advance was eaten by inflation. Officials said $12 billion represented real growth in the economy but the other $8 billion represented price increases.

A forward push in its index of industrial production was reported by the Federal Reserve Board. The board said the index hit a record 162.1 per cent of the 1957-59 base period or six-tenths of one percentage point above February.

The board said this second straight monthly advance was led partly by increased domestic automobile output.

The Commerce Department also reported housing starts in March were down 3.5 per cent after two months of increases although building permits for future construction edged up.

Record or improved earnings were reported by several of the nation's major firms. Among them were Uniroyal, Inc., and B.F. Goodrich Co., two of the five largest rubber firms, and Chrysler Corp.

Uniroyal said its first quarter income of $12 million, or 87 cents a share, was up 26.3 per cent from the year earlier quarter. Goodrich said its income for the three months was $10,921,594, or $1.19 a share — an increase of 16.7 per cent.

Chrysler's first quarter earnings were $69.3 million, or $1.49 a share, compared with $18.2 million, or 40 cents a share, for the 1967 January-March quarter. Chrysler said this year's first three months topped by 11 per cent the old record of $62.5 million set in the opening quarter of 1966.

Republic Steel earnings were up 38.6 per cent and sales were up 18 per cent from the year earlier quarter.

Chairman H.I. Romnes of American Telephone & Telegraph Co. said per share earnings in March were "as good as we've ever had; at least 10 per cent better than in March 1967."

In other developments:

The Interstate Commerce Commission refused to order the nation's railroads to provide more information to back up their request for a general increase in freight rates. The railroads have asked for increases totaling about $461 million a year.

New car sales in the first third of April fell 6.8 per cent from the daily sales rate a year earlier.

Steel production last week totaled 2,893,000 tons, up from 2,885,000 tons the previous week.

The Commerce Department said personal income continued to advance in March but at a slower rate than in February.

Say What You Mean, Man-of-Words Urges

By AILEEN SNODDY

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The person who walks away from any chat wondering whether he said what he meant to say can take a cue from a leading word expert. Often the wrong word shades the meaning.

Bringing communication to the nub of the situation, semanticist S. I. Hayakawa says after several decades of writing and teaching, "I still worry what the hell to do with Freshman English."

Although he now teaches one day a week as professor of English and speech at San Francisco State College, Dr. Hayakawa shares his years of word-sponging research throughout the week in cross-country speeches and seminars. His weekly lecture schedule makes presidential aspirants look like resident soapbox orators. His topics often are more provocative than promising to install a new sewage system in Evansville, Ind., where his late father-in-law was editor of The Press.

Hayakawa weaves his semantics lectures around such things as sex, African art, urban crises and race riots. He deeply feels that in the resolution of the white and black problem "communication is only an instrument. You can't substitute it for action."

Unlike many who enjoy words, their use and their meaning as much as strawberry shortcake with whipped cream, he does not overwhelm another with his comprehensive knowledge.

In fact, while discussing his latest publishing venture, "Funk & Wagnalls Modern Guide to Synonyms and Related Words," Hayakawa took notes, too, listing words brought out in the interview that do not appear in the reference work. These included "orgy," "bash" and "barrelhouse."

All popped up when discussing how an aficiando strengthens a scholarly work. For example, Hayakawa is a jazz buff (not in the book) and says he rewrote the jazz section because "he knew more about the history of jazz music than those who originally wrote it." His special feeling for this U.S. music form is interesting since he is Canadian. From his British Columbia heritage he drew upon English terms because he felt he "was more sensitive to British elements in language than most Americans."

Hayakawa likes to relate language to what's happening today. For this reason he would like to see more young persons get into semantics earlier in their collegiate careers. Semantics isn't isolated, he points out. It deals with people and events. "Human problems," he explains, "are recurrent. We have no new problems except through technology. Our problem now is that we see it (i.e., war) in our living rooms via TV. We're going through a visual rather than an audio or language change."

Hayakawa says Hitler and Roosevelt were responsible for his entering semantics. "I found the use of propaganda and advertising at the time frightening. Radio was my medium."

He explains his response to radio is similar to Marshall McLuhan's response to television. However, like many others, he feels McLuhan, author of "Understanding Media," is obscure.

"His prose style is baffling. It certainly is not," Hayakawa says, "what one learns of a well-constructed sentence in Freshman English. His ideas are interesting but I feel he laps you with words instead of a progression of thought."

Whatever the battle of quips among semanticists, Hayakawa finds his field intriguing and hopes this spills over to all who use English.

English itself he finds complex and more fascinating and pretty than French. "I've never considered French a lovely language."

English, however, tends "to embroil foreign words that mean the same and it doesn't matter that we have a term that fits from another foreign language. We add words we really don't need. For example, appetizer, hor d'oeuvres, snack, pupu or plains, bush, steppe and desert."

While not lecturing and meeting his "appalling amount of work," he likes to fence, fish near his Mill Valley, Calif., home and collect African sculpture. Although he didn't discuss men's fashions, Hayakawa wore a properly "in" olive check suit, yellow shirt, olive, red and blue rep tie. The impression watching him sip his breakfast Coke is that he revels in personal research in such areas as the paragraphs he calls "social history" that include "hippie" or sitting before a cracked-mirror bar down South where "barrelhouse" was born.

Knob Noster Project To Clean Town

Next week has been designated as Annual Clean-Up, Paint-Up, and Fix-Up Week in Knob Noster, according to Adolf Jarolim, chief of the Knob Noster Volunteer Fire Department. The annual project is being held jointly with Whiteman Air Force Base and Warrensburg.

Mrs. Morris Rigdon, Knob Noster Community Betterment chairman, urged all organizations and citizens of the town to join in a united effort to beautify the city.

To aid in the clean-up effort, the city has arranged to have extra trash picked up for residents of the city. Those desiring this service should call the City Hall, Logan 3-2233 any time during the week. Fire Chief Jarolim stressed that the trash should be in containers and not piled loosely at the curb. He also stated that the fire department will assist anyone who has lots that need supervised burning off.

City residents can burn trash providing a closed container is used and the fire is not within 50 feet of any building.

The Boardwalk is still the stellar attraction of Atlantic City.

Voters in Indiana Urged To Stop RFK, McCarthy

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — The chairman of Indiana's Democratic party said Friday Hoosiers must defeat Sens. Robert Kennedy and Eugene McCarthy in the state primary May 7 to prove the presidency can not be purchased.

"This is the testing ground of whether or not the presidency of the United States can be bought," said Gordon St. Angelo. "If it isn't stopped here, it will never be stopped."

St. Angelo charged that the organizations of Kennedy and McCarthy are spending $2 million each in an attempt to win Indiana's primary. The third Democratic candidate is Gov. Roger D. Branigin as a favorite son.

"From this point on, if it isn't stopped in Indiana by Hoosiers, it won't ever be stopped," St. Angelo said. "And I'm talking about the future of this nation."

St. Angelo was one of three Democratic district chairmen who spearheaded the presidential campaign of John F. Kennedy in 1960.

"John Kennedy is not running and neither of the other two (Robert Kennedy or McCarthy) can replace him," St. Angelo said.

St. Angelo said the Branigin for President organization's budget of $100,000 to $150,000 was being threatened by "too much Hollywood" from the other candidates.

He referred to a blitz by television star Garry Moore, actor Paul Newman and several Kennedys on behalf of the two senators.

St. Angelo said he had decided to carry the threat of "buying the presidency" throughout Indiana, even if he had to resign as state chairman if Gov. Branigin wouldn't approve his plan.

"I think they (Kennedy and McCarthy) indirectly have caused much of this civil disorder. They've forced President Johnson to show his sincerity to end the war by saying he will not be a candidate," St. Angelo said.

Claim Bengal Tiger Is a Very Nice Pet

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Tammy is a 110-pound Bengal tiger and a gentle host at children's pajama parties.

But the Dade County sheriff's office says William Seefeldt, the owner, will have to cage his 10-month-old pet. The cage is necessary to qualify for the permit to keep her.

"She is house broken with seven generations of captivity behind her," Seefeldt said Thursday. "If they put her in a cage away from people she would go wild."

Tammy was born in a litter of five tiny tigers at the county's Crandon Park Zoo. The zoo traded the excess cubs to an animal dealer and Seefeldt bought Tammy from the dealer. He didn't reveal the price but Dr. Gordon Hubbell, superintendent of the zoo, said tiger prices range from about $600 to $1,200.

Seefeldt said he bought Tammy as followup to other unusual pets— a bear, falcon, fox and skunk.

Seefeldt has had Tammy six months and she's a plaything for the neighborhood children. This week 25 of them held a pajama party with Tammy as guest of honor. She even visiited Hialeah High Schooll.

"The adult neighbors are afraid," said Hubbell.

Thursday, the sheriff's deputies pointed to the statute requiring permits for carnivorous animals including tigers. They said Seefeldt would get the permit when Tammy got a cage.

Seefeldt said he would take his case to court. Dr. Hubbell, who recommended that Tammy be caged, said he had never testified against a tiger but felt the ruling would support the sheriff.

In general, length of life for rabbits is not more than 10 or 12 years, even when the species is protected.

Tools May Reveal Western Man's Age

By DICK KLEINER
NEA Hollywood Correspondent

YERMO, Calif.—(NEA)—There's an air of quiet excitement and scientific anticipation at the dig. The archeologists think they have uncovered the earliest evidence of man's presence in the western hemisphere.

Heretofore, all authorities felt that no manlike creature lived in this hemisphere before 20,000 years ago—at least, none had left any sign of life. But, at the Calico Mountains archeological excavation, there is something.

It was the internationally famous archeologist, Dr. Louis S. B. Leakey, who told the San Bernardino County Museum team where to dig.

The museum scientists had found some rocks that looked suspiciously like early man had chipped away at them. Leakey looked and was impressed. He visited the site—a dreary, rocky, dusty series of low hills at the eastern foot of the Calico Mountains in the Mojave Desert, 10 miles east of Barstow. He pointed to one particular spot and said, "Dig here."

For four years now, the museum has been digging. Inch by inch, they have carefully chipped away the soil, examined every pebble, classified every rock.

The National Geographic Society became interested in the work, and now cosponsors it. Jealously guarding their prerogative, the Society permits no cameras on the site, and the press is discouraged.

But museum officials believe that many of the rock tools found buried in the soil here are more than 20,000 years old. No organic material has been uncovered—no bone fragments or direct artifacts—but they still hope.

The rock tools are, to the archeologists, proof enough. There are ways they can tell that nature could not have fashioned the edges, the way they are formed. They are sure man made them.

Exact dating is, so far, impossible. But the archeologists are certain that these particular rock tools are much older than the previously accepted 20,000 year maximum.

The area is part of what geologists call an "alluvial fan"—an area where once a great river deposited material in a fanlike shape. Thousands of years ago, the river ceased flowing, the fan was cut off, and only the alluvium remained.

From the top of the hills, you can see miles into the desert, and you can make out the shoreline of the prehistoric Manix Lake. Now the landscape, devoid of any living thing, looks like the moon.

Here, seven days a week, the museum team digs away. Most of the team are volunteers—students and retired men and dedicated housewives—who chip away at the ground with tiny dental picks and linoleum knives. Every bit of soil and rock loosened is put in pails, hauled to the surface and studied by the scientists. It is all labelled as to the depth it was found.

While, officially, the museum says that "any statement yet about the archeological significance or age of the site would be premature," unofficially the team is bursting with excitement.

They think they have uncovered the most thrilling news in their field ever to be found in this hemisphere.

Lights Brighten Outdoor Living

By MR. FIX

A growing trend toward outdoor living, with patios, special furniture and barbecues, should also call for more outdoor light. With so much invested in all of these conveniences, it seems wise to extend their use into the darker hours.

Lighting outdoors should be carefully planned. A light bulb here and there will not do. There are larger areas to cover, certain hazards to consider.

Outdoor lighting should be planned with safety in mind. It need not be terribly bright, so long as it is used wisely.

Where hazards are greatest, lights should be brightest. It is more important to have bright lights along outdoor steps than a walk.

Use lights in areas with greatest usage. Front walks as against a driveway, for example. Also consider the color of the paving. Light-colored paving would need less light than blacktop.

If you are close to the house, you are more likely to need light than at a distance. Stepping from a brightly lighted interior, it may take a moment or two for your eyes to adjust to the darkness. In that moment you could have an accident.

In the house, many lamps sit on tables and give off light at eye level. Indoors, that's all right. Outdoors, avoid eye-level lighting. Place it either quite high to illuminate a large area, or quite low and concentrate it where it is needed most.

Lights placed high should be floodlights. Arrange them so that the circles of light overlap. Floodlight bulbs in adjustable fixtures are easy to use for such installations.

Lights only two or three feet off the ground, such as those used to illuminate a path, should be shielded so that the light is aimed down. Space them so that there are no totally black areas.

Lights right at walk level must be even closer, about eight feet apart.

Outdoor steps should be lighted, even if nothing else is. A floodlight mounted high will take care of it. If you use lights at low level, you will need several.

The most important part of the driveway to illuminate is the area right in front of the garage. This is where you get in and out of and load and unload the car. If the garage light is not sufficient, hang a floodlight on the outside of the garage or in a nearby tree.

Before going in for a permanent installation, experiment with light placement by running weatherproof extension cords around the yard. Use weatherproof lights and sockets as well.

Permanent installation is best done by burying the electric cable. There are types that can be buried directly, saving you the cost of separate conduit, if the local code permits. You will need conduit where the cable comes up through the ground.

If you are not familiar with wiring procedures, you will want an electrician to make the final installation. If you know a little about the procedure, perhaps you could hire an electrician to set up the new circuit and junction box at the house and run some or all of the wiring while you install the fixtures only.

Whatever method you use, one thing you can do for yourself is the advance planning.

Former Disneylander Treats Teens Fairly

TOMMY WALKER, who is worried that the two million teen-agers within the radius of 40 miles of Anaheim, Calif., don't have enough to do, poses with one of the two million while plugging his solution, his Teen Time U.S.A. fair. He hopes to make it a permanent thing.

By DICK KLEINER
West Coast Correspondent

ANAHEIM, Calif.—(NEA)—What is there for teen-agers to do? Tommy Walker wonders. When he answered his own question—not very much—he set about to fill the gap.

Walker, formerly the director of entertainment at Disneyland, poured most of his life savings into Teen Time U.S.A., a fair and exposition just for teen-agers. It premiered recently for a nine-day run at the Anaheim Convention Center, just down the road from Disneyland.

He hopes that eventually it will be a permanent thing, giving teen-agers—he has three teen-age daughters, himself, so he knows the problem—someplace to go, something to do.

"There is," he says, "a dire need to do something for the teen-agers. They need, and they want, wholesome activity. And there are two million teen-agers within a radius of 40 miles of Anaheim."

There is, of course, a profit motive in Walker's thinking, too. He has compiled some impressive statistics relating to the teen-agers, as an economic force in this country. Among them:

Teens spend $18 billion a year—more than the Atomic Energy Commission, NASA, the Treasury Department and the Veterans Administration combined. Teens buy 20 per cent of all clothes, 27 per cent of all cosmetics, 85 per cent of all single records, 50 per cent of all movie tickets, and they own 9 per cent of all new cars. Forty per cent of all teen-agers have their own charge accounts, and almost 40 per cent are married before their 20th birthday.

Walker's statistics—and Walker himself—have impressed big business so much that he was able to line up a potent list of firms for Teen Time U.S.A.—auto manufacturers, food companies, soft drinks, record players, musical instruments, department stores, bathing suits, even a beauty college.

But he has turned down people who wanted to sell dirty buttons and T-shirts with risque drawings and sayings on them.

"I wanted the fair to be clean and wholesome," he says.

The fair came up with 15 rides, a beauty queen contest (with the entrants all Southern California high school home-coming queens), a battle of the bands, a revue, midget auto racing, dancing and almost continuous rock 'n' roll concerts.

Such oddly-named units as Love, The Sunshine Company, Big Brother and The Holding Company, Iron Butterfly, James Cotton Blues Band, Electric Flag, Steppenwolf, Blue Cheer, The Nitty-Gritty Dirt Band and The American Breed all signed up to make sounds.

With his Disneyland experience as a guide, Walker knows how to control attendance. His policy is to let anybody in "who is neat and clean and wears shoes."

Nine days may be only a drop in the bucket, but it's a start. And, as Tommy Walker sees it, two million teen-agers can't be wrong.

Sweet Springs School Board Holds Meeting

The Sweet Springs Board of Education accepted bids for a new bus body and a chassis at a recent meeting. This year the body will be furnished by the Bluebird Bus Company. The chassis order was awarded to Berry Chevrolet Company.

The rest of the meeting was devoted to the hiring of school personnel for next year and hearing reports concerning the hearings held in Marshall and Lexington recently before the state reorganization committee.

It was the feeling of those who attended the hearings that the committee apparently had no opposition to the proposed reorganization between Sweet Springs and Concordia. It was given as Dr. Domain's thinking that that these schools delay application for reorganization until his committee has had a chance to finish their report in August. The decision as to whether to proceed or to wait, as Dr. Domain recommended, will be discussed with the committees appointed from both boards and their superintendents. Since these meetings were only hearings, there was no opinion expressed by the state committee. However, it is felt by those attending that the reorganization plan will meet with the favorable attention of the committee.

Teachers needed for next year and applications were discussed.

Meeting Attended By Medical Aides

Members of the Tri-County Medical Secretaries and Assistants Society from Sedalia, Warrensburg and Concorida held their April meeting in Knob Noster on April 15. President Emilie Brunjes presided over the meeting.

Marian Dotson, education chairman from Concorida, introduced the speaker, Mrs. Erica Baetler of Concorida, who showed some of her ceramic art made from clay native to Concordia.

The following members are attending the Missouri State Medical Secretaries and Assistants Society annual convention in Joplin: Mrs. Marian Dotson, Concordia Emilie Brunjes, and Ada Potter Sedalia; Jessie Thompson, Laura Cooper, and Dorothy Bailey, Warrensburg.

Cultivate Reading Habit

Cultivation of the reading habit and use of it in our public libraries has limitless rewards in personal benefits. This axiom is appropriate to reconsider on the occasion of the observance of National Library Week which begins today.

But with all the distractions of this modern era, do people find time to read? Statistics are abundant to prove that people read more books, more newspapers, more magazines than ever before.

All of these are available in modern libraries such as Sedalia has.

This week is a proper time for parents and teachers to emphasize to children consistent use of the materials in the libraries and thus develop lifetime reading habits. Libraries are a basic tool of learning for everyone and are a priceless asset to a nation if leadership is to prevail in a complex and changing world.

The habit of reading provides both entertainment and development of the mind from the abundant sources available in modern libraries. Today they have available microfilm and recordings providing access to the wisdom which the human race has been able to accumulate since the dawn of recorded history.

Woe will be the day if declining interest in reading habits among adults and children should ever occur in this country. The cynics would have us believe that we are in such an era now, but this is a misconception.

Even so we must continue to promote wider use of books found in libraries—the cultural and educational meccas of progressive communities such as Sedalia.

Educated and intelligent people are as necessary to business, industry, government and the professions as all of them are necessary to our national growth and survival in a disturbed world.

To survive in freedom we must support our libraries as their constant development requires.

Sedalians can be proud of their recent acceptance of this responsibility by approving at the polls this month an increase in the library levy to provide expanded service.

In My Garden

God is in my garden,
I see Him every day,
In flowers of every color,
His magnificent display;
God is in my garden,
And my family is there, too,
All of my loved ones
Through flowers that they grew,
Purple lilacs and the white ones,
Peonies, red and pink,
I see the flowers they planted
And they're very close, I think;
Friends are in my garden,
I always see them there,
The pink rose on the trellis
Of one who loved to share;
The little blue plumbago,
The bright mimosa tree,
Friends whom the good Lord has called home
But still live on for me;
And blooming in my garden
Are flowers of living friends
For shade, for sun, divisions, seeds,
Of many color blends,
Shrubs, perennials, annuals,
From people I know care
For from their own nice gardens
They've given me a share;
My garden is a sacred place
A place I love to be
Because my loved ones and my friends
And God are always close to me.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Russians Not Enchanted With Nixon

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — With the United States facing one of the most crucial elections in years, this column will take a close look at the top candidates and analyze their views on peace, conflicts of interest, racial problems and the other big issues troubling the nation.

The leading Republican candidate is Richard Nixon and the most important problem on which he has promised to produce is peace.

Nixon announced on March 5, in New Hampshire, that if elected president he would end the war in Vietnam. When pressed for details he said he would do this by using the Russians. Following this he clammed up on the subject until his interview with the Christian Science Monitor, in which he elaborated somewhat by explaining that he would use the Russians to call a big-power conference.

However, Mr. Nixon overlooked two important points:

1. The Johnson administration has been trying for three years to persuade the Russians to help negotiate peace in Vietnam. They have consistently shied away. One reason the Russians are gun-shy is that the Chinese accuse them of being the stooges of the United States. Recently Moscow has been a bit more cooperative, but it's still a long way from cutting off supplies to Hanoi in order to induce peace.

2. Nixon is probably the one man in the United States least qualified to influence the Russians.

I know something about Nixon's standing with the Russians, having talked with Foreign Minister Gromyko and former Premier Nikita Khrushchev about him, together with other top Soviet leaders.

Mr. Khrushchev told me how he had done his best to defeat Nixon in the 1960 election, in which Nixon was running against John F. Kennedy:

"Just before the election," Khruschev said, "the American Ambassador came to see me and wanted me to release the American RB-47 Naval fliers as a gesture to show that our two countries could get along together. I said, 'No, this would just help Nixon, and we're voting for Kennedy.'

'And inasmuch as Kennedy won by a very narrow margin, we figure that we elected him."

—The Kitchen Debate—

Khruschev also told me about the so-called "kitchen debate" at the American Exposition in Moscow which Nixon publicized to his advantage in the United States. Khrushchev said that as he entered the American kitchen, he noticed a TV camera recording his and Nixon's movements.

"I wondered about it," said Khruschev, "but I didn't say anything. However, after my talk with Nixon was over we learned that the TV tape was rushed to the post office and back to the United States, where most of what I said was cut in order to make Nixon look good. It was then used for political purposes...."

The original uncensored debate was by no means in Nixon's favor. And the Russians didn't like the fact that the unfavorable portions were cut from the tape. They have long memories.

The Russians also have long memories over another incident which occurred when Nixon visited Moscow in the summer of 1959. Just before he arrived Congress had passed the so-called captive nations week resolution calling for the liberty of the "captive nations" of Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia, now under the Soviet Union.

Nixon volunteered the remark to Khrushchev that the Congress was "foolish" to pass this resolution.

"I knew Congress had just passed the resolution," Khrushchev told me, "but I wasn't planning to say anything about it. However, when Nixon brought it up and described Congress as 'foolish,' I asked him:

" 'Do you mean to call the members of Congress fools?'

" 'Oh no,' he said, very quickly."

—Two-Sided Nixon—

The Russians got the impression that Nixon was trying to be pro-Russia in Moscow and anti-Russia in the United States. They have respect for those who are vigorous in their opposition, but they don't respect those who try to be one thing to one man and another to another man. All in all, they just don't like Nixon.

Mr. Khrushchev is out of office now, but Gromyko is not; nor are the others who recall vividly the many years in which Nixon made political hay by castigating the Communist party. They remember when he was an eager-beaver member of the House un-American Activities Committee and made headlines by branding Alger Hiss a Communist. They don't consider Alger Hiss a Communist. But, regardless of that, they had no respect for Nixon's use of these tactics to make a name for himself. It was because he was considered an anti-Communist witch-hunter that friends of Gen. Eisenhower sold him to Ike as a vice presidential running mate.

The Russians have had thumbs down on Nixon ever since. It's highly doubtful they would be influenced at all by him in either calling a peace conference, pressuring Ho Chi Minh, or cooperating with him in any way.

A Jam Not for Eating

Statisticans predict that by 1970 something like 125 million automobiles, trucks, taxicabs and whatnot will be traveling our streets and highways.

An alarmed amateur mathematician has figured out that if all these vehicles should be on the road at the same time (and he insists it could happen any nice Sunday afternoon), it would be the equivalent of a traffic jam of 223 cars abreast every foot of the way from New York City to Miami, Fla.

Or a merry little swarm of 374 cars abreast all the way from Asheville, N.C., to Miami.*

So if you folks in New York City or Asheville, N.C., are planning on driving to Miami, you'd better get going before 1970. (This goes for residents of other cities, too.)

This is a public service announcement.

* Our statistician concedes he could be a few cars off in his projections. He says it's those little compacts that threw him.

TWENTY-YEARS AGO

Mrs. Chester A. Wright, 1500 West Broadway, who has served as chairman of the Sedalia and Pettis County women's divisions of the war savings committee, has been appointed an associate administrator of the Missouri staff. She will have supervision over the women's divisions in 17 counties.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Walter E. Staley, who for 25 years has been in the undertaking business in Sedalia, has sold the Staley Undertaking Company of which he is owner and manager, to R.M. Denbo. The latter comes to Sedalia from Maxwell, Kansas and with his family will reside in the residence adjoining the funeral home, 109 West Seventh street. Mr. Debo was formerly associated with the Gillespie Undertaking Co. Mr. Staley will now be associated with the Memorial Park Association and has removed his residence to 209 East Seventh street.

NINETY YEARS AGO

Talk about Tice's predictions and all kinds of signs, there is one thing that never fails to bring rain. When you see the business people of Ohio street erecting little mounds of mud in front of their buildings, you can bet your bottom dollar that it will rain within six hours.

Democrat Pickups

Mother just can't win. At least that seems to have been the consensus of those listening to a conversation between mother and son in the emergency room of the Bothwell Hospital.

Mark, is eight and a half years old, it seems was given his $1 allowance. A few minutes later he put up a howl for some doughnuts, with the result he won and his big brother David, who had just received his driver's license only a few weeks ago, was told to take him to Bing's. Also the route to take.

However, they deviated from the suggested route and drove over to Broadway, thence West only to meet disaster at the Warren avenue intersection.

"I guess I just had a premonition that something was going to happen," the mother said while little Mark lay on the emergency table. "I gave him his dollar and when he wanted doughnuts, I told him he had ice cream, cookies, etc., and didn't need doughnuts. But, he kept insisting and that's when I made my mistake, I gave in."

With this, Mark spoke up, "Mother if you had gone ahead and 'took' the dollar back when you gave it to me and I offered it back to you, this wouldn't have happened. We wouldn't have even gone after the doughnuts."

If Mark had gotten the doughnuts, and the accident then happened it would have been an effort for him to eat them because he had a cut on the inside of the lower lip. — DKS.

DAVID POLING
The Vista of Soul-Searching

An America Beautiful for All

America has had one of the most shocking periods in her national history. In little more than a week's time, the financial support for the dollar was subjected to the most severe pressure in world markets of exchange. Gold speculators brought the soundness of the dollar and its gold support to the brink of collapse. Only the concentrated efforts of a dozen nations, plus some clear thinking on behalf of Treasury officials, guided this event away from the chaos that seemed certain.

Soon after this, the President addressed the American community—and the whole world for that matter—and astonished his listeners with a positive Vietnam peace overture and the intention to withdraw from any campaign for re-election. It would seem hard to compress a more powerful impact upon the emotions of the people in this country.

The assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. followed this exhilarating presidential statement and the despair and distress of millions of people rocked the republic from sea to sea.

Not only had the moderate Negro community lost its most powerful spokesman but the Christian church around the world had lost one of its most articulate and persuasive preachers as well. He had become the gospel in action, the presence of truth in the corridors of hate, the advocate of love in a century soaked with violence, torture and war.

As terrible as this loss and as shameful as the act of murder, the people of this hour thought of another public figure, another sniper, another telescopic rifle. Not Memphis but Dallas. Not King but Kennedy. Another young father, another attractive and popular household figure. The same sickness and disgust has shaken us all over again, with sorrow deep and anger high and hopes so frightfully uncertain.

They say that Europe is worried about the sanity of America. Well, America is worried about her own mental and spiritual health, her destiny, and her regard for the success of her experiment in democracy.

But strangely and wonderfully, there is widespread, just a week later, new overtures of friendship, co-operation and understanding between the races. How else do you explain the masses of black and white walking and singing in parades of our cities and towns? How do you comprehend the thousands upon thousands of car and bus and truck headlights turned on across the land in honor of Dr. King? What reasons do you give for governors and mayors linking arms with the most militant black leaders and singing with tears streaming down their faces, "We Shall Overcome, We Shall Overcome"?

The feeling, after seven days, is that America is not beautiful unless it is pretty for black as well as white. There can be no shining seas unless there is sparkle for the kids of Harlem as well as those in Grosse Pointe. Spacious skies do belong to the young Negro who wants to be a pilot or the young Puerto Rican who wants to be an astronaut.

It seemed as if the whole American Constitution, Bill of Rights and Declaration of Independence suddenly were being put on the line to this present, living generation. Either we make it work or we will watch it burn.

I'm not so foolish or intoxicated by funeral rhetoric to think that the sweet life for all people, all colors, all religions, all nationalities is going to arrive around May 1. But I have witnessed soul-searching and soul-brother beginnings that may fulfill some of Dr. King's greatest aspirations. If that is true, then the dedication of his last book, "Why We Can't Wait," is much closer to reality.

To my children
Yolanda—Martin III—Dexter—Bernice for whom I dream that one day soon they will no longer be judged by the color of their skin but by the content of their character.

East was mighty proud of himself as he entered 200 points on his side of the ledger. He had won the first club and led a second club for South to ruff.

South had led a diamond to dummy's king and played the five of hearts. East had gone up with the ace and forced South with another club. South entered dummy with the ace of diamonds and led a heart to his king. This play was made to guard against the unlikely chance that East had started with the singleton ace of hearts.

This was unlikely because West's two no-trump call had been the unusual no-trump to ask for minor suits and he would not have made that bid with four hearts in his hand.

Anyway, South did lead hearts and rose with his king. That gave him five tricks in, and he still made three more trumps to go down one.

As we said before, East was mighty proud of himself. He chortled and said, "It took real courage to double three spades after you had shown a minor suit hand, and I sure defended the hand to the hilt."

South said nothing, but West came to life with a few choice comments. He started with: "There is a close line between courage and bravado. You did double three spades and you did set them one trick. On the other hand you might well have doubled them into game. Furthermore if you had just bid four clubs, the bidding would have been passed around to North. He would probably have doubled. If South left the double in, you might well have made your contract. In any event you would not have gone down more than one trick, but the chances are that South would not have stood for the double. He would have gone on to four spades and you could have doubled that and shown a real profit."

"Furthermore," South added, "There was no hurry about taking your ace of hearts. It wasn't going to get away from you. If you had just ducked, the chances are that South would have played his 10 and you would have collected 500 instead of 200."

The World Bank

By CYRENE DEAR

(This is the first of a series of articles on the International Bank of Reconstruction and Development, known as the World Bank. The World Bank officially came into existence in December 1945. Its new president is Robert S. McNamara, former Secretary of Defense. Affiliated with the World Bank are the International Development Association, known as I.D.A., and the International Finance Corporation, known as I.F.C. The offices of the World Bank group are located in four buildings at 1818 H Street and Pennsylvania Avenue.)

—O—

WASHINGTON, D. C. — "Robert S. McNamara, our new president, beat me to the front door of the World Bank building by about three minutes, his first day on the job," said William Bennett, the financial relations adviser of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development.

It had been rumored around the building that the former Secretary of Defense would be in his office at 8:45 a.m. Mr. Bennett said, "Most of us get to work pretty early anyway, so that won't change things very much."

Mr. McNamara spent his first few weeks getting acquainted with the executive staff. The World Bank has a Board of Governors composed of one member from each of the 107 countries which belong to this world-wide organization. The member is usually the treasurer of the country. Each government subscribes to the Bank's capital stock in accordance with its economic strength. The Board of Governors delegates most of its powers to twenty directors, consisting of five who represent the largest stockholders. They are the United States, the United Kingdom, France, Germany and India. These countries appoint their directors. The other fifteen are selected on a regional basis. The Board of Directors elect the president. There have been four presidents since the Bank was organized in 1945 and they have all been from the United States, since it is the largest stockholder.

Mr. McNamara was suggested by the former president, George D. Woods, but he was elected by the Board of Directors. He will have more clients now, because the Bank deals only with governments, but he will be supervising only 1600 people instead of several million as he did in the Pentagon. He will be spending only $11 billion in loans instead of $84 billion for defense. He will be better off financially, with a $40,000 annual tax free salary as contrasted with $35,000 minus taxes as Secretary of Defense. Also he will be in a money earning agency, since the World Bank receives at least 6.5 per cent on all loans to underdeveloped country governments. In 1967 the Bank earned $275 million in interest payments. As soon as a country is economically stable enough, it begins to pay back some of the principal.

The World Bank is a bank. Its officials are bankers and business executives. They are not diplomats, although diplomacy is a convenient accessory. The Bank makes loans to its member countries to foster their economic growth. About one third of its loans have been for developing electric power, another third for transportation. The balance has been used for agriculture, especially irrigation; industry, especially steel production; and for local finance companies, communication, education and water supply.

The Bank operates on three main principles: first, that the borrower must be in a position to repay the loan; second, that the project to be financed must be of such benefit to the economy as to justify the borrowing in foreign exchange in the amount required; and third, that the project itself is well planned and designed and feasible for execution.

The borrowing nation's bills are paid through a private banking system and always in foreign exchange, not in the currency of the borrower. Projects are always decided upon through competitive bidding. Mr. Bennett said, "We have not had a white elephant yet, because each project is carefully investigated by the World Bank staff before it is accepted for a loan. The project plans are also checked by consultants and local management."

The World Bank's money comes from the capital invested by its members. It also sells bonds and securities. The Bank serves as a bridge for the movement of private capital for international development.

Flighty Research

A biologist at the University of Colorado has received a $300 grant to conduct what is described as "a highly specialized study."

The purpose is to determine the "sex appeal" of the crimson markings on the red-wing blackbird.

The value of exhaustive research into human problems and characteristics has, of course, been long-established, and it is interesting to know that there are also studies which obviously are strictly for the birds.

US Flag Goes Up

A Russian crewman hoists the United States flag aloft the 209-foot Russian whaling vessel Druzhni after the ship dropped anchor in Los Angeles harbor to mark the first visit of a Russian ship since World War II. The Russian ship entered port flying only the Russian flag. The United States flag was donated by the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Bollard. The Russian ship stopped to take on supplies of fuel oil and fresh water. (UPI)

Nixon Comes On Strong For Editors

By JAMES R. POLK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon has won warm praise from the American Society of Newspaper Editors—a group that gave only perfunctory applause to Nelson A. Rockefeller the day before.

Editors interviewed at random following Nixon's Friday's appearance at the ASNE convention called the former vice president warm, witty and winning.

They voiced less kind words about the Thursday speech by Rockefeller, the New York governor and Nixon's potential rival for the Republican presidential nomination.

"Nixon made a much better impression here than Gov. Rockefeller," said Vermont Royster, editor of the Wall Street Journal. "I'm sure it's the sentiment of the editors generally—he was much more impressive."

Nixon stood behind a lone microphone on a short, red-carpeted runway raised above the luncheon tables. The setting had the air of a night club performance—and, in show business parlance, he wowed them.

The editors interrupted with solid applause more than a dozen times. They laughed frequently at his jests and at the end they accorded Nixon a lusty and lengthy standing ovation.

In contrast, Rockefeller's luncheon address on urban problems Thursday was digested in silence. The audience rose at the start, but not the finish, when the editors accorded him lukewarm applause.

"Most editors with whom I've talked found it disappointing," said John S. Knight, publisher of the Miami Herald.

Nixon called for a moratorium on Vietnam criticism to give President Johnson a free hand while trying to settle the war. He criticized what he termed unrealistic promises on urban problems. And he called for budget cuts to protect the dollar. But it wasn't as much what he said as how he said it.

Royster, one of the four editors on a panel that quizzed Nixon, compared the candidate of 1968 to the nominee of eight years ago and said:

"His manner has become easier. He still uses the debating devices, but in a smoother, better polished way. He is more mature, less abrasive."

Nixon was asked to describe "the new Nixon." He began:

"The new Nixon is older. He perhaps has acquired—I would hope—some more wisdom."

Then he swept into a series of anecdotes, telling of a teen-age girl who asked hom to autograph his picture and blurted out, "That's a wonderful picture of you, Mr. Nixon. It doesn't look like you at all."

In a two-minute reply to the question, Nixon had the editors laughing and applauding seven times.

Unlikely Revolution on Anguilla

By SID MOODY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

ANGUILLA (AP) — Robespierre would have loathed it. Mack Sennett would have loved it.

But few could argue that the revolution of this West Indian island of 6,000 souls is no less beguiling than its peacock-colored seas, its pillow-soft beaches and its countless dusty goats.

What else can one say of a rebellion that seeks DEpendence, not INdependence? Whose first shots were fired not over redcoats at Concord but beauty queens at the Community Center? Whose weaponry includes cannon from the Napoleonic wars as liable to blow up their gunners as the enemy? Whose constitution was written by a Harvard law professor on a borrowed typewriter probably last July 4 although no one seems sure? Whose budget is fleshed out by the aid of American foundations and stamp collectors? Whose army rallies under a flag that has three orange porpoises languidly circling on a field of white and azure?

The world may laugh, but if this be rebellion, Anguilla is making the most of it.

Anguilla is a flat island of 35 square miles known almost exclusively to the National Geographic Society and the Foreign Office in Britain which has run it for 300 years.

Because the nearest British possessions are the islands of St. Kitts and Nevis some 54 miles distant as the frigate bird flies, Anguilla always has been lumped administratively with them—to the constant indignation of the Anguillians.

In 1873 Britain federated its Leeward Islands in the Caribbean. Anguilla wasn't even mentioned in the act. One hundred islanders protested against being administered by Kittitians who "are utter strangers to us, ignorant of the community and careless of (our) wants." Anguillians argue that little has changed since on St. Kitts from whence British funds flowed and where the books were kept.

A year ago Britain, busy as a housewrecker dismantling the Empire, granted nominal independence to "The Associated State of St. Kitts, Nevis and Anguilla" and suddenly found itself a lion at bay by a mouse that roared. Anguilla thought the act, of which it didn't even see a copy until six weeks after it was signed, would give it internal administration.

But no such word came from St. Kitts' premier, Robert Bradshaw, a 51-year-old former sugar cane worker and labor leader who smoothes his bristling guardsman's moustache with a golden brush, likes fancy uniforms and enraged Anguilla, which has three miles of paved roads, by importing a yellow Rolls Royce to drive about St. Kitts.

To mollify Anguilla and get it in the merriment of statehood, Bradshaw sent over Miss St. Kitts and Miss Nevis shortly before the statehood act was to be signed a year ago. Instead of admiring the view, the Anguillians from the East End of the island, many of them light-skinned descendants of an Englishman named Webster who was shipwrecked there in the 17th century, descended on the Community Center and broke up the festivities. Anguilla's baker's dozen police force, most of them Kittians, dug up some tear gas somewhere and in turn broke up the mob.

They were the shots heard round the world of Anguilla.

Islanders began firing at night on the police station—aiming to miss but still make their point. Meanwhile, at a predawn ceremony, the warden or administrator of the island, Winston Byron, a Kittitian, stood at attention in his pajamas while the new statehood flag—a palm tree rampant on a field of yellow, green and blue—was raised. Some days later Byron, again in his pajamas, awoke to find his house in flames. He fled the island, reportedly still in his night clothes.

Anguilla's only commerce are a few stores, a salt extraction plant that employs about 30, a small lobster fleet that exports about a ton of shellfish a week via a plane from Puerto Rico and a little machine and electronics plant owned by Lewis Haskins, a venturesome Massachusetts Yankee who has become the Island's defense industry, repairing everything from Anguilla's prehistoric trucks to the water pump. In prerevolutionary days it might take weeks getting new parts from St. Kitts.

Anguilla also exports manpower. Almost all the island's able-bodied men leave after they get through school to work in Anguillian settlements in the American Virgin Islands, Perth Amboy, N.J., and Sough, England. The money they send back to their parents and wives—one estimate puts it at $1,000 a day—keeps the island going.

But it is the dream of every self-exiled Anguillian eventually to return home, build a home, soak up the sun and enough land to pass some on to his children. Which they do. It is an island of landowners. The homes they build are not Caribbean shanties but solid concrete houses with indoor plumbing that cost up to $20,000 and are owned outright. Mortgage is a foreign word here.

"By jove," said on English visitor after the "fracas." "This is a middle-class revolution." And so it is. The island had a Mental Health Association and a Shakespeare Society long before it ever heard a steel band.

Their revolution is a match for anything the Bard ever wrote, including the cast of characters it has attracted to the island. I t includes anthropologists, sociologists and every other "ologist" who measure blood lines, map out power lines and go home and write papers about their findings. There was an Oriental in kilts who wanted to start a free love colony; a man who offered to solve the island's problems in exchange for being named economics minister; an agent for a U.S. doctor who wanted to operate a machine he claims can cure all disease away from the veto of the American Medical Association.

More helpful have been a group of San Franciscans who shipped in some old Peruvian coins to help finance things in the beginning. But they, along with Fisher, Harvard's one-man constitutional convention, have faded into island history.

A West Indian development team is working up a plan for the island, and the Foreign Office, unbending ever so slightly, has sent a Tony Lee out to observe. Lee insists his presence does not change London's unrecognition of Anguillian undependence, but the islanders deem both the interim agreement and Lee's arrival as a double-barrelled whiff of grape at Bradhaw.

It is rumored that Britain, which hasn't sent a farthing to Anguilla since the "troubles," may come across with 50,000 pounds which would be all but recognition of recognition.

If she had her druthers, Anguilla probably would like some direct tie with Britain, although a similar arrangement with the British Virgin Islands or Canada has been suggested.

And if every one followed Treasurer Walter Hodge's advice to spend 12 per cent less this year, the projected $36,000 budget deficit will disappear and undependence would become an economic reality even without the help of donations that totalled over $40,000 last year.

Meanwhile, paving of the air strip is due to begin with the aid of Kittitian bulldozers stranded on Anguilla by the revolt.

Telephone equipment is soon to arrive, which would work a revolution of its own on an island whose East End doesn't always know what its West End is doing.

More road has been paved in the last six months than in the previous two years of Kittitian administration. Canada has donated a new water pump. Chief Executive Ronald Webster says running the government is no harder than running his store and the council has shown its mastery of basic economics by cutting the import duty on motor vehicles in half on the theory that more vehicles would be imported producing more tax income from gas sales—which is what happened. There are now 217 vehicles on Anguilla, all burning gas for undependence.

There are also some problems. Winston Browne, 20, languishes in jail because no one is sure who is authorized to try him. The Beacon, the island's new newspaper that is cranked out weekly on the mimeograph machine owned by Canon Guy Carleton, pastor of St. Mary's Anglican Church, says the council should publish its minutes and hold an election. And some people wonder why an island with only 50 Seventh Day Adventists should have four members of seven on the council.

Hugo Rey, a councilman, defended the body, saying its meetings really weren't that interesting, that the unopposition at last summer's unelection was tantamount to a vote. As for the Adventists, who would make a commotion when Ronald Webster, the George Washington of the "fracas," is one himself and he contributes generously from his own funds to the treasury and serves without pay?

Furthermore, why suspect skulduggery on an island whose paddy wagon is used, if at all, as a bus?

So Anguilla, a forgotten and flat ugly duckling among her lovely mountainous island neighbors such as St. Martin's and St. Bart's, keeps watch along her white sands for the so far nonexistent navy of St. Kitts.

British Legalize Abortions

By DAVID LANCASHIRE
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — After years of argument, widespread abortions will become legal in Britain—and free of charge—under a law that goes into force next Saturday. Medical authorities wonder whether the strained National Health Service will be able to cope with the demand.

Roman Catholic doctors and nurses have threatened to fight the new abortion act. Sir John Peel, president of the Royal College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, says: "We have a built-in dislike for doing this operation." The British Medical Association is advising its 67,000 member physicians to refuse to follow the law in full.

But to many an unwed mother or harried housewife, it appears, the abortion art is a blessed revolution for women's rights. Public opinion polls show an overwhelming majority of Britons favor easier abortion under the new law.

Medical circles are unwilling to venture a guess on how much it may swell the abortion rate. A sociologist at Hull University estimates 100,000 to 150,000 abortions already are being performed every year in Britain, most of them illegal.

Since 1938, when four members of the Elite Guards Regiment raped and impregnated a 14-year-old girl, abortions have been permitted here if the prospective mother's mental or physical health was considered in danger. But these women have gone to society doctors charging as much as 200 pounds, or $480. Abuses have been common.

Doctors often send patients to a psychiatrist, with advance coaching to say they are desperate enough to commit suicide. The psychiatrist recommends an abortion and the doctor performs it—under only a slight risk of prosecution.

The new act is aimed not at these doctors but at putting the illegal back-alley "abortion factories" out of business.

Under the law, pregnancies can be terminated free in the Health Service if the hospital involved agrees to perform the operation. Some have indicated they will not.

The new law allows an abortion if two qualified doctors agree a woman's physical or mental health is in danger, or if a substantial risk exists that her child will be born deformed or handicapped.

It also permits the abortion if two doctors agree that the woman's existing children would be unduly affected by an addition to the family. In addition, it permits the consulting doctors to weigh the circumstances under which she lives or may live later, including such factors as poverty or large families.

This "social clause" has been attacked by doctors, clergymen and members of Parliament. The medical association has urged its members not to perform "social abortions," arguing they violate respect for human life.

Whether the doctors will follow this recommendation remains to be seen. If not, says one woman gynecologist, "The pregnant teen-ager and the 40-year-old, middle-class mother who are in no physical or mental danger may find that things have changed very little."

A "conscience clause" in the act says doctors or nurses with a conscientious objection to performing abortions are not compelled to do so unless the patient is in danger.

Whether the new law means that more women will want abortions, or whether the demand will simply turn to hospitals instead of to bootleg abortionists, the problem remains: Can Britain's bulging hospitals handle the cases? Nonpaying patients already wait months for nonemergency surgery.

Delmont 88 Convertible

Dealerships Move With the Customer

The era of supermarket shopping, with the conveniences of new locations closer to residential areas and large adjacent parking lots, has arrived for the American car buyer.

Most of the relocations of dealerships have placed them closer to the homes of car buyers or along the main traffic arteries. In either case, the need for more space for customer parking, car display and service facilities have been major considerations.

Voluntary Restraint Not Needed

NEW YORK (AP) — Newspaper editors whose cities were hit by summer riots feel strongly that there is no need for a code of voluntary restraint in their news coverage.

This was the primary conclusion in a survey taken by William M. Ware, Cleveland Plain Dealer executive editor, for the Freedom of Information Committee of The Associated Press Managing Editors.

"Guidelines are impractical and possibly even irresponsible," one editor responded.

"I certainly do think they do infringe on freedom of information," said another.

Ware polled editors in cities struck by riots in the past three summers and said he delayed writing his report until the President's National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders had released its findings and recommendations. He also consulted the Justice Department's Community Relations Service.

The survey conclusions reported by Ware:

"1. Emphatically no need for a code of voluntary restraint. In fact, a positive determination to have no part of one.

"2. No real threat at the moment to FOI (freedom of information). But, in view of the trend of the times, a serious warning to keep the guard up.

"3. Agreement on news executives' responsibility to: (a) make plans for coverage of any eventuality; (b) obtain and publish all the news; (c) exercise sound judgment and justifiable restraint in timing, story play, headline treatment; (d) protect the staff; (e) take the initiative in projects beneficial to the community, such as prior news presetation of basic causes of unrest and riots and advocacy and support of total community cooperation in seeking solutions.

What would your wife say if you came home with an Olds tonight?

You've probably been talking new cars. So it's mainly the fact that it's an Olds she'll be reacting to, right? So . . .

If she's the practical type, she'll blow a gasket. Because she thinks an Olds is more car than you were planning to buy.

You'll have to talk fast and make the point that this Cutlass cost less than many of the low-priced "names" you looked at.

Now, if she's the emotional type she won't care about details. She'll take one look at Cutlass and kiss you. Then she'll look at that plush Cutlass interior, and kiss you again.

Either way, you'll be a hero tonight.

State Department Barbs In Novel By Galbraith

By THOMAS E. ENGEL
Associated Press Writer

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — In an age when specialization is a byword and automation is everywhere, the genus of homo renatus or, more popularly, Renaissance Man, persists. If you don't believe it, consider John Kenneth Galbraith.

Call him an economist, and he can point to his upcoming book on the art of India; call him an ivory tower professor, and then watch him on the stump campaigning for Sen. Eugene McCarthy; call him a diplomat and, presto, he's a novelist.

Galbraith's first novel, which he admits could be called a "non-novel novel," came out this month. Called "The Triumph," it concerns what the author calls "an uncontrollably funny institution"—the State Department.

The book is the tale of a revolution which brings down the regime of Luis Miguel Martinez on the Latin-American island of Puerto Santos. The story is more than a hilarious fable, however, as it contains some very cogent criticism about a U.S. foreign policy the author believes is out of date with the global realities of the 1960s.

Galbraith, former U.S. ambassador to India and a frequent and vehement critic of administration policy not only in Vietnam but also in the developing countries of Asia and Africa, makes clear in his foreword—dubbed an "Explanation"—that his novel and his policy stands are not unrelated.

"Nor would I wish it thought," Galbraith writes, "that I was using a fable to say things I would not otherwise put in print. As some will be aware, I have not, in recent years, been wholly reticent as a critic of our foreign policy."

Galbraith stocks his novel with people who are representative of points of view, or of styles of thinking, rather than men who change and whose characters are complex, deep or impenetrable.

The three main types Galbraith describes are to be found in the persons of Ambassador Pethwick—otherwise referred to as "what's his name" Pethwick—Assistant Secretary of State Dr. Grant Worthing Campbell, described as "a man who had things taped," and an embassy official named Joe Hurd, who describes himself as a deplorable failure.

Pethwick is a natty, well-groomed man and a confident, but wholly incompetent, envoy. Anxious to hold on to his own little embassy—for his wife, if for nobody else—Pethwick still reports that the Martinez regime can withstand the insurrection while His Excellency, Luis Miguel Martinez, is already in full flight for refuge at the Paraguayan Embassy.

Campbell, the man in Washington who more or less controls American policy toward Puerto Santos, believes that whatever happens on the tiny island, it is often better "to continue error than to draw attention to it by changing course." Campbell, leery of a left-wing take over in Puerto Santos, finds it reasonable to conclude "he had always enjoyed a deeper insight into the nature of the Communist conspiracy."

Hurd is, like Pethwick, a career diplomat, but is unlike Pethwick in every other respect. His dress, for instance, is casual to the point of being sloppy. But Hurd is the only American in Puerto Santos who has any notion of what's going on. He realizes that the Martinez dictatorship is through, and is not at all upset at its passing.

With some resignation, Galbraith dismisses the Pethwicks as "the most durable people on earth," but says he bears them no animus. The Campbells are another matter. "I hope this book will contribute to the obsolescence—to the extinction—of the Grant Worthing Campbells of this world," Galbraith said in an interview. Campbell is a fossil, "a survival of the Cold War strategy game," Galbraith says.

Hurd, on the other hand, gains nothing but respect from the former ambassador to India. "I met the 'Joe Hurds' in India," Galbraith recalls fondly. The "Joe Hurds" are the diplomats who work tirelessly without seeking fanfare to make the international realities intelligible to Foggy Bottom. This task they perform despite the endless morass of memorandums which are consistently ignored as they are shuttled through the in-and-out-boxes of bureaucracy."

"The Triumph" has some words on the role of Congress and its legislative committees on foreign affairs. The legislators appear as a varied lot in the novel, some skeptical and others approving of the State Department's proclaimed policy of "watchful waiting."

"The Senate and Congress are much more flexible and much more liberal on foreign policy matters than the State Department, and the noval reflects this truth," Galbraith says.

With 30,000 advance copies sold, the book appears to be just what its title proclaims.

Asked why he named the book "The Triumph," his craggy features light up, and he ironically replies that the book represents "the triumph of Grant Worthing Campbell and American diplomacy."

Vans and Wagons

Ford Division's all-new 1969 Econoline Vans (left) and Club Wagons (right) — longer, wider, completely redesigned — have the most significant engineering improvements since the lines were introduced in 1960. Twin-I-Beam front suspension, V-8 power, larger load capacity, two longer wheelbases, access to the cargo area from the driver's seat and access to the engine from outside the vehicle are a few of the major improvements for 1969. The Club Wagon is the largest in the industry, seating up to 12 passengers.

Women Drivers Will Exceed Males

Although it may strike some men as appalling, there are more than 40 million women drivers in the United States — 41 per cent of the driving population.

Female drivers are expected to exceed men by 1970. Their numbers have grown by one-third since 1960 alone.

The chief reasons: increasing numbers of working women — more than 25,000,000 of them — and the growth of multi-car families, particularly in the suburbs.

Women's tastes and needs exert a major influence in the design and content of today's cars. Automobile companies are spending more time and money in their courtship of this important market segment. Women now represent at least 1 million industry sales a year and cast an influential vote in three out of four family car purchases.

A woman wants a car that is attractive, reliable, comfortable and safe. Tilt-swing steering wheels, two-way station wagon tailgates, suspended brake and accelerator pedals are only a few of the items designed for feminine appeal.

Design's the Thing in Italian Autos

By BOB COCHNAR
NEA Automotive Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — It's almost anachronistic these days to consider the case of the independent coach builders. Why, haven't they all been swallowed up by the manufacturing goliaths in Detroit, Turin, Wolfsburg and Tokyo?

Not quite. The Italians, as is their custom, still do things differently. And that may be why the automobile craftsman in Italy is still alive and flourishing.

Or, as Sergio Pininfarina explained recently, "It is in my country's nature to have specialists. Our people are artisans. We take pride in our work and perhaps we also know something about form and function." That, from a native of a country which has produced Michelangelo, Da Vinci, Raphael and Cellini, is something of an understatement.

Sergio, whose father Pinin Farina established the design house which bears his name, was in town to help introduce the new Fiat 124 Spider, a convertible which his firm designed.

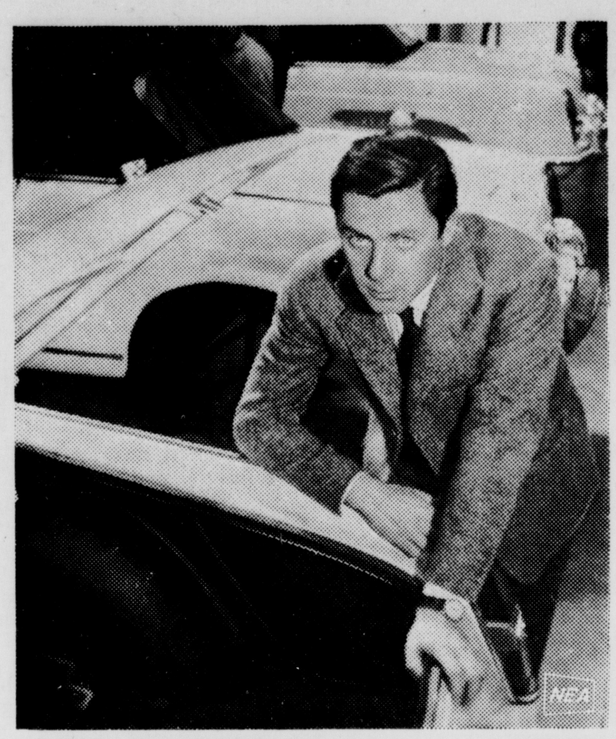
Pininfarina's proud "F" hallmark appears on current Fiats, Lancias, Alfa-Romeos, Peugeots and Ferraris which are assembled in the company's Turin plant. And it used to grace the slab sides of the 1952 Nash Ambassador, the last time a pure Italian design showed up on an American-built car.

Although Sergio wasn't talking, he did say that he had just returned from a trip to Detroit which wasn't, he admitted, a busman's holiday.

Since Pininfarina believes that Americans are "the best in building the car" and that Italians, certainly, are the best designers, who knows what fruitful alliance could develop?

Anyway, Sergio is a diplomatic Italian who knows when to keep quiet. For example, I asked him what he thought about American design. His response was a slight upward roll of the eyes, an almost imperceptible shoulder shrug and a lightning-quick downward turn of the upper lip. But he did say, "no comment."

"Destinato a diventare fuori use" is an Italian phrase which, roughly translated, means "planned obsolescence." It is a phrase shunned by Pininfarina. After all, even his '52 Nash isn't especially out of date.



SERGIO PININFARINA, the Michelangelo of Italian automobile designers, claims that Americans are tops in car construction while his countrymen lead the world in automotive artistry.

"What is more important?" he asks. "To make a car different or to make it better? We try to build better cars. We want always to improve aerodynamics without forfeiting practicality. But we also want to make beautiful cars at the same time."

Lest the casual reader might think that Italians only excel in superfast, super-priced sports cars of the Ferrari ilk, Pininfarina at least builds considerably more Lancias and Peugeots than he does authentic Gran Turismo machines. And his sedans are exactly that.

"We try to be functional," the designer says. "If we are doing a sports car, we will consider good performance in relation to engine displacement, handling qualities, inclined seating and the like. All are an integral part of our approach to the problem.

"But if the car happens to be a sedan, we naturally are concerned with luggage space, rear-seat leg room, general roominess, simplicity of design."

When, for example, Pininfarina was commissioned to do the Fiat 124 Spider, certain ground rules had to be established before creation could commence. Fiat wanted and inexpensive sports car powered with its 1438cc, four cylinder engine. The factory suggested dimensions.

Sergio Pininfarina, who considers himself more of a designer than a salesman or engineer, began working with his artisans and produced a series of sketches for Fiat's inspection. Next step was a clay model. Surely, without great fuss, the design took shape.

"It's very nice to work for a company like Fiat," says Pininfarina. "We don't have to please 500 people, only a small, select group of executives who have the power to accept or reject. Our cars are not designed by committees."

American Model

The 1968 Rambler American lineup is again led by the Rogue hardtop (shown above) which features a new standard engine, the 232 six, rated at 145 horsepower. Other models in the American line include two and four-door sedans in the basic series, and a four-door sedan and four-door station wagon in the 440 series.

Long, Clean Lines

The long, clean lines of the 1968 Buick Electra 225 are more elegant than ever with a new grille and front bumper, along with recessed windshield wipers and new hood molding. Newly styled taillights and rear bumper add to Electra's new look. Power brakes and steering and Super Turbine automatic transmission are standard. The power plant is Buick's 430 cubic inch V-8 engine.

Antique Vinyl Use on Cars Catching On

Antique vinyl, that material which adds depth and richness to hardtop roofs and car interiors, is apparently on the way to becoming one of the automobile's most popular styling features.

The material attracted favorable attention when first used and has since been expanded throughout the industry.

Vinyl has been used in a variety of colors as an interior upholstery and trim for many years. It is sturdy, easily cleaned, and colorful. But now the antiquing process adds depth, richness and subtle shades. This is accomplished by printing a second or third color to the basic color. When used on the heavier textured vinyl now gaining popularity as a hardtop roof material, the antiquing emphasizes the material's grain.

Industrial Deaths Decline in State

George W. Flexsenhar, director of the Division of Industrial Inspection, reports that there were 13 deaths in industry in Missouri for the first quarter of 1968, compared to 31 deaths occurring for the first quarter of 1967. Three of the 13 deaths were compensable deaths compared to 15 compensable deaths in the first quarter of 1967.

Flexsenhar said there were 25,339 accidents reported in Missouri industry for the first quarter of 1968. There were 2,282 compensable accidents reported for St. Louis; 859 for Kansas City; 154 for St. Joseph; 116 for Springfield; 2,030 for Outstate; and, 140 occurred out of the State. The overall cost of the deaths, accidents and disability claims amounted to $56,379,275.

End of an Era in Canada

OTTAWA (AP) — The Pearson era is ending in Canada this week.

After serving two decades in high office—as foreign secretary, opposition leader and prime minister—Lester B. Pearson seeks what he fondly calls the "freedom and security" of retirement. He is 71 years old Tuesday, and his turnover of the prime ministry to Pierre Elliott Trudeau will more or less coincide. Trudeau is 46.

Students of the political scene are by no means unanimous that Pearson will rank with the country's greatest leaders, but they are agreed that "Mike" Pearson has been a dominant figure since World War II and that he has left his mark on Canada.

When Trudeau takes over, Pearson briefly will take his place as a back-bencher, but after the end of the present parliamentary session will leave the political scene. It has been suggested that he might serve his country as ambassador-at-large or that he might once more become a teacher, but he has no plans except to write his memoirs.

He is not a wealthy man but he is entitled to an annual pension of $19,666 made up of his contributory pension as a member of Parliament and a special pension as prime minister.

What makes Pearson's retirement even more the end of an era is the fact that his chief political rival, John Diefenbaker, has been replaced by a new Conservative leader.

It is too early to evaluate Pearson's place in history, but most analysts agree that his chief claim to greatness was in the field of foreign affairs. He won worldwide recognition for his work in the United Nations and as an architect of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

At the United Nations, he was president of the General Assembly and twice was proposed as secretary-general. In 1956 he proposed the creation of a U.N. Emergency Force during the Suez crisis and was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize for his efforts.

Some critics like to say that Pearson's effectiveness as prime minister was weakened because he was a negotiator and a compromiser who had trouble making firm decisions.

But other commentators believe Pearson is leaving a record of legislative achievement despite the fact that during his five years as prime minister he never had a clear majority in the House of Commons.

The Montreal Star, often critical of Pearson's performance, says: "Management, maneuver and tactics were not his areas of strength. His objectives, his long-range view of our affairs, could seldom be questioned. It permits us now to admire him and to praise him. His achievements will endure far longer than the memory of his failures, which were, in the perspective of history, minor."

Peter Newman, probably the best known political commentator in Canada, calls Pearson "a good man in a wicked time; a compromiser in a nation crying for leadership; a prime minister who did not seem so much to be governing Canada as presiding over its survival."

Pearson's most valuable contribution to Canadian history was on the issue of national unity, the crucial confrontation of his stewardship," Newman wrote. "How far he advanced the cause of Canadian survival will not be clear for some time, but it's doubtful if any prime minister would or could have done any more to accommodate the dynamic aspirations of an awakening Quebec."

Some Canadians feel that Pearson never really became involved in politics at the grass roots level, that his ideas of Canada were formed at universities and foreign embassies.

Car Dealers Are Optimistic About Sales Here This Year

By RALPH JONES
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

Sedalia car dealers and salesmen, in line with a national prediction, but for different reasons, are looking toward an increase in business for the remainder of the year.

On the national level, the dealers and salesmen base their thoughts on an increase that began early in the year, but fell off somewhat during the last 10 days in March. The fall-off was due to the international situation, industrial financial difficulties and labor problems.

On the local level, dealers base their predictions for the upswing on confidence in people of Sedalia for passing recent bond issues, along with other industrial progress.

For instance, any decrease in sales in attributed to the loss of population due to the move-out of Boeing Co. families in the area. These people were family car buyers. Naturally, when these people moved out new car sales dropped proportionately. But, according to population figures compared to those a year ago car sales have not dropped.

A good indicator, according to one dealer, is truck sales. Truck buyers are usually farmers, businessmen and others using vehicles other than the family car. In the truck field, the dealer said, sales are higher than during the same period last year, even though the actual population has dropped.

Using the recent industrial bond issues, the loss in population during the Boeing phase-out will be over-ridden by the arrival of people to fill new jobs being created.

Some 450 jobs are being created by announced expansions at the Rival Manufacturing Co., Town & Country Shoes, the construction of the Olin Conductors plant and the probable arrival of some 100 people to complete Minuteman Missile site updating announced only this week.

Olin Conductors has announced the plant will have some 150 employees, Rival estimates it will hire about 100 new people, and Town & Country is to add some 100 people to its force, when improvements are completed. In the meantime, construction work on these expansions is creating jobs for hundreds of people.

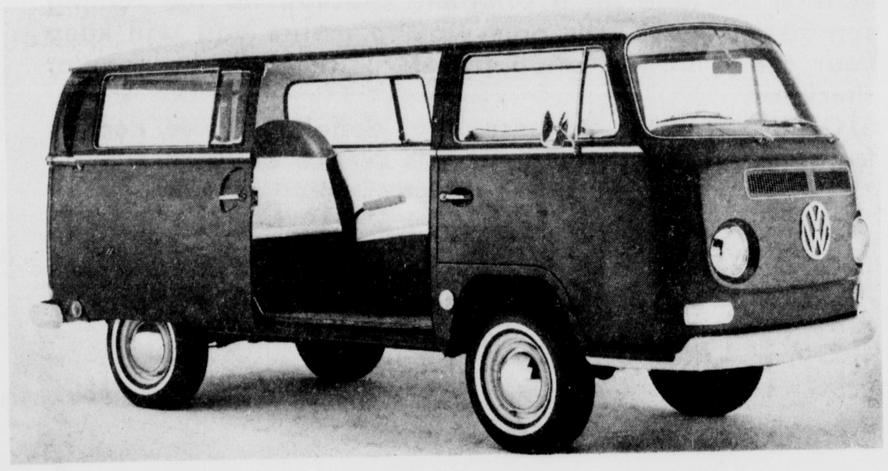
The confidence of business in making the investments in these improvements, and the confidence of the people in voting the bond issues to make some of the improvements possible, indicates car sales at the end of the year should surpass those of last year.

Retains Former Style

Volkswagen's sleek and sporty Karmann Ghia coupe retains its almost — classic styling for 1968 — but many improvements have been made — among them are: built-in safety styled headrests, longer two speed windshield wipers, new outside door handles, and a safety telescoping steering column. A new convenience feature makes its appearance on the right front fender where a spring-loaded lid now covers the gas tank filler.

Interior Improvements

Volkswagen's 1968 Squareback Sedan looks almost the same as previous models, but incorporates many improvements inside, including electronic fuel injection for its 65-horsepower air-cooled rear engine. Quickest tip-off to the 1968 model are built-in headrests for frontseat occupants.



All-New Volkswagen

Rounded corners, wraparound windshield, "Picture windows" and a sliding side door all contribute to the "new look" for Volkswagen's 1968 station wagon. Interior features include safety-padded dashboard, added foot and leg room in the front compartment and a ventilation system which channels fresh air to the rear via ducts running through the front-compartment armrests.

AMERICAN ENGINE DEAL ROCKETS ROLLS-ROYCE TO GREATER HEIGHTS

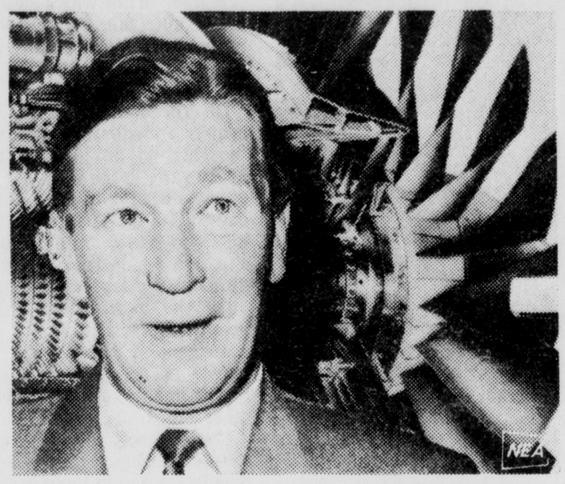
European Staff Correspondent

DERBY, England—(NEA)—The billion-dollar airplane engine deal Rolls-Royce recently pulled off in America looks to many Britons like a shaft of light piercing the economic smog over Britain. It is the first piece of heartening news since Harold Wilson devalued the pound.

The immediate advantages of the deal are evident. It will help Britain's balance of payments position, guarantee the jobs of 73,000 Rolls-Royce workers for the next 10 years. Economists, however, are hoping that the deal may set a pattern for future Anglo-American industrial relations, and may even eventually open the door to a North Atlantic free trade area.

Meanwhile, Rolls-Royce's performance is impressive. Against fierce American competition, it has won an order for 150 engines to power the giant, 250-seater airbuses which Lockheed will build for various domestic U.S. airlines.

This initial break-through order is worth $350 million to Rolls-Royce, but the potential market thus opened up to the British concern is expected to reach $2 billion by 1980. It is the biggest single export deal in British history.



DAVID HUDDIE, WHO DIRECTED a million-dollar sales campaign in the United States, deserves much of the credit for the successful sales campaign that landed Rolls-Royce a billion-dollar airplane engine contract in the United States. He feels both countries will benefit.

Rolls-Royce could hardly have chosen a worse time to negotiate the deal. America, herself, is now experiencing a balance of payments crisis, aggravated by the recent rush on her gold reserves. American tempers were not sweetened when the British government canceled an order for F-111 fighters.

Finally, a dozen senators and congressmen signed a letter to President Johnson urging him to keep the airbus contract in the United States and thus protect the jobs of American aircraft workers. This lobby was led by Rep. Robert Taft Jr. of Ohio, who marshalled powerful arguments to support his cause.

In the face of such opposition, how did Rolls bring off the deal? Here in Derby (population 125,850), home of Rolls-Royce, the men will tell you that it was because their engine is the best in the world.

Technology is the watchword in Derby, which frowns on sales gimmicks. Derby workers still refer to the company as "Royce's" because, of the two founders, Royce was the engineer, while Rolls was the salesman. However, a million-dollar sales campaign had a lot to do with Rolls-Royce winning the Lockheed order. David Huddie, a Northern Irishman, moved from Derby to New York last October to personally direct the campaign.

Under Huddie, a team of 20 Rolls specialists shuttled from coast to coast by air, demonstrating their new engine.

Among the five-foot-high pile of brochures and specifications which assisted the sales campaign was a political and social history of Britain since the war. This was designed to convince prospective buyers that the British economy is still vigorous and sound, and not hag-ridden by devaluation.

In stealing a march against its American competitors, Rolls-Royce had a number of factors in its favor. First, devaluation enabled it to undersell its nearest rival, General Electric's CF-6 engine, by $100,000 per engine. Secondly, Lockheed has no overseas sales apparatus, and was anxious to set one up.

In the end, a straight offset deal was worked out between Lockheed and Air Holdings Ltd., an independent British group in which Rolls-Royce is interested. Air Holdings agreed to buy 50 Lockheed airbuses for resale abroad in exchange for Lockheed buying 250 Rolls-Royce engines.

The resultant Rolls-Royce-Lockheed deal thus will ensure payment surpluses to both countries. Air Holdings' relationship with Lockheed has not officially been disclosed, but most observers believe that Lockheed has licensed the British firm as its overseas "small orders" sales agent.

Meanwhile, Derby is jubilant. Its mayor, himself a former Rolls-Royce worker, sees the billion-dollar deal as a fitting climax to his term in office. His fellow citizens will feel a little easier now as they make their down payments on cars (not those made by R-R) under the installment plan.

Impatient For Return Of Business

By ROY ESSOYAN
Associated Press Writer

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Ten months after last June's Middle East war, Baghdad's small, semitransient Western community is still waiting impatiently for the resumption of diplomatic relations with Iraq.

Many Iraqis are impatient, too. Their business prospects—and general economic expansion in Iraq—hinge on close economic ties with the West.

Despite Communist inroads since the monarchy was overthrown 10 years ago, Iraq imported 17 per cent of its needs from the United States before June. Britain was the largest supplier, West Germany was in second place and the United States third.

No current figures are available, but economic experts here report total imports have been cut by 25 per cent since June, to conserve dwindling foreign exchange.

Time moves slowly in this 1,200-year-old city that Haroun Al-Rashid made famous, and prospects for resumption of diplomatic relations still are fairly remote.

The charges which led to Iraq's severing relations with the United States and Britain—alleged U.S. support of Israel in the Middle East war—have long been dropped. But anti-Americanism, fed by official propaganda, is still strong.

American cigarettes are everywhere.

The Iraqi government is still waiting for the United States—or Egypt's President Gamal Abdel Nasser—to take the initiative in restoring diplomatic relations.

Even so, some 300 American, 350 British and a smaller number of West German businessmen, technicians and teachers are here bidding for government tenders, working on government projects and teaching in government schools.

They are outnumbered by Russians, Poles, Czechs, Bulgarians, Romanians and East Germans thronging hotel lobbies and government offices.

An American firm was invited officially to bid on a $50-million sulphur contract. U.S. experts still are working on a sugar refinery and planatation project in Basra. Some 25 Jesuit fathers are teaching at Hikmat University and Baghdad College. Coca-Cola, placed on the official boycott blacklist 17 months ago, still is sold on every corner.

Fantasy Difficult To Handle

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Fantasy is a delicate business, and sometimes it comes off better in book form than in visual form.

Thursday night's NBC broadcast of "The Enormous Egg" was an example of the difficulty.

The hour-long "Children's Theatre" special was adapted from a book about a little boy and his pet dinosaur. It started with Nate Twitchell's hen, Henrietta, producing a very large egg which ultimately hatched into a pound-and-a-half dinosaur, the first in millions of years.

This in itself must have presented parents throughout the nation with a difficult question to answer. How come a hen laid a dinosaur egg? Well, the author of the book had to get into his story somehow.

At any rate, the dino, named Uncle Beazley grew to enormous size, was moved to the Smithsonian Institute for care, got into trouble with the authorities when it tipped over a milk truck and narrowly escaped extermination at the hands of an overzealous and ignorant senator. Then Nate appealed for help on television, and, of course, TV saved the day and the dino.

The idea of a huge, gentle dinosaur pet with a taste for marigolds had charm, but conversion into TV had problems. Uncle Beazley, for instance, was played by a series of dinosaur models ranging in size from tiny to enormous, but were patently unmovable.

The narration of exerpts from the book frequently had Ed McMahon's deep, adult voice incongruously matching the lip movements of the young boy.

The action did give young viewers an incidental tour of the nation's capital from the Washington monument to the Senate.

Two Javelin Versions

The sleek, low-profile Javelin hardtop is a new entry by American Motors in the sporty car field. It is available in two versions — standard and the SST model which is shown. A special optional "go" package for the Javelin includes dual exhaust system, power disc brakes, red-line wide profile tires, handling package and rally stripes.

Defense Spending Debated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, which voted earlier this year to trim federal spending by $6 billion, has extended its economy drive to the administration's massive defense budget.

But the $660 million reduction voted Friday by a heavy 45 to 13 majority still left the military procurement authorization at a total of $21.3 billion, some $1.2 billion more than Congress appropriated last year.

After adopting the 3 per cent cut offered by Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., which did not specify where the reductions would be, the Senate passed the bill 54 to 3 and sent it on to the House. Voting against it were three Democrats: Ernest Gruening of Alaska, Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin and Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana.

Mansfield, who took little part in the three-day debate which saw most efforts to cut the bill fail, then took the floor to denounce the bill—especially the $183.6 million for fast deployment logistic ships which had been held in the measure earlier by three votes.

"If we build these ships," he told a nearly deserted Senate, "we will be regarded more than ever as the world's policeman. We are not the world's policeman. We do not have the resources or authority to tell anyone in the world what they shall do or not do.

"We are not even able to take care of the problems we have at home," Mansfield added.

Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., offered the amendment to eliminate the four ships, but it was defeated 31 to 28.

Clark also tried to slash the bill by $2.3 billion, a little more than 10 per cent. That lost 44 to 12 after Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., warned that even more money would be needed for procurement later in the year.

"We have had terrific losses in Vietnam," he said, without specifying those losses. Clark had contended, "We have got to start cutting back this gargantuan military-industrial complex that has this nation by its throat."

Marin Is Losing Control

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — A friendship turned sour — and the generation gap—have combined to challenge the grip of Luis Munoz Marin on Puerto Rican politics.

From 1940 until 1964, Munoz was the acknowledged leader of this teeming island. In 1964, he stepped out as governor after serving four consecutive terms, but left his trusted aide, Roberto Sanchez Vilella, seated at the governor's desk in La Fortaleza. He also left his hand-tooled Popular Democratic party in tight control of island politics.

Besides winning the governorship for the fifth consecutive time in 1964, the Popular party also has captured every city hall in Puerto Rico's 76 municipalities, and swept the legislature.

Yet within a year after Munoz went into semiretirement his powerful political machine had begun to knock, and the personal relations between veteran party leaders and Gov. Sanchez had begun to chill.

For the change at the governor's desk also meant a change in the palace guard — different aides, younger faces, a "new style".

For a time, Sanchez seemed almost indifferent to the erosion of his party ties. A civil engineer by profession, and a methodical civil servant by instinct, Sanchez remained aloof behind the iron gates of the governor's mansion.

In contrast, the governor's aides proceeded energetically to remake the image of the Popular party. Eventually even Munoz, the party founder and still its revered elder statesman, would publicly complain of the "incredible rudeness" with which the new group behaved.

Basically, the effort to "Demunozize" the government was spawned by the restiveness of the Popular party's youth. Younger members were chafing at the party's refusal to give them more seats in the legislature, and were disillusioned by the party's inability, or unwillingness, to wrest more autonomy from the United States.

From the start of the Sanchez administration, one of the most influential advisers to the 55-year-old governor was Jeanette Ramos, 36. She is an attorney, and the daughter of a deceased speaker of the House of Representatives who had considered himself the proper successor to Munoz as governor.

Jeanette Ramos and the governor were married last September, soon after Sanchez' divorce from his first wife.

A bolder, far more political Sanchez Vilella has blossomed forth. He now shakes hands, jokes, and smiles into cameras. This "new" Sanchez also has shown a willingness to defy the still awesome power of Munoz. Recently, breaking a Popular party ban on campaigning, he announced for re-election as governor.

Next day Munoz replied with a blast at Sanchez—charging that his former protege had let the Popular party split apart.

Formerly, such a Munoz attack would have disabled its target, and there are some who feel that Sanchez already belongs to the ranks of the walking dead. But so far, he has refused to lie down and die.

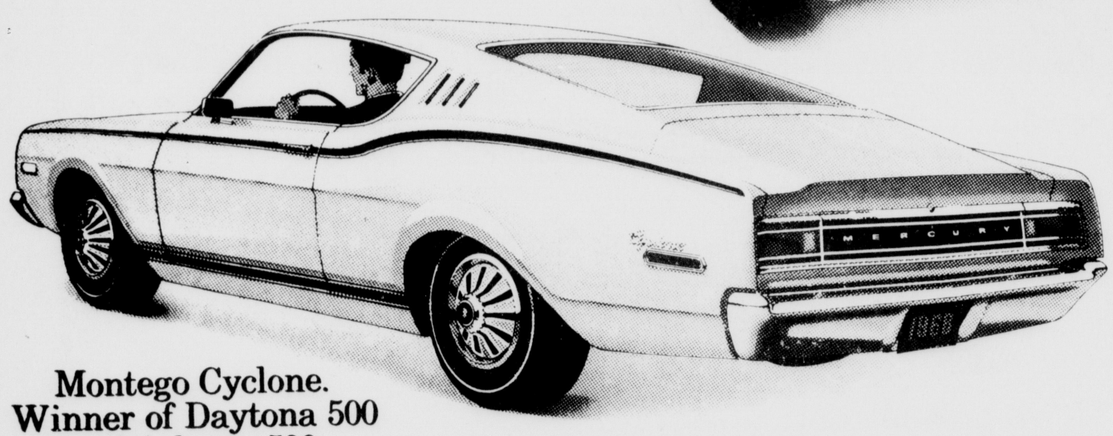
Montego's competitive edge: First in size, room and performance.

Montego MX.
Total performance winner at the Union/Pure Oil Performance Trials.

At Riverside, California, Montego topped its class in the ruggedest tests ever for braking, acceleration and fuel economy. In size competition, Montego is about half a foot longer than comparable LeMans, Skylark and Cutlass 2-door hardtops. Montego has more trunk space, more rear seat room, a longer, better-riding wheelbase. You get total performance in Montego. And plenty of room to enjoy it in.

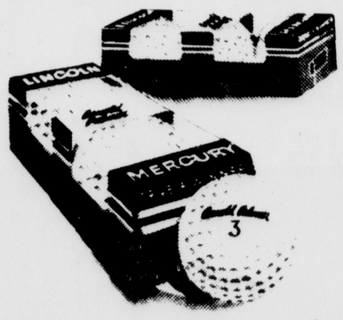


Montego Cyclone.
Winner of Daytona 500 and Atlanta 500.

In February, specially modified Montego Cyclones placed 1-2 at Daytona. In March, Cyclones breezed home 1-2 at Atlanta. Talk about your competitive edge! Mercury's got it. Get the feel of a double-500 winner. Give our Montego Cyclone GT, shown above, a whirl.

More trunk room in 2-door hardtops. How much more? 4 bags full.

Montego's trunk measures at least 17 cubic feet. The best of three competitive models is 14.5. You don't leave anything behind in Montego. Except the competition.



Your competitive edge on the tee: Arnold Palmer Golf Balls. 3 for $1.95.

The same quality Arnie uses on the tour. These 90-compression balls are valued at $3.75. Available for a limited time at participating Mercury dealers. Come in for your set today.

A two-way competitive edge in wagons. Another reason Montego sales are up 47%.*

It's our famous two-way tailgate. A door for people, a tailgate for cargo. The option you can't afford to go without. Also famous in our Montego MX wagon: sedan ride, lockable storage, carpeting, etc.

Ask Them Yourself

FOR COL. ELIZABETH HOISINGTON,

Director, Women's Army Corps

What are the duties of WAC officers and enlisted personnel in Vietnam? Are they ordered there, or are they all volunteers?—Mrs. Lee Simianer, Mitchell, Neb.

● A shortage of clerical personnel in Vietnam caused commanders to request that enlisted WACs be assigned. Most are stationed at Long Binh and Saigon and serve as clerk-typists and stenographers. WAC officers fill requirements in a variety of staff assignments. All WAC personnel are either volunteers or had no objections to assignment there.

FOR MONTY HALL

of "Let's Make a Deal"

Are the gifts you give away on your show "publicity plants" or are they purchased?—Mrs. Ruth Shelton, Chandler, Texas

● The money for purchasing gifts that are given to audience participants is part of a budget provided us solely by the NBC Television Network.

FOR KENNETH, hair stylist

Some actresses seem to prefer an "iron curl" to a permanent. What is it, and can it be done at local beauty salons?—Dorothea Kent, Cincinnati, Ohio

● It is an electric curling iron used by actresses primarily as a pick-up between sets and will hold only until the hair is washed. The technique is used in many beauty salons in the larger cities.

FOR DONALD FREY,

vice president, Ford Motor Company

Now that a limit has been established on the size of engines in cars competing in the International Manufacturers Championship races, will Ford enter the race at Le Mans next June?—M. H. Waverly, Iowa

● No. Ford does not plan an entry at Le Mans. Its major racing emphasis in 1968 will be on stock-car and drag events and on a Mustang team entered in the Trans-American Championship. The company will also continue to work with the Meyer organization in providing Ford power plants for use Memorial Day in the Indianapolis 500.

FOR FATHER NICHOLAS WEGNER,

director, Boys Town

I have heard that Boys Town receives only 40 percent of the donations sent to it. True?—Miss Ethel Sherwin, Ilion, N. Y.

● No. Of the money donated, 80 to 85 percent is used for the boys, and the remainder is used for expenses (stationery, postage) incurred in sending out our appeal letters.

FOR ART LINKLETTER

How did you get the idea for interviewing children on your television show, "House Party"?—Mrs. E. Stark, Petaluma, Calif.

● I got the idea from a taped interview I had with my son Jack when he was a small child.

FOR JOHN HAVLICEK

of the Boston Celtics

Are you considering quitting the Celtics to become a pro football player?—Thomas N. Bradley, Altoona, Pa.

● This rumor keeps coming up, but there is no truth to it whatever.

FOR CARM TINTLE,

marketing director, Schenley Industries

Is it true that Americans are drinking more today than ever before?—N. D., Salt Lake City, Utah

● No. While the total consumption of distilled spirits in the U.S.A. is up because of the increase in population, the average individual consumption is down. The average American who drinks uses about 1.5 gallons a year. In the Prohibition era, the consumption was 2 gallons a year.

FOR BARBARA EDEN

of "I Dream of Jeannie"

How do you feel about an actress being at work all day and away from her children?—Diana Dale Tredway, Greenville, Ky.

● An actress with children is just like any other working mother. I'm more fortunate than most because "I Dream of Jeannie" is in production about 30 weeks a year, leaving me five months free.

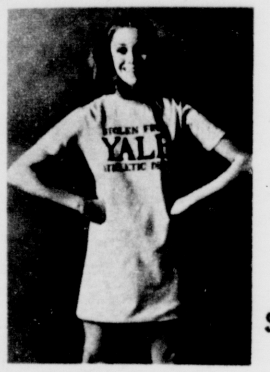
WHAT IN THE WORLD!

Teen Fad Last year, authentic prison shirts were a popular fad for teen boys. They were so real looking one youth was arrested by a local sheriff who thought he was an escaped convict. This year the girls are starting a fad of their own. They're scooping up the elongated t-shirts by Miss Ingenue that bear such boldly printed confessions as "Stolen from Yale Athletic Department." The dress comes in a choice of six colleges. Or girls can skip the crime wave for minis that proclaim "Love" or "Flower Power."



Silly shirts

Keeping His Cool In his new book, "Guidelines for Successful Living," maestro Lawrence Welk writes: "If my tv image is that of a man who never worries, there may be several explanations. 1) Maybe I'm letting some of my colleagues do the worrying for me; 2) Maybe a few more problems at this stage don't shake me up as they used to; or 3) Maybe, just maybe, 12 years on tv finally have developed a small trace of acting talent!"

Cause and Effect In Maryland, they're talking about boosting the tax on alcoholic beverages. They want the extra money for community-health programs—to cure alcoholics!

Tourist Gap If L.B.J. has his way we may have a lot more foreign tourists joining us to "See America" this year. The President has a twofold plan to bridge the present tourist gap. He wants Congress to ease visa requirements and issue "hospitality cards" (for discounts) to foreign travelers. Private enterprise may help by cutting air fares for foreign tourists as well as giving discounts on hotels, car rentals, and guided tours. Many airlines and car-rental agencies have already agreed. Maybe this year you'll have to be multilingual even in the U.S.

Name Change Tv insiders are only half-joking when they suggest a new name for the Huntley-Brinkley newscasts. Chet Huntley is an obvious hawk on Vietnam and David Brinkley is a dove. The new name: "The Birds."

Long, Long Ago Just to show how the world has changed, they've issued replicas of the first edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica put out by three Scotsmen—John Kay, Andrew Bell, and William Smellie. First printed 200 years ago, it summed up the world's knowledge in three volumes; it now takes 24. Back in 1768, America rated one paragraph ("one of the four main divisions of the world") and Woman rated a sentence ("Female of Man, See Homo"). Back in that do-it-yourself era, however, Midwifery got 40 pages—so explicit that authorities ordered readers to rip them from their copies.

Cruises Tailored for You

Are you a camera bug? A golf nut? A garden buff? Whatever your fancy, you can now buy a vacation that fits like a glove

By CLAIRE SAFRAN

"YOU! On a cruise!" the doctor spluttered at his lady patient.

For six months, he had been seeing her regularly as they worked together to whittle away the pounds. Now, he had a vision of his work disappearing in a gourmet orgy of French cuisine.

"I won't gain an ounce," she assured him calmly. As she explained, the cruise was made to order for people just like her. With her doctor's blessings, she sails next month on the M.S. Sagafjord for 15 luxurious but low-calorie days in the Caribbean. On this special "Diet Cruise," her food will look and taste fattening—but it won't be. Her husband, who doesn't have to count calories, will be issued a special "passport" when he comes aboard, entitling him to order from the fattening side of the menu.

If this cruise was just what the diet doctor ordered, another cruise, tailor-made for golfers, was just what a marriage counselor must have had in mind.

For 15 years, Sally Forsythe had been trying in vain to coax her husband off the putting green and onto the ocean blue. This year they compromised, and he followed her up the gangplank of the S.S. Constitution, shouldering his bag of clubs. While she sniffed happily at the salt air, he blasted out of deck-top sandtraps, stroked along specially built putting greens, and took free pro instructions at driving ranges.

In the spirit of a second honeymoon, he held her hand while they sat in a darkroom and watched videotape replays of himself playing golf. When they steamed into a port, she shopped happily, while he tried out his new know-how at championship courses.

The news in cruising today is that there's a shipboard adventure especially tailored for every taste and interest—and at no additional charge. The SS President Wilson recently set to sea on a "Wall Street on the Pacific" cruise. As they steamed toward the Orient, passengers listened to expert lectures on the ups and downs of stocks and received daily market reports.

Expert shipboard golf lessons ready guests for courses at ports-of-call.

An "African Safari" cruise aboard an American President Lines ship takes its passengers within camera-shooting range of hippos and crocodiles. The same line sets a course for a special Bird Watching Tour of the Pacific.

One of the most popular made-to-order cruises is the Travel-with-Goren bridge cruise. When one of these cruises steamed into Antigua recently, four passengers from Baltimore, Md., put their bridge hands face down on the table, pushed back their chairs, and marched to the railing. For about 10 minutes, they stared at the sun-drenched, yacht-filled harbor—then they hurried back to their game.

They repeated this scene at eight Caribbean islands, never once leaving the liner until it docked again in New York. They shook hands enthusiastically with Harold Ogust, the bridge expert who hosted the cruise. "Great trip," they told him. "We'll do it again next year." They turned to leave, then added, "But we hope you'll be going to different islands."

Cruising, of course, has always been convivial, but lots of people are finding that it's even more fun to sail with a group with whom they share a common interest. On a camera cruise, for instance, swapping information about exposures, angles, and shutter speeds can be an instant ice-breaker.

Powerboat enthusiasts can go to a school of the sea—at sea—aboard the special Power Squadron cruises which Grace Lines operates in the Caribbean. Aboard the S.S. Oriana's "The Sound of Music" cruise, passengers attended music classes and lectures, then visited the great concert and opera centers of Europe.

Although flowers don't grow at sea, flower-arranging cruises do. The S.S. Mariposa picks up enroute exotic South Sea blooms for table-decoration classes—even awards a floral diploma.

The Matson liner, the S.S. Monterey, invites its passengers to follow Gauguin's footsteps on an Art Cruise to the South Seas. And coming soon is an American Export Lines cruise which will offer businessmen the chance to vacation and have their annual medical checkups at the same time.

Traditionally, the fare for a tailored cruise is a standard, all-inclusive price for transportation, cabin, food, entertainment, and shipboard activities. Prices vary according to accommodations, season of the year, and a variety of family plans. They can begin at about $495 for 13 days in the Caribbean or $1,285 for 42 days in the South Seas.

According to the American Society of Travel Agents, some 283,000 people go on cruises each year, spending some $28 million. It's no wonder, then, that the shiplines are vying for travel dollars with cruises of every description. Today, no matter what your special interest, there's bound to be a cruise designed especially for you. Any alert travel agent should be able to tell you when your ship will sail.

Even if you have no particular interest or hobby there's still a cruise made to order for you. It's called: "A Cruise to Nowhere." ◆

Just do one simple thing many low-priced-car buyers should do, and don't. Price check an Olds 88.

You'll discover a lot of so-called low-priced cars cost as much or more.

Suddenly, you can raise your sights to a full-size Olds 88 and all its benefits.

You'll gain Olds big-car room.

Big-car stability and strength. The kind of deep-comfort ride you get on its full 123 inches of wheelbase. All the GM safety features, too. Plus the extra assurance that's yours in an Oldsmobile.

You'll also be rid of some problems, too. Like paying extra for a big V-8 engine. (And our Rocket 350 runs smooth and easy on regular gas.)

Uncrowded Wonders of

Why fight the mobs at Yellowstone this summer when there are other National parks

By GEORGE B. HARTZOG, Jr. Director, National Park Service U.S. Department of Interior

A GROUP of young people spent a brief vacation hiking entirely on sand last summer. They were exploring Assateague Island National Seashore, one of the new recreational areas of the National Park System.

"Assateague is fabulous," one of the hikers, a girl from Vassar, reported on their return. "Nothing but the ocean, sand, sky, and shore birds."

She could have added surf fishing and camping, too. Assateague Island is a 35-mile oceanfront beach and sand dune extending from Ocean City, Md., to Chincoteague, Va. There are no roads except for two short access highways from the mainland—one on the Maryland end and one on the Virginia end.

Assateague is one of many National Park System areas where people and automobiles have not yet created a serious overcrowding problem. This article for the Travel America Issue of FAMILY WEEKLY will acquaint readers with some of the lesser-known, generally uncrowded, areas of the Park System.

You can explore Early American historical sites, for example, without joining nearly eight million other visitors (1967 total) at Colonial National Historical Park, Va. Why crowd into Yellowstone National Park to water ski on Yellowstone Lake? Flaming Gorge National Recreation Area on the Wyoming-Utah border has fewer visitors—and more water.

Why jam into Acadia National Park, Maine, or Cape Cod National Seashore, Mass., when Fire Island and Assateague Island National Seashore now have plenty of enjoyable shore space?

Why not learn, or return to, some of your country's historical and cultural heritage? The accompanying list of tours, prepared with the National Park Service, are designed for pleasant family driving, sight-seeing, and enjoyment.

Space doesn't permit detailed descriptions of the following tours. You can be assured, however, that scenery, historic attractions, camping, wildlife, and outdoor recreation are integral parts of them. What's more, they're wonders of our land relatively few tourists crowd into during the summer months. Why not try one or two of them yourself for fun and convenience?

(Brochures on the National Park System areas are available for 10 to 15 cents each at the Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C., 20402. Price List No. 35 names all National Park Service booklets which are on sale.)

QUIPS AND QUOTES

The world is full of checks and balances. Just when you get to the point when menu prices don't matter, calories do.

—Lucille J. Goodyear

The woman driver looked at the mangled fenders. "I'm afraid this accident was mainly my fault," she said.

"No, no," the man protested. "I'm to blame. I saw you coming at least three blocks away, and I had plenty of time to swerve into a side street."

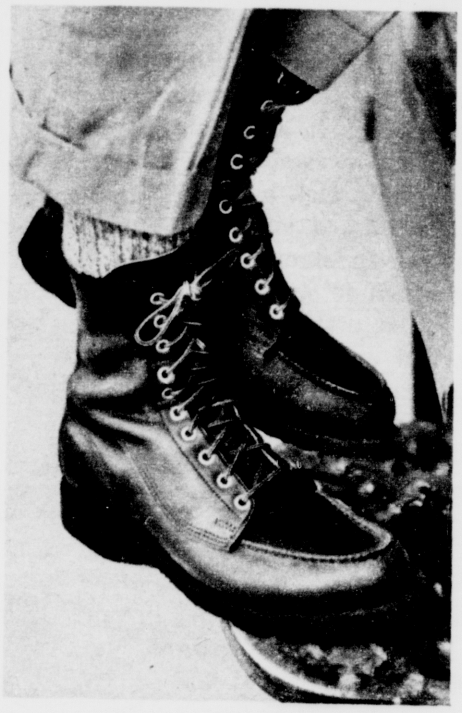
A product of WOLVERINE WORLD WIDE © 1968, WOLVERINE WORLD WIDE, INC. ROCKFORD, MICH. 49341 — makers of Hush Puppies ® casuals and Wolverine ® brand boots and shoes, ski products and gloves.

We can't change the shape of your foot.

So we changed the shape of our boot.



"Why fight feet?" we asked ourselves.

They'll never change.

Your feet will always have five toes each and soles that are contoured, not flat.

So we changed the shape of our boots. And made them the shape of your feet.

We designed the amazing new Wolverine Foothold contour insole. It gives you the comfort you want when you're on your feet a lot.

And according to the thousands of satisfied wearers, from farmers and construction workers to lovers of the great outdoors, Wolverine boots with the Foothold contour insole are the most comfortable they've ever worn.

The Foothold contour insole cradles the back of your foot with firm, comfortable support. The arch is shaped like an arch. The ball is contoured with just a hint of gentle support. And the forepart is designed for more natural toe freedom.

All this means less foot fatigue. And much more comfort.

You can get the Wolverine Foothold contour insole in 6″ and 8″ boots, brown and black oxfords, even golf shoes. They're durable, lightweight, water repellent, made of soft, top quality leathers, and have steel shank support.

Now the next time you've got your boots on, ask yourself what shape they're in. The shape of your feet? Or the shape of boots? And if the answer is what we think it will be, walk right in to your nearest Wolverine Dealer (write us if you don't know where yours is) and step inside a pair of Wolverine boots with the Foothold contour insole.

Your feet, too, will find that our change is as good as a rest.

Mexico—Land of Off-Beat Tourist Spots

By JOHN WILHELM

Author of "Guide to Mexico" and "Guide to Mexico City"

Festive dancing in the streets of Oaxaca.

EVERY YEAR, millions of Americans visit Mexico—but very few see the real Mexico.

Most tourists restrict themselves to the fascinating cities of Acapulco and Mexico City, while neglecting the equally fascinating cities and villages of the interior. For the serious sight-seer, the interior is a must if one is to taste the true flavor of this delightful land.

The traveler planning to put the family in the car and drive south across the border will be crossing some hot desert the first day, but in Monterrey he will find not only good air-conditioned hotels but also wonderful rancho restaurants. The Grand Hotel Ancira is a distinguished old hotel, now remodeled,in the center of town.

San Miguel de Allende, a few hours north of Mexico City on a fine superhighway, and nearby Guanajuato are wonderful little colonial towns where you can spend hours wandering about the cobblestone streets. Both are high enough on the central plateau to be comfortably cool.

San Miguel is great for artists, or would-be artists, as it is small, cheerful, has an interesting plaza, a handsome Indian-Gothic church, and a rich history.

Guanajuato is an old silver- and-gold-mining town, set in steep hills, and its narrow streets include one called Callejon de la Besa. (Street of the Kiss) which is said to be narrow enough for a person on one balcony to lean across and kiss a neighbor on a balcony across the street!

Turning to the west coast, one comes to a most interesting array of recently developed resorts along the Pacific highway.

There is a very luxurious new air-conditioned ferry making several trips a week from Mazatlán, Mexico's principal Pacific port, to La Paz in Baja California. Mazatlán has a big expanse of fine white beaches, but it is also noted for its fishing and draws visitors the year around. It has a score of good hotels and motels.

The ferry trip to La Paz takes overnight, but it is a wonderful old town, first established by the Spanish conquistadors, and still not connected to the world by an acceptable highway. It has some of the best fishing in the world and many luxury resorts built especially for sportsmen.

Of course, the hit of the Pacific coast among the newer places is Puerto Vallarta. "Discovered" only a few years ago, it has a big bay with miles of unused beaches. And it now has some pretty good hotels, although most still verge on the rustic.

You can fly directly to Puerto Vallarta from the States or via Guadalajara, Mexico's second largest city. Visiting Guadalajara along with a trip to Puerto Vallarta is fun. Shopping is much better in Guadalajara, although the thonged sandals of Puerto Vallarta (tailored to each foot) are one of the world's best buys.

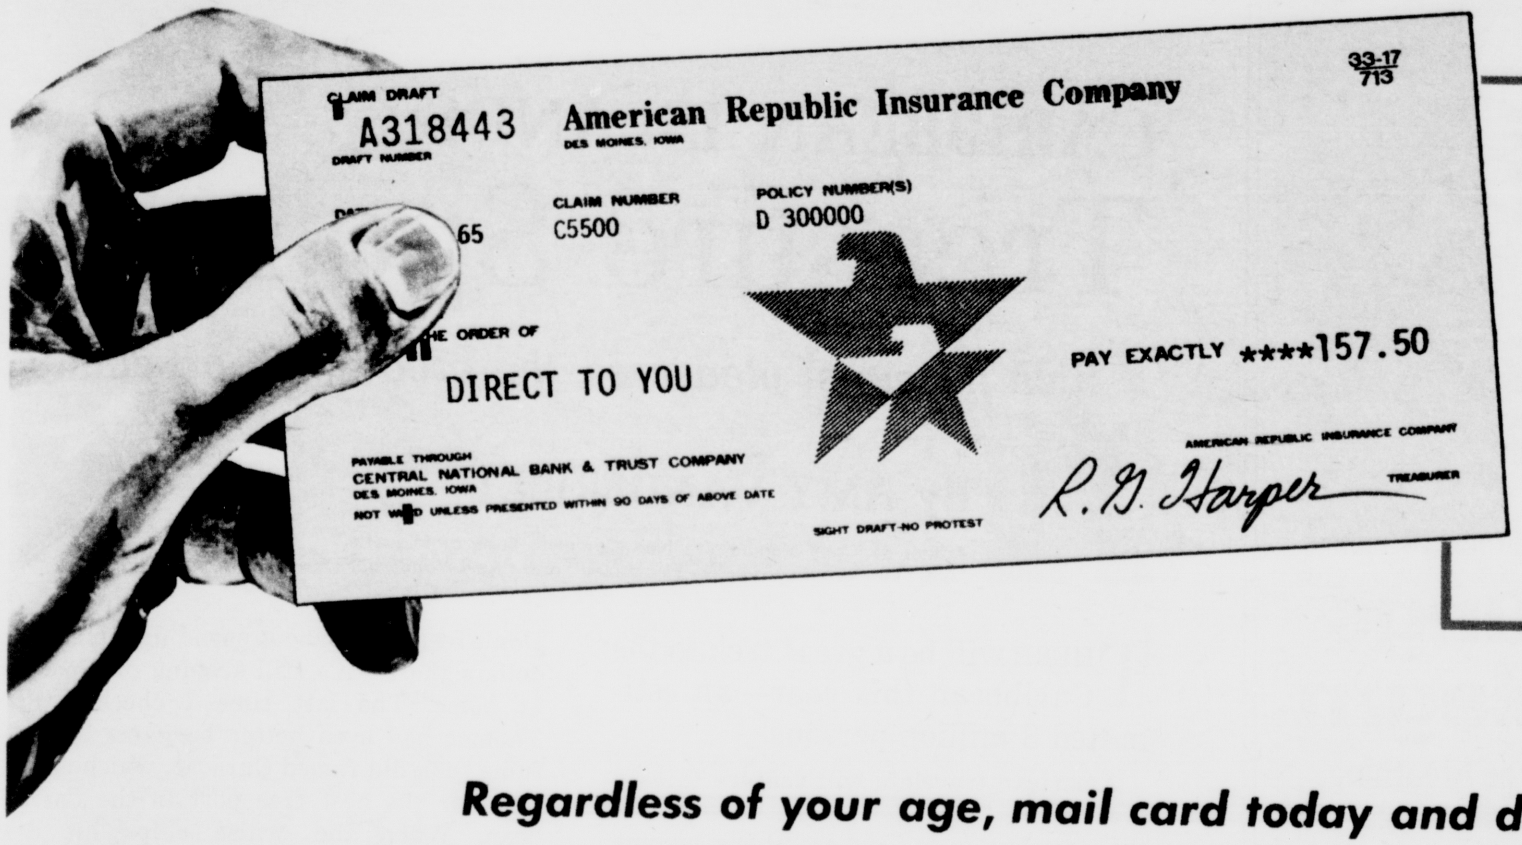
Mexico City is really a must, and there are several hundred hotels there. Your travel agent can recommend one, or I list them all in my travel guide. It also has some fine restaurants—plus, of course, the Olympics in October.

From Mexico City, drive to Cuernavaca for lunch at that lush semi-tropical city, only 40 minutes away, and then on to Taxco, the silver city which has been preserved as a colonial monument. The silver shops here will make you drool.

We must mention Oaxaca, in the south of Mexico, with the great ancient stone cities of Monte Alban and Mitla, and farther to the south, if you wish more adventure and a more primitive society, you come to San Cristobal de las Casas, set high in the mountains of Chiapas. This old colonial city exists much as it did 400 years ago with native Indians still unable to speak much Spanish.

It is possible to take a bus or your car from Mexico City to the Gulf-coast town of Veracruz, which has good sea food and fair beaches and then go on a fascinating coastal trip along the south Gulf to Coatzacoalcos, Villahermosa (the capital of the state of Tabasco) and thence over a lovely island some 30 miles long past rows of palms set beside the sea to Campeche.

Such an array of vacation opportunities and sight-seeing pleasures must make Mexico the ideal vacation spot. And to think it is all so close! ◆



If you were flat on your back in a hospital bed, which of these three "Direct Cash" Plans would best suit your needs?

	"1-UNIT" PLAN	"2-UNIT" PLAN	"3-UNIT" PLAN
EACH DAY	$ 7.50	$ 15.00	$ 22.50
EACH WEEK	$ 52.50	$ 105.00	$ 157.50
ONE YEAR	$2,737.50	$5,475.00	$8,212.50

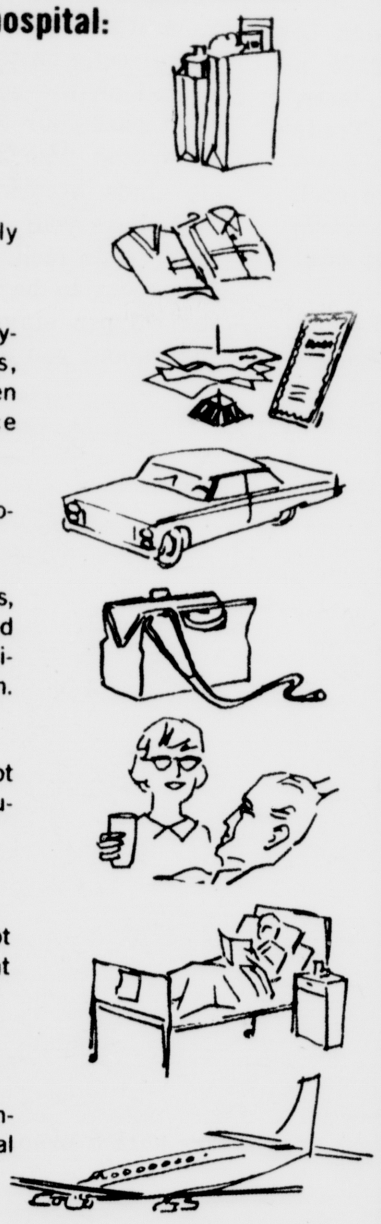
TAX-FREE MONEY PAID DIRECT TO YOU WHEN YOU ARE IN THE HOSPITAL DUE TO ACCIDENT OR ILLNESS.

Regardless of your age, mail card today and discover...

How to get paid up to $157.50 a week, just like wages, while in the hospital:

Check how many ways you could use this Americare® "Direct Cash" while you are in the hospital:

- ☐ Food for your family.
- ☐ Clothing your family needs.
- ☐ Rent or mortgage payments, utility bills, credit accounts, even your life insurance premiums.
- ☐ Car payments and upkeep.
- ☐ Help pay medical bills, even if you are enrolled in the Medicare Medical Insurance program.
- ☐ Private nurse, if not provided by your regular insurance.
- ☐ Private room, if not covered by your present insurance.
- ☐ Transportation to another city for special hospital treatment.



WHAT IF YOU should wake up to find yourself flat on your back in a hospital, facing a stay of weeks—even months? Check the ways you could use extra spendable cash (see panel at left). Think what $2,000, $5,000 or $8,000—on top of your hospital insurance—could mean to you, regardless of your age or family circumstances:

If you are under 35, you may be just getting a good start in life. With small children, rent or mortgage payments, new furniture and all the other expenses young families have, a serious injury or illness might "wipe you out" financially.

If you are 35 to 65, your children now may be at the costliest stage of schooling; living expenses probably are higher than ever; and chances of hospitalization are increasing every year. This is certainly no time to be in a financial bind!

Even if you are 65 or over, and eligible for Medicare, you still will have to pay part of your hospital bills—and you also will have other bills. Everyday expenses, private room, private nurse, other medical costs—bills that Medicare does not cover.

Regardless of your age, the American Republic "Direct Cash" Plan can pay you badly needed cash every week you are in the hospital... for up to one full year.

Easy As 1...2...3...

Protection under the American Republic "Direct Cash" Plan is available in individual protection "units." Each unit pays you $52.50 per week actual cash (at the rate of $7.50 a day) for every week you spend in the hospital due to illness OR accident... as much as $8,212.50 for a full year if you have the "3-Unit" Plan.

Compare All These Advantages:

- Pays cash direct to you in addition to any other insurance carried with any other company. Even pays in addition to Workmen's Compensation, Medicare, or any group plan. Cash to spend as you like.
- It is LifeGuarded® Protection. This means it is Guaranteed Renewable. It is YOURS FOR LIFE as long as you make timely payment of the current premium. It can NEVER be cancelled by the Company because of age, health or number of claims.
- You are covered during any hospital confinement for any accident from the date your policy is issued, and for any sickness that begins after 30 days from date of issue. Unless, of course, your hospital care is due to war, mental disorder, maternity, dental work, or when you are in a U. S. Government or Veterans Hospital.
- NO MEDICAL EXAMINATION, regardless of your age—and there is NO AGE LIMIT.

Protection That PAYS

According to the latest 5-year figures, American Republic returned a greater percentage of premium dollars to policyholders in claim benefits than any of the other Top 40 insurance companies offering individual accident and health insurance.

Send today for full facts about this "Direct Cash" Plan. Discover how you could go to a hospital and come out with money left over. Tear out and mail the attached postage-free card. Or write to American Republic Insurance Company, Des Moines, Iowa 50301.

SPECIAL OFFER: If you send now for information about the American Republic "Direct Cash" Plan, you will also receive this valuable Americare® First Aid Kit by Johnson & Johnson. Contains tape, bandages, antiseptic cream, other basic first aid needs. Prepare now for those sudden emergencies. This kit is yours without charge or obligation. CARIBBEAN ISLANDS: Treasure Spots for

Rich in tourist pleasures, the area offers a beautiful

By AMY VANDERBILT

Author of "Amy Vanderbilt's New Complete Book of Etiquette," "Amy Vanderbilt's Complete Cookbook," and "Amy Vanderbilt's Everyday Etiquette"

THERE will be a great trek to the Caribbean this year—an estimated 3 million persons.

American travelers will venture into an area where "new" islands seemingly burgeon weekly as the old stand-bys become more and more familiar. And now you can travel the Caribbean for pocket money or go in grand style.

How will you get there? The great steamship lines cruise the Caribbean year round with prices to fit every budget. Or you can fly there in what seems no time at all, making it as simple and inexpensive as inter-city traveling in the U.S. What's more, in part of the Caribbean, you will be in the U.S.

St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands is a U.S. possession, so you will feel very much at home. You can rent a nice furnished house there, if you are lucky enough to have the time, for as little as $175 a month. Maids cost about 75¢ an hour, live-in maids around $35 a week. Trade winds blow nearly all day but die down toward evening, and the nights are cool. Because of the gentle wind and the warm sun, palm hats are a familiar sight (wet the hat before wearing).

Just about everyone has heard about the shopping bargains in St. Thomas. Don't feel guilty about spending American dollars there—it's still keeping our money at home. The last time I checked, St. Thomas had even better bargains in perfume than did famed Curaçao, which many consider the best free port in the Caribbean. When the cruise ships hit St. Thomas, it seems that everyone makes a beeline for the Sapphire Club and its beautiful beach.

Many tourists who stampede off the cruise ships at Curaçao for its world-famed bargains, never get any farther than Spritzer & Fuhrman, whose establishments dot the shopping area. One of the most interesting islands in the Caribbean, Curaçao is Dutch and very clean and tidy, with some of the most interesting architecture in the islands. Its Hotel Curaçao-Intercontinental is the only hotel in the world with ship-collision insurance because it's built right into an old fortification directly on the water. If your room is located on the ocean side, ships will sail right past your window.

Curaçao also has lovely beach coves, all kinds of water sports, and fishing.

Perhaps your itinerary will take you to Trinidad, a lush island where everybody's feet seem to be dancing. You will enjoy the calypso singers who can compose a song about you or your interests in nothing flat and will follow you all over the island to do so. The asking price is $2, but they won't refuse a few pennies, either (although they may complain).

You certainly will want to buy a wonderful native straw hat early in your trip. You will see them in every port, but in my experience the best ones are found in Kingston, Jamaica, at the Victoria Crafts Market. Be sure to tour the Hope Botanical Garden there, but don't miss the botanical garden on the old site of the Shore Park Hotel, either.

One of my favorite places in the Caribbean is Barbados, with its lovely, soft speech and polite, handsome people. If you are lucky enough to be going there, plan to have lunch at the Flying Fish Club which specializes in flying fish. Lunch for three there was a bargain five dollars.

If you like to sew, or have a little dressmaker at home, be sure to pick up Liberty lawns and silks there. Take a trip to Sam Lord's Castle which operates now as a newly elegant hotel.

Nassau, of course, is British and a year-round tourist attraction. One airline has just introduced a bargain $115, 17-day excursion, by the way. In winter, Nassau attracts the "jet set" and the rich from all over, but in the summer it is a great tourist bargain. The natives there now are wearing Bermuda shorts on the streets, but one still sees more dresses than shorts —except on the tourists who wear just about anything. Everybody makes the scene on Nassau's Bay Street, which abounds with bars, shops, and interesting restaurants.

If you are lucky to be doing more than just touching shore in Nassau, spare a day or so for the lovely island of Eleuthra, with its pink beaches and spectacular fishing. A tour in a glass-bottom boat to ob-

CARIBBEAN ISLANDS

Among the wilder islands that are being tamed now for the tourist trade is Dominica, a British possession. The diving boys are getting so used to the tourist ships coming in there that they will no longer dive for mere pennies. Although the people of Dominica are very poor, they are not beggars. If you want to help, hire them as guides.

I have never met a Caribbean traveler who didn't love Bermuda, a year-round resort not technically in the Caribbean but included in many Caribbean cruises. May 24 is the official beginning of summer there, and the sea swimming is good then through October. Night-club entertainment, rotating from hotel to hotel, is tame but quite pleasant.

A nice place to have lunch is the Hotel School in Prospect which serves lunch on Wednesdays and Fridays from noon to 1 p.m. at the cost of the materials, for the sake of training their students. You may have dinner there Tuesdays and Thursdays but reservations two months in advance are advised. The most elegant dining in town is at the Penthouse, where dinner is about $7. You will like, too, the Waterfront in Hamilton which overhangs the bay.

Practically no regular bicycles are seen any more in Bermuda except for the postman's and young children's. Tourists may not rent the few cars now permitted, but (if over 16) you can tear around on motor bikes.

Bermuda is a marvelous place to shop, but be sure you get British things. There is much American merchandise on the island, and there is no point in buying things you can get cheaper at home.

Puerto Rico, 100 miles long and 35 miles wide, is one of the biggest islands in the Caribbean. It is only 3¼ hours from New York nonstop and is thoroughly bilingual (Spanish and English). Now a thriving industrial complex that virtually encourages commuters, Puerto Rico is the place for budget-conscious tourists.

One airline, for example, has a 10-day economy flight for $104 at certain times of the year, leaving at certain hours of the day. Puerto Rico, of course, uses U.S. currency. A million visitors are expected this year. Almost anything you can get here, you can get there, so don't go overboard in your shopping but look for unique shops such as Martha Sleeper's in Old San Juan—this designer was once a well-known actress here. A famous antique shop is Jose Alegria, just around the corner. Sports-minded tourists and vacationers have found Puerto Rico's facilities for golf, tennis, swimming, and fishing exceptional.

One of the very nice things about the Caribbean area is that everybody will take American money, and you can be very sure of a warm welcome because the whole Caribbean economy is geared to the tourist—predominantly American, who finds his vacation money well spent. ◆

You may not be aware that the name you bear may have been recorded with a coat-of-arms in ancient heraldic archives. If it has, you can now purchase and display this

DOCUMENTED COAT-OF-ARMS

EVERY NAME HAS A BEGINNING. Eight centuries ago, the population of Europe was comparatively small, but it was already necessary to formulate names as a descriptive identification in order to distinguish one person from another. Thus, the John who baked bread became John Baker . . . and the John who lived on the other side of the hill was known as John Overhill. As children grew, it was not uncommon to refer to them by the name of their parents. Thus, the Scandinavian and English suffix "son" . . . the Greek "pulos" . . . the Finnish "nen" . . . the Polish "wiecz" . . . the Spanish "ez" . . . all denoting the son. Similarly, the Irish O' means grandson, while the prefix "Mac", "Mc" indicates "son" in Gaelic and Scottish.

Between the 11th and 13th centuries, all last names were new. When the Crusades began in 1095 most of the inhabitants of Europe were unable to read or write. This illiteracy included the nobility and landowners, lords, barons and kings . . . as well as commoners and vassals. Therefore, the clergy and monks were called upon to write documents, make proclamations, record insignia, and award decorations. Each court had a member of the clergy or "clerk" or "herald" who performed these duties for the regent, maintaining permanent records or archives for the purpose. Thus, heraldry was born.

WHAT IS A COAT OF ARMS? It is generally believed that a coat-of-arms reflects an ancient heritage when knights jousted in tournament or vied in battle, and deeds of valor and accomplishment were rewarded with a memorable symbol. While this is true in many cases, the coat-of-arms was more generally utilized as a practical symbol of identification, both on the battlefield and in everyday transactions of business. Since most people were illiterate, the coat-of-arms also became a signature or a "mark". When worn in battle, the coat-of-arms of freemen, vassals and followers was similar to the armorial bearing of the lord they served. Today a personal coat-of-arms is regarded as a proud link to the rich heritage of the past.

WHY DO SKEPTICS SAY "YOU DON'T HAVE MY NAME?" For many people it is difficult to believe that the ancient heralds in every country of Europe actually performed the monumental task of recording so many minute historic, geographic and personal details regarding common, everyday names as well as unusual; rarely heard of names. For other skeptics, it is hard to believe that the medieval archives of heraldry actually have survived the countless battles, the great plagues which swept medieval Europe, the invasions which occurred between warring kings, fires and inquisitions. The Sanson Institute of Heraldry invites these skeptics to submit their names and authorize research for documented coat-of-arms findings. If not in our archives, Sanson Institute will guarantee immediate refund, with our thanks for enriching our knowledge regarding future areas of continuous exploration.

SANSON INSTITUTE ARCHIVES STARTED OVER 100 YEARS AGO. In 1860 in a small art studio in Sheffield, England, a coach painter named William Hubert Seddon catered to families who desired to have their carriages adorned with their family coat-of-arms. This remarkable man was so painstaking in his craft that during his lifetime he initiated one of the most voluminous collections of heraldic archives in the world. Were it not for his diligence many of these ancient records may have passed into extinction. After the industrial revolution and the demise of coach painting, Mr. Seddon continued to expand his unique heraldic collection. Three generations later his descendant brought the entire library to the United States, and it is today the nucleus of one of the most authoritative libraries of its kind in the world.

OVER 500,000 COAT-OF-ARMS FINDINGS IN SANSON INSTITUTE ARCHIVES. The foresight of the founder in amassing the heraldic library is rewarded today in the ability of the Institute to research the thousands of names which are requested daily. Names which had their origins many centuries ago in 33 different European countries are daily researched by the Sanson Institute. Our archivists are thoroughly trained in heraldic science in order to carefully and correctly translate the medieval heraldic language. The monumental task of researching, interpreting and cataloguing hundreds of thousands of names and coats-of-arms from centuries-old books and manuscripts are in the capable hands of these multilingual researchers in the ancient art of heraldry.

THE NATIONALLY SYNDICATED NEWSPAPER COLUMN "WHAT'S IN YOUR NAME?" IS WRITTEN BY SANSON INSTITUTE. In addition to the syndicated weekly column, which appears in newspapers from coast to coast, the Institute's heraldic experts have appeared on the NBC-TV network as well as innumerable local and national radio and TV programs.

HOW CAN THE INSTITUTE RESEARCH A COAT-OF-ARMS FOR SO LITTLE MONEY? The time was when only the nobility or the very wealthy could afford a coat-of-arms research. Today, thanks to the miracle of electronic computers and modern cataloguing techniques supported by a century of preparation, the Sanson Institute is prepared to serve people from all walks of life, regardless of religion, creed, color or financial status.

HOW IS A COAT-OF-ARMS USED TODAY? In today's modern world, a coat-of-arms is a personalized link with the past . . . a decorative badge for individual recognition of a family name that had its origins centuries ago. While no direct genealogical representation is intended or implied by the Sanson Institute, many people rightfully take extreme pride in this symbolic link with a bygone era. These personalized historic emblems are proudly presented in the form of plaques, rings, embroidered blazer insignia, and framed coat-of-arms wall decor. All are ideal as unusual, thoughtful gifts for Mother's Day, Father's Day, birthdays, graduation, weddings, anniversaries, etc.

SPECIAL ADVISORY TO BUSINESSMEN. Many leading executives and organizations have used Sanson Institute to prepare an incentive or award program. Perhaps we can be of service in your future programs. Simply drop a note to Commercial Division, Sanson Institute, 263 Summer St., Boston, Mass. 02210.

TRAVEL AMERICA ISSUE

What Travel Has Taught Me

By WILLIAM HOLDEN with Peer J. Oppenheimer

A FEW YEARS ago, I drove my Land Rover into Somalia, a small village near the border of Somaliland and Ethiopia.

We were on an elephant hunt and stopped to ask the local chief where the herd was. He insisted that I remain at his hut while he sent scouts to find it.

To show my gratitude, I offered the people of the village some orange soda and sugar. In turn, to show his appreciation, the chief brought me a gourd of goat's milk—filled with flies! Not wanting to insult him by turning down his hospitality, I asked my interpreter to tell him my religion forbad drinking goat's milk.

The chief frowned and asked my interpreter, "What is Bwana's religion?"

I didn't want to specify a religion for fear the chief may have been familiar with it, so I told my interpreter to tell him I was an "agnostic."

The chief turned back to me with an approving smile: "Ahh—agnostic! No wonder you can't drink this!"

Like many travelers, I derive some of my greatest pleasures as well as awkward moments by trying strange foods.

In Japan, for instance, a tuna-fish eye is considered a delicacy. I was offered an eye one night at a party in Kyoto. I simply couldn't bring myself to eat it and said, "No, thanks, I don't care for it."

When my host continued asking me, I felt I couldn't refuse. I popped the eye into my mouth and washed it down with my cocktail. That eye or the memory of it stayed with me for months!

My years of traveling have taught me many things. The most important being to familiarize myself with the customs of the people and country I plan to visit.

I don't know how many tourists I have encountered in Japan, for instance, who climb into a taxi at their Western-style hotel, give the driver an address which he invariably acknowledges with a broad smile, and soon find themselves lost.

A little pretrip homework would have told the tourists that a Japanese driver would lose face if he admitted ahead of time that he didn't understand the directions and that most Japanese addresses are so ill-defined that even the natives of Tokyo get lost without detailed directions.

Consequently, when in Japan, or any other country whose language I don't speak, I have learned never to leave my hotel unless I have the address written down in the native language, usually accompanied by a sketch of how to get there.

The earliest recollection I have about taking a trip goes back to the time I was four years old, and my family moved from southern Illinois to California. After that, my travels were restricted to trips with my family to places like Yosemite National Park, the Grand Canyon, and other fascinating sights in the western U.S.A.

In 1952 I started traveling all over the world in earnest, not only to satisfy my own curiosity but due to assignments that involved working on overseas locations. I've never really stopped. Since then I've gone around the world at least once, sometimes twice, a year, employing almost every type of conveyance imaginable.

I remember, for example, I took a camel safari along the northern frontier district of Kenya. After several days I ended up walking. It wasn't any slower and more fun than being spit at and nipped constantly by a truly miserable beast.

Thanks to my trips through the western U.S. desert when I was in my teens, I didn't grow up with the customary fear of snakes. A snake is not so dangerous.

In fact, I kept a cobra as a pet while shooting "The Bridge on the River Kwai." My native servant kept a close eye on it and knew when to pull the fangs. The snake and I got along nicely until my wife Ardis joined me on location. She took one look at it and said it had to go.

When you travel as much as I do, sooner or later you get attached to some places more than to others. Curiously, the two places I enjoy most nowadays are on opposite sides of the globe.

I have come to love the desert in the northern district of Kenya where the humidity is rarely over 15 degrees and the temperature during the day ranges from 80 to 120 degrees. It is barren, rocky, volcanic like the moon, and so remote that one isn't running into people all the time.

The other place, hardly known for serenity and peace but with most of the other advantages of the desert country, is Palm Springs, Calif.. There is a remarkable beauty about the whole area.

As an actor, I've traveled as much for business as I have for pleasure. I feel fortunate I've been to places that most people only dream about.

To me, it's more than just wanderlust—traveling is in my blood! ◆

PIN-WORMS A FAMILY AFFAIR

Fidgeting, loss of sleep and a tormenting itch are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms . . . ugly parasites that medical experts say infest 1 out of every 3 persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, they must be killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do . . . and here's how they do it:

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly, easily. Ask your pharmacist.

Don't take chances with dangerous, highly contagious Pin-Worms which infect entire families. Get genuine Jayne's P-W Vermifuge . . . small, easy-to-take tablets . . . special sizes for children and adults.

POLLY'S POINTERS

DEAR POLLY---When taking clothes off the line I clip pairs of socks together with clothespins. They are still together when I am ironing and folding the clothes.---MRS. R. A. N.

DEAR POLLY—Last summer when I went camping I put my postage stamps in a plastic pill bottle. They were easy to find and did not stick together.—NAN

DEAR POLLY---If you have trouble determining whether or not a spool of thread is black or navy or dark green, try this. After you use the thread for the first time, write the color on the top of the spool and have no more trouble. Sometimes black spools come marked but not always.---JULIE

DEAR POLLY—When suddenly in need of a snow shovel, place an old broom stick in the dust pan handle and have a good temporary one.—NOVA

Polly pays a dollar for every idea used. Send them to her, care of this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY—I have a pointer that will help if one of your double sinks tends to fill up as the other one empties. Plug the empty sink and then let the water out of the full sink. No water gets into the empty one.—RENE

DEAR POLLY---I was disappointed when I could not buy a record cabinet at the furniture store so I asked the owner where he kept his records at home. He answered, "In a magazine rack." I could hardly wait to get home as I had a brass magazine rack that takes up little space and it now is a record holder.---MRS. W. S.

DEAR POLLY—The basket from a French fryer is very handy when cooking corn-on-the-cob. Put the ears into the basket and lower it into the pan of boiling water and then lift them all out at once. Pipe cleaners make good fasteners on plastic bags to be stored in the refrigerator. They can be used over and over again because they do not go to pieces as wire and paper fasteners do.—RITA

DEAR POLLY---While cleaning my attic I found an old styrofoam cooler that had been discarded because the lid was crushed. I thought this would make a good toy box which it does. It holds plenty of toys, does not scratch the floor and is light enough to be easily moved when cleaning. Your part of the paper is one of my favorites.—MRS. R. H. W.
